Vol. 45 No. 20 | Five Sections | Lancaster Farming, Saturday, March 18, 2000 | $31.00 Per Year | 60¢ Per Copy

Superior Hobby, the American Paint stallion that stands at stud at Double D Stables near Elizabethtown, is known for, of all things, line dancing. That's right. Owners, David and Dolly Hass have choreographed Hobby's agility to "'Boot Scootin' Boogie" and he will be part of the show on the tour of southeastern Pennsylvania's professional horse farms the weekend of April 8-9. Hobby shows his superiority in his beautiful confirmation, show winnings, and the 83 foals on the ground that he has sired. He is 15.3 hands and weighs more than 1,300 pounds. Hobby poses with his neighbor kids who belong to Daryl and Donna Wenger. When everybody got together for the photographer Tuesday, Hobby received offers of carrots and hay for his attention but managed to look the camera in the eye long enough to trip the shutter. In the photo from left, David and Dolly Hass, owners, and the Wenger kids, Emma 2, Laura 8, Elizabeth 7, and John 4. See more about the professional horse farm open house tour on page A28. Photo by Everett Newawanger, editor

Temporary Increase Added To Pennsylvania Over-Order Premium

JAYNE SEBRIGHT

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board (PMMB) voted unanimously on Tuesday to add 25 cents to the current over-order premium on Class I milk produced, processed, and sold in Pennsylvania.

The temporary 25-cent increase will bring the over-order premium to $1.45 and will go into effect on April 1, 2000. The temporary increase was initiated to help absorb some of the financial impact that overly high fuel costs are having on Pennsylvania dairy farmers.

The over-order premium is a dollar amount added to the minimum Class I price paid to Pennsylvania dairy farmers. The over-order premium on Class I milk has been mandated in Pennsylvania since 1988.

While about 50 percent of the milk produced in Pennsylvania is sold as Class I milk, only 20 percent of that milk is actually processed and sold in Pennsylvania. While the temporary increase will only be on milk that

Seminar Evaluates Poultry Immunity

ANDY ANDREWS

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — Everybody knows the immune system in poultry is critical to maintaining flock health. But exactly how does it work?

That was the question answered by a poultry immunologist Monday afternoon at the Penn State-sponsored Poultry Health and Management Seminar at Kreider's Restaurant in Manheim.

Dr. Magdi M. Mashaly, associate professor of poultry science at Penn State, not only provided an overview of the workings of the immune system in birds, but pointed out the importance of measuring stress — a barometer for the prevalence of disease and a tool to use to boost the immune system.

DELMARVA BROILER/FRYER MARKET. FEDERAL-STATE

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds was slow to fair at best and about as expected as normal lighter mid-week and mid-month activity combined with buyers shifting interest to corn beef and cabbage. Offerings varied by size and volume but were at least adequate overall. Live supplies were mostly moderate; weights varied in a full range of light to heavy. Processing schedules were light to moderately heavy. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged at 49 to 61 cents. Trade sentiment was mostly steady. In the parts complex, all items were adequate. Wings were in closest balance. Leg cuts were in heaviest supply.

Chore-Tronics™ The Simple Solution

Chore-Tronics™ Controls give you the competitive edge The Chore-Tronics™ Line of controls was developed specifically to meet today's management challenges. Improvements in individual systems, genetics, and nutrition still offer production advances, but these may not offer enough of an edge in today's competitive market. Properly integrated house management using Chore-Tronics Controls for the ultimate in flexibility and precision offers the greatest potential for a competitive advantage.

National Grain Market

St. Joseph, MO
Wed Mar 15, 2000
USDA-MO Dept Ag Market News

Daily National Grain Market Summary

Grain and soybean advances over the past two days were stopped as wet weather moved back into forecasts for the Midwest and southern Plains. Wheat steady to 3 cents lower. Corn 1 to 3 cents lower. Sorghum steady to 3 cents lower. Soybeans 5 to 8 cents lower. Wheat bids also declined on some export disappointments as Algeria rejected all of the soft wheat they had tendered for earlier due to high prices. However, there were some good orders overnight to South Korea and Egypt. The Plains areas is calling for a storm system with several areas forecast to receive several inches of snow. Moisture is forecast for the Midwest tonight. Indications that pro- ducers could plant more corn this year but with fuel cost currently on the rise, nothing is definite. Some profit taking on the Board added pressure to soybean bids. Export sales have been slow for corn and beans this week.

The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC THIS WEEK WITH

MARCH 20 - 26, 2000

VERNAL EQUINOX, MARCH 20.

AAAL-VIN!

On March 21, 1959, "Alvin's Harmonica," by the Chipmunks, became one of the chart toppers for high-selling records. Singer, songwriter, and Chipmunk creator, Ross Bagdasarian had used his recording device gimmicks previously in his popular song, "Witch Doctor." From that success, he followed his children's advice in creating the chipmunk characters Alvin (the leader), Simon (the scholar), and Theodore (who loved to eat) Soon, his Chipmunks were recording their own albums, with Bagdasarian's alias, "Dave Seville," as their mentor. Their "Chipmunk Song" (Christmas Don't Be Late) sold 5 million copies in just seven weeks. Alvin's television cartoon show followed in 1961 and continues today Bagdasarian died in 1972

I want to play my harmonica . . . -Alvin

TIP OF THE WEEK

BASIL CARBONARA

10 slices bacon
1/4 cup fresh basil leaves
4 to 6 cloves garlic
2 eggs, beaten
1/2 cup half-and-half
1 cup fresh grated Parmesan
1 pound pasta

Boil water to cook pasta Fry bacon, drain, and chop into ¼-inch slices Blend, process, or chop basil and garlic until finely minced In another bowl, mix eggs and half-and-half, then add bacon, basil mixture, and grated cheese Meanwhile, cook pasta as directed, drain, then immediately add sauce while the pasta is still hot Cover and let sit for 2 to 3 minutes (The hot pasta cooks the egg) Toss and serve at once with extra Parmesan

Makes 4 to 6 servings.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

Rain on St. Benoit's Day (Mar. 21) means rain for 40 days.

A clear St. Mary's Day (Mar. 25), a fruitful year ahead.

As it rains in March, so it rains in June.

Another Hard Decision

Cornell University scientists have demonstrated that creating a refuge in a crop field reduces the chance of insects developing resistance to transgenic insecticidal plants. Researchers report on their findings in the current issue of the journal "Nature Biotechnology."

When trials were done with a random mix in the rows, or with a separate refuge in which the non-Bt plants were grown next to the Bt plants, the trials indicated a separate refuge would be more effective in keeping the insects from becoming Bt-resistant. This is just more evidence that those in charge of biotechnology are working to find the best and safest way to use the new methods of farming. We admit they have an economic stake in finding the best way to use their products. But economics has always been the American way of life.

Unfortunately the facts of biotechnology are often not accepted by consumers and the market place. Genetically engineered plants have been developed that allow farmers to use considerably fewer chemicals in production of the crop. This is good for the environment, any way you look at it. But now, farmers are in a quandary. They know the biotech crops produce more with less and safer imputes and answers one of the main complaints about agriculture by the enviornmentalists.

But the refusal of the export markets to accept these products has farmers wondering if they should take advantage of this new production advantage. According to a recent survey study done by Farm Progress Companies, 80 percent of grain elevators throughout the corn belt have said they are planning to accept biotech corn grain containing Bt and LiabertyLink traits in the fall of 2000. And 88 percent will accept biotech soybeans. Most of them do not export any grain.

But the question has been raised. And some farmers, we have no idea how many, will take the option to not grow biotech grains this year, to be sure of a market. That's a shame, because the farm must be run by the whims of the opponents of agriculture rather than run by good management and environmental practices.

Now Is The Time

By John Schwartz

Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Control Winter Annual Weeds

Winter annual weeds create many management problems and reduce yields in alfalfa fields, according to Robert Anderson, Lancaster County Extension Agronomy Agent. Winter annual weeds germinate in the late summer and early fall, grow during the winter and go to seed in late spring. Their life cycle allows them to compete aggressively with perennial forage crops like alfalfa by producing a dense ground cover by early spring which crowds the crop. In addition, with a heavy growth of winter annual weeds like chickweed and henbit in the first cutting, alfalfa dries much slower, making the cutting more susceptible to fields losses and reducing its feeding value.

To Select Winter Annual Weed Control Products

Winter annual weeds are not extremely difficult to control, according to Robert Anderson, Lancaster County Extension Agronomy Agent. However, the number of herbicides which will control winter annual weeds are limited and each has some restrictions. The most commonly used product is Gramoxone. Gramoxone works extremely well on winter annual weeds provided spray coverage is good. If weeds become too large and coverage is inadequate, control will be less successful.

Gramoxone may not be applied to alfalfa after one inch of growth in the spring. A second herbicide is metribuzin, which includes both Lexone and Sencor. They are effective on winter annual broadleaves and some grasses. However, they must be applied before any spring re-growth. Sinbar is another product. It must be applied during dormancy and before weeds are two inches high or wide.

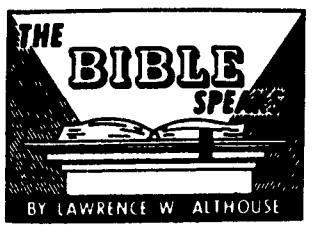
Sinbar also has a two year rotational restriction along with a restriction to not use on grass mixtures. Another product is Velpar. Velpar is effective on winter annual broadleaves and some grasses and will suppress dandelions. It must be applied after dormancy and before two inches of spring re-growth. It also has a rotational restriction for 12 months for certain crops. As always, make sure you read, understand and follow all label instructions before using any pesticide.

To Develop First Aid Kit

Most kids will not escape childhood without a few bruises, scraped knees or cut fingers. According to National SAFE KIDS Campaign, the most important thing an adult can do when a child suffers an injury is to act fast. The following list of first aid essentials should be on hand in every household.

1. Sterile gauze pads.
2. Sterile adhesive bandages in different sizes.
3. Rolls of stretchable sterile gauze to hold dressings in place.
4. Sterile adhesive tape.
5. Cotton balls.
6. Large sterile triangular bandage to use as a sling or for applying pressure to a wound.
7. Antibiotic ointment such as Neosporin.
8. Antiseptic wipes or antiseptic solution such as Betadine.
9. Blunt tipped scissors for cutting bandages. and
10. Tweezers for removing splinters. For bleeding that does not stop after five minutes of direct pressure, animal bites, gaping cuts more than 1⅓ inch deep, injuries caused by dirty objects, deep puncture wounds or wounds on your child's face, neck, head or the palm side of hands, parents are advised to seek prompt medical treatment.

Feather Prof.'s Footnote: 'Small opportunities are often the beginning of great achievements.'



WHO'S GOT THE 'RIGHT' LEADER?
March 19, 2000

Background Scripture:
1 Corinthians 4:1-13
Devotional Reading:
1 Peter 5:1-11

Sometimes I surf the TV channels to look in on one or more of the various televangelists. I am often fascinated with the sheer power of these charismatic men and women. I use the word 'charismatic' here in its general sense as "gifted by God." I am happy to hear and see the Gospel preached to so many people. Sometimes within the name-brand denominations we also find gifted leaders who have the power to draw large numbers of people to come to their churches.

The tremendous powers of gifted preachers and teachers can be both positive and negative. While many people will hear from them the gospel in a most convincing manner, there is always the danger that people will come to believe in the preacher rather than what is preached. I don't mean that it is dangerous to believe in the preacher as a channel of God's revelation, but it is dangerous to believe that he or she is therefore the sole channel or one that is infallible. They are still human beings with all the limitations and weaknesses of human nature.

The "Right" Faction

Paul was the father of the Corinthian church. After Paul left Corinth, the church gradually broke down into factions, each headed by a leader or leaders who apparently claimed special revelation from God. These leaders each claimed the most authentic gospel. Some of this resistance was even directed against Paul and obviously some of the other Corinthians wanted Paul to tell them which faction was the 'right' one.

How does Paul meet this crisis? First, he reminds these leaders that they are all "servants of Christ and stewards of the mysteries of God" (1 Co. 4:1). Just because they are teachers and leaders does not mean they are anything more than Christ's "servants" and "stewards." The gospel is entrusted to them temporarily to preserve and transmit. So, they work for Christ, not themselves. All of us who are so quick and ready to do battle with those whose ideas differ from ours or who worship and serve differently need to remember that all of us are no more than Christ's humble servants.

Secondly, Paul tells them that "with me it is a very small thing that I should be judged by you or by any human court" (4:3). Is Paul saying that he doesn't care about their judgment of him? No, he is saying that, compared to the judgment of God, their judgment of him is "a very small thing." We wish that everyone liked us and approved of us, but we must always remember that pleasing God is what really matters.

Clean Slate vs. Clean Conscience

Paul goes on to say what, at first look, may sound smug and self-righteous: "I do not even judge myself. I am not aware of anything against myself . . ." If he had stopped there, Paul would definitely be arrogant, but he goes on to say, "but I am not thereby acquitted. It is the Lord who judges me" (4:4). Paul is not bragging about his righteousness, but reminding us all that it is not our own judgment, but that of God that is final and foremost. A "clean" though faulty conscience is not the same as a "clean slate."

Called to be disciples of Christ, we all too often become judges of others. yet, none of us–without exception–have the qualifications to be judges of others. Put simply, it means we are not God and judgement of the souls of others belongs strictly to him. "Therefore," warns Paul, "do not pronounce judgment before the time, before the Lord comes" (4:5). Some of the Corinthians are acting as if Christ had already returned. Paul uses sarcasm here: "Already you are filled! Already you have become rich!"

Paul, however, is sarcastic for only a moment. He will persevere, not with painful words but a witness that is much more powerful: "When reviled, we bless; when persecuted, we endure; when slandered, we try to conciliate . . ." (4:13). That is the way of Christ, the only "right leader."

National Farm-City Council Launches Website

NAPERVILLE, Ill.–The National Farm-City Council announces a Website at www.farmcity.org that will be used to highlight its national activities as well as those of local and state Farm-City organizations.

"The mission of the council is to promote understanding and increase cooperation between rural and urban residents, and the Web offers us great opportunity to communicate with both of those sectors," said Council Chairman Gene Hemphill.

"The council will once again be promoting a National Farm-City event that will draw major media attention to Farm-City Week, which traditionally is the seven days leading up to and including Thanksgiving. This has been the focus of activities for the organization," he said. The group is exploring a special, nationally-publicized program in Chicago in early November. In addition to the Council, this will include a coalition of agriculturally-based organizations as well as civic and urban officials and city residents.

"We truly want to bridge farm and city,' Hemphill said.

"The typical American has become so far removed from our country's agrarian heritage that they no longer understand how intricately entwined farm-city relations are. Having the Web site provides us the opportunity to reach out across the country to increase cooperation and solidify relations between rural and urban residents," Hemphill said.

Weekly Dairy Market Outlook

By Ken Bailey
Penn State University
March 16, 2000

February Milk Production up 4.5 Percent

-January revised production up 4.9 percent

-February production per cow is up

-February cow numbers continue to grow

The U.S. dairy industry continues to defy economic logic by expanding in the face of low milk prices. USDA just released the Milk Production Report. That report shows milk production in February expanded 4 5 percent ahead of the same month a year ago, after adjusting for leap year (one extra day in February 2000) This growth is the result of more milk being produced from every cow, and more milking cows on farms

The statistics for February were not encouraging to the dairy industry since it indicates low milk prices will continue. The "market place" has no incentive to raise milk prices via higher cheese prices until supply becomes realigned with demand. And that realignment process will have to begin with a reduction in cow numbers and milk supply.

Milk production in February for 20 major dairy states totaled 11.7 billion pounds, up 8.2 percent from the same month a year ago. Adjusting milk production for an extra day for leap year, February milk production was actually up 4.5 percent on a per day basis.

Production per cow in 20 major dairy states averaged 1,505 pounds in February, up 101 pounds from a year ago (without any adjustments for leap year).

Cow numbers on farms in February for 20 major states was 7.77 million head, 72,000 head more than February 1999 and 3,000 head more than January 2000.

USDA also revised January milk production. It was at 12.3 billion pounds and was up 4.9 percent relative to January 1999.

I computed the growth in the milk supply in February for the top 20 dairy states. First I calculated the daily average milk production. I used 28 days in 1999 and 29 days in 2000. I then computed the growth rate using the daily average milk production in 1999 and 2000

Pennsylvania milk production grew 3.9 percent.

Milk production in February grew the most in the following states: Idaho (13.9 percent), New Mexico (10.5 percent), California (9.8 percent), Indiana (6.4 percent), and Michigan (6.0 percent). Growth in the latter two states was a bit of a surprise. Indiana has been gearing up with two large dairy farms. Their milk supply appears to be having an impact on that states rate of growth.

Milk production in February grew the least in the following states: New York (-0.1 percent), Florida (0.1 percent), Missouri and Vermont (0.2 percent), Kentucky and Washington (0.9 percent), and Wisconsin (1.0 percent).

Oklahoma City Feeder Cattle

Oklahoma City, OK
Wed Mar 15, 2000
USDA-OK Dept Ag Market News
Oklahoma National Stockyards - Weekly Cattle Summary

Compared to last week: Feeder steers steady to 1.00 lower, except 9 weights 2.00 lower. Feeder heifers steady. Demand only moderate for feeders despite last week's 2.00 upward move in fat cattle along with continued strength in cut-out values. Weakness in feeder cattle a function of discounted summer CME slaughter cattle values. Stocker cattle and calves 1.00-2.00 higher. Demand extremely good for grazing cattle with most in medium to mostly thin conditions. Quality mostly average. Feeder cattle conditions were highly varied in flesh and weigh-ups. Flesh conditions slightly thin to fleshy and weigh-ups of gaunt to average, some full. Slaughter cows 2.00-2.50 higher. Slaughter bulls 3.00 higher. Packer demand good. Demand continues very good for cows, including aged cows, returning to the country leaving packers to struggle for numbers. Cows and bulls totaled 545 head with 40 percent to packers. Receipts this week 10,400; last week 12,456; last year 5,609. Supply consisted of 80 percent yearlings over 600 lbs; 15 percent calves and light yearlings under 600 lbs; 5 percent cows and bulls. Heifers comprised 35 percent of feeder and calf supply. Prices follow with weighted average weight and price in parenthesis.

SEINE and FUEGO* TALL FESCUE

- New forage tall fescues with softer, narrower leaves
- Endophyte free with good palatability
- Very good drought tolerance
- Excellent for late season stockpiling
- Sugar content increases after frost
- Top 2 varieties for 1998 in Penn State Trails
- Possibly the highest producing grass available.

ORION* ORCHARDGRASS
"THE ORCHARDGRASS THAT FITS"

- Orion is well suited for mixing with alfalfa.
- Among the latest maturing orchardgrass available.
- One week later than Pennlate.
- Produces grass with higher digestibility than other varieties of orchardgrass.
- Resistant to stem and leaf rust.
- Widely adaptive and very winter hardy.

AUBISQUE* PERENNIAL RYEGRASS

- Medium maturity perennial ryegrass.
- High sugar content grass.
- Tetraploid perennial ryegrass is the most digestible cool season grass.
- Aubisque was the highest yielding ryegrass in Penn State trials at Rock Springs in 1996.
- Good crown rust resistance.
- Very good tiller density & winter hardiness.

URBANA* ITALIAN RYEGRASS
"ONE MORE YEAR"

- Rapid establishment, growth and regrowth.
- Excellent for over-seeding existing pasture & hay fields to extend production for "one more year."
- Produces a highly digestible forage.
- Good for a high yield, one year hay/pasture field.
- Italian type acts like a biennial.
- Exhibits good disease resistance.

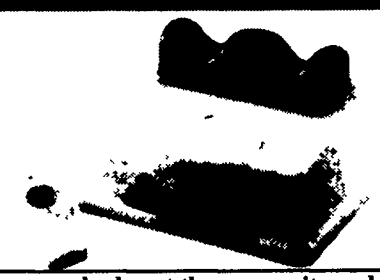
"In only three weeks of using the Chi Machine, I lost 15 pounds effortlessly - and hospital lab tests showed that my blood cholesterol level dropped from 225 to 160 mg"

Introducing
The Chi Machine
The Sun Harmony Aerobic Exerciser

It does the work - You get the aerobic benefits.



How do I use my Chi Machine?
* Place the machine on a rug Lie on your back and put your ankles in the grooves of the footrest on top of the machine
* Set the timer switch to activate the machine for the number of minutes you desire First time users should start with 2-5 minutes
* The footrest will begin to move back and forth, carrying your feet briskly from side to side This movement will carry up through your legs and torso, throughout your entire body, causing you to wiggle back and forth - that's right like a fish swimming in water
* All you do now is relax and breathe deeply, letting the machine rock you gently but firmly for a maximum of 15 minutes
* When the time is up and the machine stops, remain lying down for another two to five minutes, relaxing and breathing deeply, enjoying the remarkable afterglow - chi - as it moves throughout your body

"In two months of using the Chi Machine, my thighs, hips, stomach and buttocks now look as good as they did when I was in my 20's - and I'm almost 52"

A totally unique device which promotes the body's own natural absorption of oxygen.

100% satisfaction guaranteed!

Does your body get the oxygen it needs?
(Adapted from a quiz by Dr Eiji Noguchi)
Check all the boxes which apply to you -
- ☐ I wake up tired, even after eight hours of sleep
- ☐ I sleep restlessly, waking up frequently
- ☐ I suffer from chronic fatigue
- ☐ I have poor physical endurance
- ☐ I tend to be moody and irritable
- ☐ I am susceptible to colds and flu
- ☐ I suffer from allergies
- ☐ I frequently feel tense and on edge
- ☐ I am frequently constipated
- ☐ I have frequent pain in my shoulder and/or back
- ☐ I have weight problems
- ☐ I crave sweets, alcohol or soda

If you checked more than three boxes, your body might not be assimilating sufficient oxygen. Please consult your physician You may wish to have your blood oxygen levels tested - before and after you begin to use the Chi Machine.

$3.1B in Farm Subsidies Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP)–The Clinton administration is proposing new farm subsidies that would take effect when commodity prices are low.

The "supplemental income" payments, estimated to cost taxpayers $3.1 billion this year, would vary in size according to fluctuations in crop revenue. They are meant to substitute for emergency subsidies that Congress has made the past two years to compensate growers for a collapse in exports and commodity prices.

Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman said the program would "strengthen the farm safety net" until Congress rewrites existing farm policy in 2002.

"Payments will increase when times are the toughest and will taper off when prices rebound," Glickman said in a conference call Friday with farm broadcasters.

The administration's proposal, which is similar to an idea offered last year by Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Texas, is certain to run into opposition from many producers and lawmakers because of the limits on the payments.

The payments would be pegged to the average gross income nationally over the past five years for eight major crops–corn, wheat, cotton, rice, soybeans, sorghum, oats and barley–and would be capped at $30,000 per operation. Most farmers would get far less than that because their annual "market-transition" payments, the fixed subsidies they receive under the 1996 law, would count toward the $30,000 limit.

Some 1.3 million farmers currently receive market transition payments, and 200,000 get at least $10,000 a year. Of those, 30,000 receive more than $30,000.

"The size of an operation doesn't necessarily limit the difficulty that anybody has financially," said Dick Newpher, chief lobbyist for the American Farm Bureau Federation, the nation's largest farm group. "We would like to help all of agriculture."

But John Schnittker Sr., a private consultant and former Agriculture Department economist, said that capping the payments "is the right thing to do, both from the fiscal standpoint, to avoid runaway costs, and from the standpoint of getting most of the money to relatively modest-size farmers."

The program would fix what the Clinton administration and some producer groups see as a major flaw in the 1996 farm law, which scaled back income-based farm subsidies, ended controls on planting and gave farmers a series of fixed annual payments. Critics say the fixed payments

Seminar Evaluates Importance Of Poultry Immunity

Mashaly noted a special blood test which measures the H/L ratio (the ratio of heterophils and lymphocytes) as a barometer of chronic stress.

The H/L ratio is a "reliable way to measure stress in birds," he told more than two dozen poultry house managers and agri-industry representatives at the seminar.

Measuring the H/L ratio is a "very easy test you can do to determine if the individual is under stress," said Mashaly. The ratio is used widely for immunologists to examine stress.

The ratio is higher with broilers or layers under stress. It can indicate heat, humidity, ammonia exposure, hormones, and nonspecific causes of overall stress.

A normal H/L reading is .3. When the H/L ratio reaches 1, "you have a problem," said Mashaly.

The word "immune" comes from the Latin word meaning "safe." The immune system, similar across species, even humans, makes us "become safe," Mashaly said. "It protects us."

The system reacts when foreign substances, called antigens, invade the body. The system reacts against "non-self" substances in the body, not against itself. If there are reactions against the self, those are called "autoimmune" responses.

The substance, or antigen, responsible for the immune response can be soluble material such as proteins on the surface of an invading cell.

Two different kinds of acquired immunity are active and passive. With active immunity, the body has to "do something," said Mashaly. With passive immunity, the body does not have to do anything to protect itself. An example of passive immunity is something received innately, such as maternal immunity from mother's milk for mammals or yolk for poultry.

Active immunity occurs when an individual is exposed to foreign material. Being exposed to the substances can be natural, with antigens in the environment around us, and artificially through vaccination.

With vaccination, either live or killed virus can be used. Both can have the same effect.

Passive immunity is only short-term immunity.

Sources of immunity include primary or central lymphoid organs, or glands, which secrete hormones. In chickens, there are two major central organs, including the bursa of Fabricius (present only in avian species) and the thymus (present in poultry and mammalian species).

The bursa produces B-lymphocytes. The bursa develops at four days of incubation but disappears after a time. The thymus is responsible for cell-mediated immunity, producing T-(for thymus)lymphocytes.

The T-cells can migrate to secondary organs, including the spleen, lymph nodes, cecal tonsil, Hardian gland, bone marrow, the peyeris patches (along the intestine), and the pineal gland. Removal of those organs does not severely impair the immune response, according to Mashaly.

A complicated process allows the body to produce organisms that can "present" the antigens for processing. Other types of cells are generated in the process to rid the body of dangerous antigens.

When vaccinating, the body is exposed to antigens that cause this immune response, which can last for a few hours to a few days. The first time a vaccination takes place, there is a response. But it's the important response later, the secondary or anamnestic (Greek for "recollection') response, which creates a rapid rise in antibodies, which provides stronger and longer reaction.

The T-cells generated serve a variety of functions. There are T-helper, T-suppressor, T-cytotoxic, and Natural Killer, or NK cells. NK cells are involved in the destruction of tumors in the body.

Cell-mediated reactions protect against bacterial, virus, and virus- infected cells, and protect against foreign tissue grafting and tumor cells. Allergic responses are an immune response, of sorts.

Mashaly believes that perhaps the female has a better immune response, that the environment plays a key role in determining that response, and that hormones generated because of stress (ACTH or corticosterone) can change the H/L ratio. Diet and nutrition are critical factors to boost immunity, including energy and protein, proper vitamins (A, C, E, and B) with minerals, and genetic factors are especially critical to birds "when they are under stress," he said.

Dr. Magdi M. Mashaly, associate professor of poultry science at Penn State, left, not only provided an overview of the workings of the immune system in birds, but pointed out the importance of measuring stress — a barometer for the prevalence of disease and a tool to use to boost the immune system. At right is John Schwartz, Lancaster County extension director.

"Vitamins are very important as antioxidants," he said.

Mashaly pointed to the following strategies to use immunity to control disease:

- Reduce the level of exposure through biosecurity.
- Reduce overall bird stress (give proper feed, water, and housing).
- Chemotherapy, or using chemicals to boost or improve immunity, can work but are costly.
- Vaccination. It's the best as far as giving protection, he noted. But it only protects against a specific disease. The result will be to get rid of the foreign substance, or antigen, causing the disease.

But Mashaly cautioned that the use of too many vaccines too often has raised issues regarding resistance. Also, the vaccines also play a part — yet completely undetermined — in how human immunity is affected, after humans eat poultry. Overmedicating can be no replacement for good, overall health management of birds.

Also Mashaly believes that poultry DNA mapping will provide insights into the use of bird genetics to protect birds from disease. Some of that research can be carried over, eventually, to helping humans control disease.

Temporary Increase Added

that is sold as Class I milk in Pennsylvania, PMMB expects the added premium will influence other premiums.

"Since we passed on the premium to a good portion of dairy producers, it will encourage other markets to pay more premiums for milk," said Luke Brubaker, a member of the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board and a dairy farmer in Mt. Joy. "It isn't going to be a total help for everyone, but it is significant assistance in a time with profits are low to nothing or even less."

According to Brubaker, PMMB wanted the increase to be enough to help farmers but not too much that it would flood Pennsylvania's market with outside milk.

"If we increased the premium too much, then processors could purchase milk from outside the state and transport it into Pennsylvania for a cheaper price than they could buy it from Pennsylvania dairy farmers," said Brubaker. "In general, though, processors like to patronize Pennsylvania dairy farmers because it helps to sustain the industry."

PMMB has established an order that calls for the temporary increase. The increase is designed to alleviate from the farmer some of the burden of rising diesel fuel prices and low milk prices.

The order calls for the temporary increase to be extended for two months past the point when diesel fuel prices fall back down to the November 1999 average, which was $1.37 a gallon. The two-month extension was established to help cover some of the farmer's costs incurred during the months of February and March, when fuel prices began to rise.

The temporary increase in the over-order premium resulted from a March 2 emergency hearing held by PMMB. Several farmer, processor, and consumer representatives testified during the hearing.

According to Brubaker, even though the temporary increase will cause about a four-cent increase in the price per gallon at the store, consumers at the hearing were in favor of the increase as long as they knew it would help Pennsylvania's dairy farmers. PMMB has even received several letters from consumers asking for the temporary increase to support the dairy farmers.

Dairy farmers in Pennsylvania are fortunate to have the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board regulating the milk price in stores. Since December 1999, over-order premiums mandated by PMMB have generated an additional $194,752,000 to Pennsylvania dairy farmers.

The Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board is an independent agency that has three representatives on the Board and a small staff. The representatives on the board include one farmer, one farmer/processor, and one consumer.

"When the price of milk to the farmer decreases, the price in the store goes down almost simultaneously, thanks to PMMB," said Brubaker. "It is our job to see that the farmer receives his fair share of his labors."

According to Brubaker, the dairy industry is the biggest agriculture industry in Pennsylvania. It is very viable to the infrastructure of Pennsylvania's economy. PMMB helps sustain the dairy industry.

"99 percent of stores in Pennsylvania sell their milk at the minimum state price mandated by PMMB," said Brubaker. "The farm price is the trigger price that affects all milk prices. When the producers lose money on the milk price, the processor and store retailer also lose profits."

"It is to the farmers' advantage because of how quickly store and processor prices respond to low milk prices," said Brubaker.

Although PMMB does not expect it to save every dairy farmer from lost profits, the board does hope the temporary increase will help sustain the dairy industry in Pennsylvania.

"Not every farmer is going to received same mailbox because of administration costs and premiums," said Brubaker. "And not everyone is going to have the same economics as his neighbor because of input costs and debt load. Overall, the industry has been very receptive to what we're doing because it help keeps the dairy industry alive in Pennsylvania."

Dairyman to Dairyman

Question: What does it mean when we see an up and down trend in our MUN test from one month to the next?

During the past few months, I attended more than two-dozen meetings where this same question was asked. I am certain that sometimes a change in the MUN levels of the herd is due to dietary differences that occur as we move downward in our silos. This year a number of dairies are also seeing this effect due to shortages of feeds like high moisture corn. Changing to dry corn can impact MUN quite suddenly. Most dairymen recognize changes during a feeding period and can usually adjust for these by matching them up with the MUN story that the cows tell. What goes on when we are sure that no feed changes have taken place and yet we see significant movement in MUN?

Often we need to look beyond what we do to "how" we do it. When this question is asked, we need to talk about how we do things in our feed management. The huge swing to AM-PM testing programs in past years, due to economic concerns, has sent us a message about how we feed our cows. In 1995, MUN testing was started in PA DHIA and another message was sent. If we choose to listen to our cows we can come to some eye-opening conclusions.

Now it is my turn to ask the questions. Do we feed a TMR? Is anything fed outside of the TMR? What is the moisture of the TMR? When feeding components, what is the sequence? Are the cows fed the same during the night as in the day? What is the refusal rate of feeding? If you have not noticed, all these questions address the "how" that goes into our feeding programs. Most of the time, when MUN is higher one month and lower the next in a continuing pattern, we are witnessing our cows' evaluation of how we feed them. In this particular herd the feed program went like this:

- PMR (partially mixed ration) fed during the day
- Top dress grain used on high producers
- Hay fed during the night

When we look at the diet as a whole, we see a well-planned and balanced diet. When we look at the different diets fed during the day and then those fed at night we see that they are very different. From the MUN numbers, we see that every other month the cows are below the 10 to 14 range that we would like to see. The next month they are right in the middle of that range. Our cows are telling us that half the day they simply run out of gas. If we use MUN values to guide us, then we may want to change "how" to include a plan that delivers a more equal flow of nutrients both day and night. We can do this in ways that do not increase labor costs. Certainly feeding closer to a true TMR would be desirable, but not always practical. What if we fed part of the hay during the day and supplied our cows with some of the PMR just before we leave the barn for the night? I think we should consider this.

Covering every scenario would be time consuming and would not serve any purpose. Each time I am asked to address this problem of up and down MUN values each month, the same answer surfaces. The cows are telling us that the "how" part of our feeding program needs to be changed until MUN becomes more consistent. For those dairymen that test 2x, you will not have the advantage of your cows telling you as directly that feed nutrients do not flow evenly during the day. We may learn from others if it is likely. At PA DHIA we are committed to using records to help you manage your herd. If MUN is confusing, or you want a second opinion, call me to set up an appointment for your free MUN consult.

Average Farm Feed Costs for Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's last week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania.

Remember, these are averages, so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

New Regulations For Ohio Agriculture Not Part Of EPA Proposal

COLUMBUS, Ohio–The Environmental Protection Agency's plan to clean up America's waterways, which includes reducing pollution from farms, should not establish new nonpoint pollution regulations in Ohio beyond those that currently exist, said Brent Sohngen, Ohio State University Extension natural resource and environmental economics specialist.

Instead, the plan will help environmental and regulatory agencies better target funds for voluntary incentive payment programs. The incentive programs encourage farmers to adopt best management practices that reduce potential water pollutants coming from farmland, Sohngen said.

"And, with continued monitoring, agencies will be better equipped to monitor the effectiveness of these voluntary programs," he said.

The EPA strategy, announced in August, calls for states to submit plans within 15 years to clean up every waterway that fails to meet water-quality standards. The agency estimates there are more than 20,000 streams and lakes nationwide that fall into this category.

U.S. Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman told the Senate Agriculture Committee on Feb. 23 that the impact of the proposed plan on farmers needs to be clarified.

In Ohio, what is clear is that the strategy will provide more information than currently exists on the contribution of nonpoint sources, such as farm operations, to the total pollution in Ohio waterbodies, Sohngen said.

"This may show that agriculture contributes a large or small share of the pollution to waterbodies, depending on the particular place," Sohngen said.

The strategy requires states to deelop Total Maximum Daily Load (TMDL) plans for waterbody segments–rivers, lakes and streams–that are not meeting existing standards for biological, habitat, sediment and chemical quality of surface waters. The Ohio EPA has divided the water of Ohio into approximately 5,000 waterbody segments. Of these, 881 are not meeting existing water-quality standards and require TMDL development.

TMDLs involve collecting information in waterbodies to determine total point and nonpoint source pollution loads. Loads are the quantity of pollution contributed to a stream by a single point–such as a discharge pipe from a wastewater treatment plant–or a group of nonpoint sources–such as runoff from farms, lawns or construction sites. The collected information can then be used to set maximum loads from each of these sources that can be permitted and still meet water-quality standards, Sohngen said.

Pollution load data already exists for most point sources of pollution under the National Pollutant Discharge Elimination System (NPDES) permitting process. The new initiative calls for development of similar load calculations for nonpoint sources of pollution. It will calculate loads that occur naturally, calculate maximum total loads from all sources and determine how to reduce maximum loads in trouble areas in order to meet water-quality standards, he said.

In Ohio, four subgroups of an Ohio EPA External Advisory Group are helping develop the TMDL process. One subgroup is looking at current water quality monitoring methods and how they fit into the TMDL process. Traditionally, EPA tests water quality every five years on a basin level. A basin consists of all the land drained by a river and its branches. TMDL will require much more focused testing, Sohngen said.

A second subgroup is looking at pollution flow models as a potential way of determining TMDLs versus actual data collection. Another group is prioritizing which of the 881 waterbodies in Ohio currently not meeting water-quality standards should be targeted for improvement efforts first.

Sohngen is part of a fourth subgroup that is considering how to implement incentive programs, regulations or other methods to improve water quality in areas currently not meeting standards.

"From what I've observed, most people want to focus on effective, voluntary incentive payment programs as the first method to reduce agricultural nonpoint source pollution," Sohngen said. "But if that doesn't work, and nonpoint sources are not making good-faith efforts to improve water quality, then government regulations may become necessary to bring nonpoint sources to the bargaining table."

The unregulated, nonpoint community does not want to see regulations, but they are sensitive to the notion they need to make efforts to reduce pollution, Sohngen said. So, the question that arises is what constitutes a feasible good-faith effort that everyone can live with.

Possible voluntary efforts farmers could implement include improved manure management plans, reduced nutrient applications, conversion to conservation tillage to reduce sediment runoff, and installation of vegetative filter strips along streams to absorb sediment, nutrients or other potential water pollutants that could wash from farm fields.

Large farms classified as Concentrated Animal Feeding Operations, which currently require a permit to be installed and may eventually be classified as point sources of pollution if other regulatory efforts under way in the state are passed, could be more susceptible to TMDL pollution restrictions, Sohngen said.

Several factors will influence the potential impact of the TMDL plans. One goal of the TMDL process is to target problem areas and direct financial resources toward them. That means incentive programs will not be spread equally across the state, he said.

There are three main government agencies that give financial incentives for agricultural environmental programs in Ohio: the Ohio EPA, the U.S. Department of Agriculture Natural Resource Conservation Service and the Ohio Department of Natural Resources. Only the Ohio EPA has TMDL efforts written into their directives.

"One key for this program to have an impact will be for these three agencies to work together to focus on TMDL priorities," Sohngen said.

Increased funding for farmer-implemented environmental incentive programs would be helpful, and Sohngen thinks the next Farm Bill will do that.

Finally, incentive programs can be made more effective by focusing on actual improvements in water quality in addition to implementing environmental measures on a farm, he said.

"Currently farmers are given money to install things like filter strips, manure lagoons and other structures. But it's not enough just to put these things in. You have to make sure there are no spills from the lagoons or that the filter strips are in the right spot to have the largest effect," Sohngen said. "Perhaps farmers should be given some performance criteria and offered an extra payment if water quality improves in two or three years."

The TMDL process is already under way in Ohio. Five TMDL plans are to be completed by the end of the year, and four additional plans are to be completed in 2001.

"The most important part of TMDLs is to be able to collect enough data to determine where the pollution is coming from–either point or nonpoint sources–and be able to focus resources on the impacted area or areas," Sohngen said. "If we can do that, we can design some programs that will really make a difference."

For more information on TMDLs, people can read the Total Maximum Daily Load (TMDLs) AE-7-99 fact sheet available on Ohio State University Extension's Ohioline Website http://ohioline.ag.ohio-state.edu/ae-fact/0007.html. The fact sheet is also available at county offices of Ohio State University Extension.

Maryland Brown Swiss Breeders To Meet

FREDERICK, Md.–The Annual Meeting of the Maryland Brown Swiss Breeders Association will be held on Saturday, March 25, 2000 at the St. John's Lutheran Church Parish Hall in Creagerstown, just north of Frederick, Maryland, at 7:00 p.m.

This meeting recognizes and awards the breeders and youth for their past year accomplishments and achievements with Brown Swiss on a local, state, and national level. The business meeting and program will follow the meal. This year's guest will be Jocelyne Askins, Regional Vice-President, Financial Analyst for Primerica, who will discuss and review investments for the association.

Production awards and Bellringers will also highlight the program. There will also be an update on Brown Swiss 2000, which is being held in conjunction with World Dairy Expo in Madison, Wisconsin. This will be the 6th World Conference of Brown Swiss breeders from around the world, and being hosted by the United States on October 4-8, 2000. This is going to be a great conference for the Brown Swiss breed, so make plans early to attend. There will also be an election of officers for the Maryland Brown Swiss Association. There are a lot of important activities going on in the Maryland Association–so plan to attend and participate to keep Maryland a No. 1 Brown Swiss Association.

Denise Valentine and her committee have organized the Banquet and meal for this year's annual meeting, with notices already mailed to the membership with menu and costs for adults and children. The deadline response is necessary by Saturday, March 18 for seating–so please don't delay, and respond as soon as possible to Denise Valentine, 16901 Bollinger School Road, Emmitsburg, MD 21727–or call at 301-447-6816. Mark your calendar now for Saturday, March 25, 2000, 7:00 p.m. at the St. John's Lutheran Parish Hall, Creagerstown, Md.

Directions from Frederick–take Rt. 15 North to a right onto Old Frederick Road. Proceed to Creagerstown. At stop sign-continue straight for a short distance to intersection at top of hill in town. Turn left here which is Black's Mill Road. Parish Hall is directly across from St. John's Church. From the North–take Rt. 15 South to the Emmitsburg area. Turn left onto Old Frederick Road, and proceed straight until you reach the third stop sign. Turn left and go ½ mile to a right onto Black's Mill Road. Continue as above.

Producers at Land O'Lakes Identify Key Policy Issues

ARDEN HILLS, Minn.–Global trade policies that create a level playing field. Science-based food safety and environmental standards. The establishment of an effective farm income safety net. U.S. farm leaders selected these as agriculture's most pressing policy issues in a survey conducted at Land O'Lakes recent annual meeting in Minneapolis. Delegates attending the meeting represented more than 300,000 producers from 30 states.

"We asked producers at our Annual Meeting to rate the importance of a number of key policy issues on a scale of zero to five; zero representing not important at all, five representing extremely important," Land O'Lakes Director of Governmental Relations Steven Krikava explained. "Global trade policies, science-based food safety and environmental standards and an effective farm income safety net were the top four issues, all scoring 4 or higher.

"The survey results show that producers understand the growing importance of global trade," Krikava said. "They're also concerned that new technology and biotechnology be evaluated based on science, rather than fear or emotion.

"Given the impact of current market volatility on farm income, it also is not surprising to see a high level of support for an effective farm income safety net," he continued. "And, considering the diverse nature of Land O'Lakes membership, it's clear the concern with farm income stabilization includes grain, livestock and dairy producers."

The full survey rankings were (listed as issue with rating) Global trade policies that create a level playing field, 4.5; adoption of science-based food safety standards on a global basis, 4.2; implementation of science-based environmental standards, 4.1; establishment of an effective farm income stabilization program (safety net), 4.0; streamlining of environmental regulations, 3.9; federal funding for export incentive programs, 3.7; Federal programs designed to assist young producers, 3.7; expansion of rural economic development programs, 3.6; crop insurance reform, 3.5; federal programs to assist in the development of agribusiness, 3.3.

Krikava added that the Land O'Lakes Policies and Resolutions Committee dealt with all the issues identified in the survey. Delegates at the annual meeting approved a detailed set of resolutions and policy statements.

"These policies and resolutions provide the direction for Land O'Lakes governmental activity. They are very focused on the issues that affect farmers, cooperatives and Land O'Lakes," he said, using the survey's number-one issue, global trade policies, as an example.

"In our trade resolution, the delegates established clear priorities for our cooperative," Krikava said. "By their action, Land O'Lakes is strongly in favor of permanent Normal Trade relations with China."

This is needed to fully implement the terms of the U.S./ China trade agreement signed last year, he said.

"The delegates urged U.S. trade negotiators to pursue four major priorities for agriculture," Krikava said. "They called for the elimination of export subsidies, trade-distorting internal support programs, and nontariff trade barriers. And they supported the adoption of global, science-based standards as they relate to food and agricultural products . . . including biotechnology products and GMOs."

For a complete copy of Land O'Lakes 2000 Policies and Resolutions, contact Steven Krikava, Land O'Lakes Director of Governmental Relations, at (651) 481-2269 or skrik@landolakes.com.

Chambersburg Farmer Profits From Raising Heifers

JAYNE SEBRIGHT
Lancaster Farming Staff

CHAMBERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — Tim Saber of Sunnybrook Ag Resources in Chambersburg knows how to stay in the dairy business without actually milking cows. He raises 300 to 400 heifers each year and then leases them to area dairy producers as cows.

Currently Saber has more than 600 cows leased out to dairy producers throughout Pennsylvania, Maryland, and New York. He started raising heifers and leasing his cows about five years after his family decided to stop milking cows in 1989.

"We tried raising beef animals for about five years," said Saber. "But we didn't find it very profitable, so we switched to heifer raising."

Saber is in partnership with his two uncles who own the 400-acre farm and facilities where he farms. Their farm is located right in the heart of Chambersburg. Saber is responsible for managing the operation, while his uncles have a trucking, warehousing, and transportation business.

"Since our farm is located inside the Chambersburg borough, we are faced with development pressure," said Saber. "We've sold off about 50 acres for development. Some of it has gone to build a new church, another portion to build an addition to the hospital, and some for housing development. I get to farm with what acreage is left."

According to Saber, Sunnybrook Ag Resources is willing to work around the developments building up beside them.

"I do deal with odor issues," said Saber. "When a neighboring farm is hauling manure, I get blamed for the smell because our farm is the only one in the borough."

However, the biggest problem Saber has with development is the trash that contractors let behind when they're building new properties. Someone can look out over Saber's fields and find drainage pipe, paper trash, and other development byproducts scattered around.

"Another problem is that some of the people who rent the neighboring farms are against Sunnybrook's development," said Saber. "It is a shame that you can't do what you want to do."

Saber did what he wanted to do when he started his heifer raising business about five years ago.

"We got out of the dairy business after several long-time employees retired," said Saber. "We had trouble finding reliable help to replace them, especially since there are so many non-farm employment opportunities in Chambersburg."

Saber knew he didn't have the financial ability to put up a new facility and start dairying again. "We had the facilities to profit at something without putting out a pile of money or needing a huge amount of labor," said Saber.

Today Saber only has one full-time employee, Joe Cooley, helping him on the farm. Cooley has worked for Sunnybrook for more than 25 years.

"It is easier to do what I am doing now than it is to milk cows," said Saber.

Saber purchases newborn calves from the Greencastle Livestock Auction or from neighboring farmers, and then raises them to freshening age.

Then he leases them out to area farmers. The farmers have the option of keeping the heifer calves or returning the calves to Saber depending on their agreement.

"It is better for the dairyman to lease animals from me than to buy animals," said Saber. "You can pay the deposit for leasing six animals with what it costs to buy one."

After Saber receives the deposit, the farmer and he enter into a three-year lease. The farmer pays Saber a monthly fee based on the current milk price. At the end of the three-year period, there is also a small buyout price.

In the contract, Saber agrees to replace any animals that are lost due to transition problems. For instance, if a cow is lost due to significant calving problems, then Saber will replace the animals. However, if the cow develops mastitis or has other problems farther into the lease period, the farmer is required to replace the animal.

Saber starts his calves on a 20/20 all-milk milk replacer and then keeps them on Pennfield's heifer grower plan. The calves receive a Four-Once vaccination and receive a booster 14 days later. They also receive an annual Nine-Way vaccine.

Once the calves reach six months, Saber starts them on a total mixed ration formulated for 19 percent protein. The ration is made up of 85 percent forage with corn silage, barleyage, and baled grass hay.

Saber breeds his animals at 15 months so that they're large when they go out on lease.

"I don't believe in calving ease bulls," said Saber. "I make sure the heifers are plenty big to handle full-sized calves."

Saber and Cooley handle most of the routine health practices and only get the veterinarian in for brucellosis testing and pregnancy checks.

Raising 300 to 400 heifers a year, Saber said he only loses three animals per year, which brings his mortality rate to one percent.

Saber raises corn, soybeans, grass hays, and winter grains on the farm's 400 acres. Last year he also harvested 60 acres of rye for a neighboring dairyman.

This year Saber purchased a self-propelled sprayer and is hoping to recoup some of the cost by doing custom spray application.

Saber is a founding member of the Professional Dairy Heifer Growers Association. PDHGA is an International group that host meetings on the latest innovations in heifer raising.

Saber is heading out to the annual convention in St. Louis, Missouri, on March 22 - 25. He is also on the planning committee for the northeast meeting scheduled for November in Akron, Ohio.

"The organization has been very helpful in advising me in my heifer raising practices," said Saber. "The members who belong to PDHGA are a quality group of people. We can share ideas and experiences from our operations."

Saber offers the following advice to farmers who are raising heifers for themselves or other dairy producers.

"Make sure you can feed a total mixed ration so that the heifers get the right balance of nutrients," said Saber. "Also, you don't want too many sources for your calves. Make sure you screen your customers because if one farm brings in sick calves, then they're all sick."

"Maintain a good vaccination program," said Saber. "And don't limit yourself to just Holsteins. I raised some Jerseys last year, and they adjusted well to my operation."

Saber feeds his heifers a total mixed ration to make sure that they get the right nutrients to grow into productive cows. He wants his animals on the large side when they go out to be leased.

Horse Farms Open House

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.)–A dozen professional stables in the southeastern quadrant of Pennsylvania will open their doors to the public for the seventh annual Pennsylvania Horse Farms Open House Saturday and Sunday, April 8-9.

The Open House is a chance for both active and would-be equestrians to visit a variety of Pennsylvania's professional horse farms, to learn about various breeds and styles of riding, about raising, caring for and training horses, and to explore the many opportunities for getting involved with horses right in their own backyards.

The event, produced by Pennsylvania Equestrian and sponsored by Cargill Nutrena Feeds, is free and self-guided, and individuals travel from stable to stable in their own vehicles. The farms are open to visitors from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. Saturday and noon-4 p.m. Sunday.

Again this year a number of stables will invite visitors to take a sample riding lesson, trail ride, or pony ride.

In addition to riding a horse, visitors to the open house can visit a petting zoo, audit a dressage clinic conducted by a nationally-known trainer and author, and watch a quadrille (four riders performing in unison). Demonstrations of the latest horseshoeing and round pen training techniques will be conducted, along with sessions on saddle fitting, genetics, showmanship, natural horsemanship, and foal imprinting.

Visitors can take a break from the horses and enjoy bagpipe music, a Native American dance troupe, and dog obedience and clicker training demonstrations. Nearly every farm will offer refreshments, and a number will have vendors onsite for visitors who want to do a little shopping.

Many stables will have young foals to enjoy. Visitors will be able to view horses offered for sale and stallions available for breeding. One farm will even invite visitors to line dance with their Paint stallion.

Breeds of horses range from popular thoroughbreds, paints, and quarter horses to the more unusual American Miniature horses, Clydesdales, Percherons, and European warmbloods.

Complete information on the farms, including maps and directions, will be featured in the March/April issue of Pennsylvania Equestrian, a bimonthly newspaper for and about Pennsylvania's horse industry, and on the world wide web at www.horseshow.com.

The Open House is free. For more information, call (717) 898-5874.

The following stables are among those who will participate in the 2000 Horse Farms Open House.

ADADC Mid East Board

COLUMBUS, Ohio–The American Dairy Association & Dairy Council Mid East board of trustees elected its 2000 officers.

Re-elected for a second term, Paul Broering, from St. Henry in Mercer County, Ohio, will continue as president in 2000. "It is an honor to be elected again to serve my fellow dairy farmers and represent their best interests in the area of dairy promotion," Broering says. "The check-off program strives to increase the demand for dairy products–and it's doing just that. Last year, total milk sales increased 3.1 percent!"

Newly elected officers include Merle Chaplin, Moundsville, W.Va., vice president; and Connie Finton, New Philadelphia, Ohio, secretary. Also returning for another term as treasurer is Alice Moore, Frazeysburg, Ohio. All officers have been elected to serve one-year terms.

Pa. Tobacco Growers May Have Market In Md.

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — Perhaps the tobacco growing season, at least for next year, can be redeemed.

While reeling prices have put some tobacco planting intentions on hold for regional growers, there's a possibility that Pennsylvania-grown tobacco could find a home in Maryland, which has experienced better prices.

Tobacco sold in Maryland auctions has to be inspected and approved through a testing process that ensures nitrogen and alkaloid levels are low. Because of Pennsylvania's heavier soils, which retain nutrients that can appear at higher levels in Pennsylvania-grown tobacco, tobacco may not suit buyers who come into the Maryland markets.

According to Raymond Guy, manager of Farmer's Warehouse in Hughesville, Md. (about 50 miles south of Washington, D.C.), the five buyers who purchase Maryland-grown tobacco at the auction would have to be interested in tobacco from Pennsylvania. He said many Pennsylvania farmers have asked about the opportunities to sell Pennsylvania tobacco at the auction, and the auction is working to see if buyers would be interested.

If buyers were, the tobacco would have to be specially labeled out of state, tested, and paperwork would have to assure the tobacco meets special criteria.

The Maryland auction, one of two auctions housing Maryland-grown tobacco, makes up about 28 percent of the tobacco sold in Maryland, noted Guy. The tobacco is tested by the University of Maryland for alkaloids, nitrogen, and other factors. The buyers look toward these tests to ensure the quality of tobacco.

"A lot of our European buyers can tell what we got," said Guy. "They know what they're buying."

The buyers are from Switzerland, Germany, and Italy.

Maryland-grown tobacco tests lower in nitrogen and alkaloids, probably because of the light, gravelly, sandy soils with no manure applications, noted Dennis Hess, manager of the Pennsylvania Tobacco Marketing Association Auction in New Holland. Pennsylvania-grown tobacco soils are heavier and retain chemicals in them for "years," he said.

Hess said that recently about five different Pennsylvania farmers submitted Maryland 609 samples to David Conrad at the Maryland Department of Agriculture to check to see if the samples meet potential Maryland auction buyer requirements.

Some growers in Pennsylvania believe their tobacco could meet Maryland requirements.

If so, the idea of marketing Pennsylvania-grown, Maryland-type tobacco in Maryland could improve some prices for tobacco growers in southeast Pennsylvania.

Occasionally, Maryland tobacco at the Maryland auctions sells for as high as $1.80 a pound, Hess noted.

Maryland auctions operate beginning next week and continue with 15 sales well into April.

"If we can work on getting tests more in line, maybe we can market this tobacco to buyers in Maryland," said Hess.

A meeting of the Pennsylvania Tobacco Marketing Association was conducted Monday evening to find ways to develop markets similar to Maryland's.

At the Farmer's Warehouse Auction in Hughesville, Md., sales begin next Tuesday, March 21, at 9 a.m.

Another Maryland market, Planter's Warehouse, also auctions Maryland tobacco. Planter's can be reached at (301) 627-3571.

Farmer's Warehouse in Hughesville can be reached at (301) 274-3124.

Sales at the Pennsylvania tobacco auction in New Holland continue March 23 at 10 a.m. The last sale, noted Hess, is March 28.

Hess can be reached at (717) 355-5336.

Are Producers Responsible for Food Safety?

William R. Henning
Extension Meat Scientist
Penn State

The past few years have been filled with news stories about the safety of our food supply. Recently, the safety of livestock and livestock management practices have been questioned by some food safety experts. In attempting to prevent food borne illness caused by meat and poultry, the Food Safety Inspection Service (FSIS) of the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) has implemented a program called HACCP, an acronym for Hazard Analysis and Critical Control Points.

HACCP is designed to eliminate, control or reduce to an "acceptable level" any food safety risk, including pathogens The program is designed to help processors, packers and distributors establish preventative and control methods at all "critical" points in the handling and processing of meat and poultry products and to keep records to prove these procedures are being followed. First implemented in January of 1998 by the largest processors, final implementation will be accomplished by January 2000 by the "very small" processors.

In addition to the HACCP program, FSIS inspectors have significantly increased sampling for Salmonella and E. coli 0157.H7 on carcasses and in fresh retail ground beef Regulations are currently being formulated for testing programs for Listeria in cooked meat and poultry products There is no doubt that intensified inspection has helped identify problem areas and improve process methods, but the industry has recently experienced more recalls for pathogens than ever.

Why so many recalls? Processing plants and regulators have increased the sampling rate to the point where it is assured that some pathogens will be found. Secondly, the testing procedures are much more sensitive. New methods allow the recovery and detection of pathogens much more efficiently than just a few years ago.

Does this mean that food, especially meat and poultry, is less safe than before? Not at all! It means that the industry and government regulators are raising the awareness of all processors and handlers of foods, including consumers.

The USDA plans to incorporate a "FARM TO TABLE" approach to food safety in addition to many of the traditional inspection methods. This "Pre-Harvest" component will place more responsibility on the individual producer for food safety, but no one has clearly defined the control methods.

As an industry, the livestock and poultry sectors have done an excellent job over the past few decades to prevent diseased, unwholesome meat or chemically contaminated meat from entering the food chain, but this is not enough to satisfy some consumers or regulatory officials.

One aspect that remains somewhat controversial is the role animal production practices play in food safety. Some FSIS spokespersons are suggesting that animal production should be part of a slaughter plant's HACCP plan, yet no clear answers are available of how this will be accomplished.

There seem to be two separate issues that may or may not be controlled at the farm; pathogens and residues.

To understand how producers can have a role, it is important to understand how pathogens get into meat.

- Environmental pathogens, which cause disease in humans, abound widely in the environment, especially in the soil.
- Pathogens which cause disease in humans do not usually exhibit any visible effects in the animal which may be infected (the exception is a rare Salmonella called DT104)
- Infected animals do not have infected meat! When meat becomes infected, it is generally due to the transfer of pathogens from the hide or hair of the animal to the surface of the carcass during processing (mainly hide removal). Pathogens can also come from the intestinal content of infected animals but this is generally well controlled in packing plants.
- Extremely dirty animals can increase contamination of the carcass, although the effect is not as large as once thought.
- Animals that are not internally infected with these pathogens can get infected manure on their hide during the marketing process from dirty trucks and pens at sale barns or packing plants. They can even get pathogen-infected manure on their hide by being shipped on the same truck with an infected animal.

FSIS has considered attempting to control pathogens at the farm level but there are no clear answers of how this might be done. Some research is being done with vaccines and even innoculants of bacteria that compete against pathogenic E. coli. Those methods show promise but do not prevent contamination by the manure of untreated journal animals during marketing. Although reported in one scientific and the popular press, several subsequent research trials showed that feeding hay to cattle prior to slaughter DOES NOT reduce the incidence of pathogenic E. coli in cattle but, in fact, may increase shedding of the bacteria into the manure.

Meat packers have been very aggressive in attempting various procedures to control pathogens. Such techniques have involved washing, shaving, sterilizing and even dehairing beef carcasses prior to removing the hide. Currently, the National Cattlemen's Beef Association (NCBA) is funding research on dehairing of beef cattle prior to removing the hide. This process involves application of a caustic (much like "Nair") to remove all the hair. The caustic also kills pathogens on the surface of the hide and provides a relatively sterile environment during hide removal.

Packing plants have also developed several "hurdles" to reduce the number of pathogens on the carcass after processing, including improved procedures in dressing, mild acid rinses, hot water washes and steam "pasteurization cabinets". Each of these procedures make small reductions of pathogens and can be additive in their effect. This is what the industry calls "Multiple Hurdle" techniques to improve

Dairy Alliance Created To Aid Progressive Farmers

JAYNE SEBRIGHT
Lancaster Farming Staff

MIDDLETOWN (Dauphin Co.) — To help dairy producers keep up with the fast-paced and ever-changing dairy industry, the Pennsylvania State University has launched "Dairy Alliance," a new initiative to enhance the economic development of the dairy industry.

Dairy Alliance will draw on the resources of industry professionals and Penn State faculty and staff to provide dairy farmers with the latest information and programs they need to stay progressive.

"Our goal is to enhance the economic development of dairy through focused education programs," said N. Alan Bair, director of dairy industry relations for Penn State. "The Dairy Alliance is not just Penn State's initiative. It really depends on the support of industry, and its ultimate audience is the dairy farmer."

The focus areas that Dairy Alliance will target are labor management, information management, and nutrient management. To help develop programs and work with farmers, Penn State will hire several new positions within the University and in Cooperative Extension.

Three positions were created in the Department of Dairy and Animal Science. Tammy Perkins, formerly with the Michigan Farm Bureau and American Cancer Society, filled the first position, program manager, on January 1. On March 1, Brad Hilty was hired in the information management position at Penn State. Hilty was an independent farm management consultant. Richard Stup, formerly a feed management consultant with Renaissance Nutrition, started this Wednesday in the labor management position.

Additionally, there will be one position filled in the Agricultural Economics and Rural Sociology Department and three and a half positions filled in Cooperative Extension. Those positions include two in ag engineering, one in herd health, and a part-time position in farm management.

"Think of these new employees as additional resources to extension," said Bair. "They may, depending on the time and abilities of local extension agents, work directly with some farmers. However, their main responsibility will be developing programs that will be administered by others, including county extension agents, industry professionals, consultants, and even producers."

Another role of the new University hires will be to remain close to the industry and know what resources are available.

"If they find a company that has an excellent resource for farmers, they will work with that company to extend that program to a wider audience," said Bair. "If a company has a wide audience and identifies specific program needs, then they can go to Dairy Alliance staff to get the needed help."

Dairy Alliance is designed to bring resources together across the industry and multiply those resources to get them where they are needed. One component of the Dairy Alliance is a comprehensive database of resources available to dairy farmers. Perkins will be managing the database, which farmers can access by calling the Dairy Alliance's toll-free number, 1-888-373-PA DAIRY.

For example, if a dairy farmer is expanding his operation and needs to know names of builders in his area, he can call Tammy to find out the information. If a farmer needs information on heifer raising, then the database can direct him to the appropriate publications and organizations.

Bair emphasized that the Dairy Alliance was designed to complement existing extension programs and help aid farmers who are progressive and looking to the future.

"Extension has always had the job of educating the dairyman," said Bair. "But we realize that there are a lot of progressive dairymen out there who can adopt new technology faster than extension agents can keep up with it. The Dairy Alliance is a partnership formed with companies that have a lot of resources, manpower, money, and educational tools to keep up with the rapidly-changing industry."

The core dollars funding Dairy Alliance come from increased funding included for Cooperative Extension in the state's appropriation for Penn State. "The program was very strongly supported by Penn State President Spaniner," said Bair. "The support was also very evident within the dairy industry."

According to Bair, the Professional Dairy Managers of Pennsylvania, a group of farmers who stay with the latest technology and innovations in the dairy industry, asked for the initiative because they needed the extension system to keep up with them.

"The Dairy Alliance will be 100 percent focused on helping dairy producers," said Bair. "This was very important to legislators that these funds help dairy producers."

In additional to new programs and the database, Dairy Alliance will also sponsor meetings to educate dairy farmers on various issues. Two meetings have been held in Franklin and Lancaster Counties that focused on feeding management and labor management. The meetings were coordinated by local extension agents and co-sponsored by Dairy Alliance.

Dairy Alliance also hosted several DairyWorks seminars featuring Dr. Tom Fuhrmann, DVM, a management consultant from Arizona who has worked with some of the largest dairies in the world. The meetings were co-sponsored by Penn State Veterinary Science Extension and Keystone Agway, in addition to the Dairy Alliance.

As part of the initiative, Penn State will also launch a new Dairy Alliance web site, www.dairyalliance.com. While the comprehensive database that Perkins is developing will only be available through extension agents for the first several years, eventually Dairy Alliance hopes to make it available to all dairyman through the web site.

"The information and programs that Dairy Alliance will provide is applicable regardless

USDA Seeks Comments On Proposed Ammendments To The Fluid Milk Order

WASHINGTON, D.C. (USDA) - The U.S. Department of Agriculture is inviting the public to comment on proposals to amend the Fluid Milk Promotion Order.

The proposals would modify the membership status of the National Fluid Milk Processor Promotion Board to allow individual fluid milk processors to be represented by up to three board members instead of two. The proposals would also allow board members whose fluid milk processor company affiliation has changed to serve for six months or until a successor is appointed, whichever is sooner.

The National Fluid Milk Processor Promotion Board, which administers the Fluid Milk Order, requested the proposed changes. The program is financed by a mandatory 20-cent per hundredweight assessment on all fluid milk products processed and marketed in consumer-type packages by fluid milk processors in the 48 contiguous states and the District of Columbia.

Fluid milk processors who process and market more than 500,000 pounds of fluid milk products are charged the assessment, and those who process and market 500,000 pounds or less are exempted from the order.

Details of the proposed changes will be published as a proposed rule in the March 17 Federal Register. Comments, postmarked no later than April 17 may be sent to Dairy Programs, AMS, USDA, 1400 Independence Avenue, SW, Stop 0233, Room 2958-S, Washington, D.C. 20250-0233. Copies of the proposed rule and additional information may be obtained from David R. Jamison at that address, tel. (202) 720-6909.

Scientists have much to learn about the spread of pathogens between and among animals during shipping and marketing. They have not ascertained what causes shedding and spreading of the pathogens during marketing, shipping and handling of these animals. Co-mingling of animals would seem to reduce any advantage of identifying farms or feedyards, which have worked to eliminate or reduce pathogens.

The producer is limited in practices, at the farm, which reduce the potential for contaminating a carcass with pathogens. Some educators have developed what are called "Best Management Practices". These are far short of a true HACCP plan but are a step in getting producers to think about management practices which might affect food safety. These practices include such things as cleaning feeders and waterers regularly and preventing bird droppings from entering the feed or water supply. Keeping market cattle as clean as possible is also helpful and some packers refuse to buy excessively dirty animals.

Quality Assurance programs by the pork, beef and veal industries have been successful in addressing some food safety issues but have done very little to address pathogens.

There is some question if beef is even the main reservoir of E. coli pathogens. Preliminary work here at Penn State, funded by the PA Department of Agriculture, has led us to believe that cattle may be only intermediate hosts. We have found levels of E. coli in whitetail deer many times higher than in cattle. One of the recent outbreaks (in the state Washington), in which children were made ill from E. coli when swimming, showed the same serotype of E. coli was found in DUCK droppings!

Clearly, more evidence about the elimination or control of pathogens needs to be done before USDA can effectively include livestock in mandatory HACCP plans.

A great deal of improvement has been done by the meat and poultry processors, but one fact remains: there is no step to totally eliminate pathogens between the farm gate and the consumers plate, other than PROPER COOKING!

Employee Workshop

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.)–Brubaker Farms at Mount Joy will host a session on training dairy feeding employees on Thursday, March 23. Area dairy managers are encouraged to enroll to receive information and materials needed to train dairy employees responsible for feeding management. The session is a Pennsylvania Dairy Alliance program coordinated by the Capital Regional Extension Dairy Team.

The feeder's training will be held at Brubaker Farms, 740 Union School Road, Mount Joy, Pennsylvania. Directions to the farm are as follows: From Route 283, travel south on Route 772 through Mount Joy. About 1.5 miles south of Mount Joy, turn right at the traffic light onto Union School Road, and turn left immediately onto Flory Road. At the "T", turn right onto Musser Road and proceed about 1 mile to Brubaker Farms and to the dairy complex at the end of the farm lane.

Cost for the training including the lunch fee is $25/participant. The session is limited to the first thirty people who apply. To register for the training, please call the Penn State Cooperative Extension Customer Service Desk at the York County Office (telephone 717-840-7408).

You may also fax your registration to 717-755-5968 or e-mail to Tim Beck at (tbeck@psu.edu). Registration is requested by March 13, 2000 so adequate materials may be prepared for the sessions.

Two In College Of Ag Named Distinguished Professors

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.)–Two faculty members in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences–Dr. Roland Leach, professor of poultry science, and Dr. Gary Petersen, professor of soil and land resources–have been named distinguished professors by the university.

The title of distinguished professor was established by the office of the president to recognize a select group of professors with exceptional accomplishments in teaching, research, and service.

Leach is a worldwide leader in the field of bone metabolism, bone growth and development, egg shell formation, and mineral nutrition. He identified, characterized, and named a major skeletal disease of poultry known as tibial dyschondroplasia, which costs the poultry industry millions of dollars annually.

"Dr. Leach's research has contributed greatly to our understanding of the biochemical and molecular mechanisms underlying this complex anomaly," said Robert Elkin, head of Penn State's poultry science department. "In addition, his research has provided valuable information on a number of other connective tissue and skeletal disorders while advancing our knowledge of normal bone growth. Dr. Leach's findings have transcended species and are of tremendous relevance to both poultry science and human medicine."

Leach has published 104 peer-reviewed papers, 32 conference proceedings, nine book chapters, seven non-refereed papers and several in-house articles. In 1980, the Poultry Science Association awarded him the American Feed Manufacturers Association Research Award, and in 1983 he received Penn State's Gamma Sigma Delta Research Award.

Leach has taught principles of animal nutrition to more than 3,000 undergraduate students and has mentored six doctoral and 26 master's degree candidates. He also has served on more than 30 departmental, college and universitywide committees, and was instrumental in establishing the Intercollege Graduate Program in Nutrition, for which he served as associate director.

Leach received his bachelor's degree in agriculture from the University of Maine, his master's degree in nutrition-/biochemistry from Purdue University, and his doctorate in nutrition/biochemistry from Cornell University.

Petersen is internationally recognized for his research on how soil and agronomic sciences can be applied to land use planning and management. His work has focused on landscape analysis, watershed modeling, water quality, on-site waste disposal, precision agriculture and rural/urban interface issues. He has used remote sensing and geographic information systems to increase understanding of soil, landscape and hydrologic processes. He co-founded and co-directs Penn State's Office for Remote Sensing of Earth Resources.

"Dr. Petersen has contributed significantly to a better understanding of the interrelatedness of soils and land use with agriculture and environmental issues," said Steven Fales, head of Penn State's agronomy department. "His statewide assessments of nonpoint source pollution have helped to protect surface and groundwater and to evaluate potential threats to drinking water supplies. Society has benefited from his many contributions, which have provided a basis for scientifically legitimate, environmentally sound and economically desirable land use decisions."

Petersen is the author or co-author of more than 180 publications and has presented more than 140 papers at national and international scientific meetings. He has been the principal or co-principal investigator for competitive external research funding from state, federal and industry sources totaling more than $9 million.

Petersen has taught several undergraduate and graduate courses and has served as chair of advisory committees for 55 master's and doctoral degree candidates. He helped establish the graduate program in soil science, which he has chaired since its inception.

In 1991, Petersen was the first recipient of the Alex and Jessie C. Black Award for Excellence in Research. Gamma Sigma Delta and the Northeast Branch of the American Society of Agronomy also have honored him with teaching and research awards. He currently serves as past-president of the Soil Science Society of America.

Annual Willowdale Steeplechase May 14

KENNETT SQUARE (Chester Co.)–The top horses and riders on the chasing circuit will arrive here for the eighth annual Willowdale Steeplechase, May 14.

The National Steeplechase Association-sanctioned event, conducted in the heart of America's horse country, Chester County, just 40 miles from downtown Philadelphia, draws more than 10,000 spectators annually.

The event benefits the Stroud Water Research Center, which conducts research to protect the world's most endangered natural resource, fresh water.

Willowdale's beautifully rolling grounds comprise one of the most spectacular natural amphitheaters in horse racing, allowing spectators an unimpeded view of the entire course. The challenging course, designed by Irish course designer Hugh Morshead, uses an uphill approach to fences. Noted as one of the most beautiful courses in North America, its layout features an exciting water jump adjacent to the spectator area along with traditional European hedges and post and rail fences.

Race day begins at 11 a.m., with the first of three pony races scheduled for 11:15 a.m. Jack Russell terrier races begin at noon. The Foxhunters' Chase is run for the Winterking Perpetual Trophy at 1:30 p.m.

The first race, The Folly, for maidens three years old and up, begins at 2 p.m. The two and a half-mile race over 13 modified hurdles carries a $10,000 purse.

The $10,000 Landhope Cup, a three-mile, 16-fence timber race for 4-year-olds and up which have never won over timber, carries a purse of $10,000.

The feature race, the Willowdale Steeplechase, is run third, beginning about 3 p.m. The three and a half mile race over 21 timber obstacles is open to horses six years old and older. The race carries a purse of $15,000.

The Rose Tree Cup, a starter handicap hurdle race over 13 fences, is for apprentice riders on horses four years old and up which have not won two races. A part of the $10,000 purse is donated by the National Steeplechase Foundation for the promotion of amateur racing.

The final race is the two-mile Liam Magee Flat Race, open to horses three years old and up, ridden by amateur owner/riders.

Willowdale's fenced course and family-oriented attractions make it the perfect outing for families. "The ECS Kid's Alley Tent," featuring eight fascinating hands-on experiments about stream life and watersheds hosted by scientists from the Stroud Water Research Center, provides hours of entertainment for children of all ages. In addition, children will enjoy free pony rides courtesy of Gateway Stables, storytelling, crafts, games and more. A carriage parade, antique car display, and vendor tent featuring unique shopping add to the fun.

New for 2000, Willowdale will introduce ready to serve brunch, lunch, and hors d'oeuvres packages, prepared by the gourmet chefs at the Oak Grill at the Marshalton Inn. Spectators can order the food along with their tickets and pick it up on the grounds ready to serve race day. Willowdale's tailgating competition has added fabulous prizes and celebrity judges.

Adult general admission is $15 in advance, $20 at the gate. Senior and student admission is $10; children 12 and under are admitted free. Reserved tailgate parking spaces begin at $100, and sponsorship opportunities are available. For more information, phone (610) 444-1582.

Mercer County Teen First Recipient Of State Grange Foundation Scholarship

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.)–A Granger from Mercer County is the first recipient of the Pennsylvania Grange Foundation Scholarship.

Thomas Courtney, a junior majoring in mechanical engineering at Bucknell University, is the first collegiate student to receive the scholarship that was created by delegate action at the 1996 State Convention in Warren County.

Courtney, son of John and Pamela Courtney, Mercer, is a member of Pleasant Valley Grange 1643 and a 1997 graduate of Mercer Area High School.

Courtney's college activities and leadership positions include singing in the men's ensemble called Proclamation, Christian Fellowship, a Bible study leader, Bucknell Bootscooter Linedancing Club, intramural soccer, college technical crew, and others.

A fourth-generation Granger, Courtney is a past assistant steward and gatekeeper at his subordinate Grange and is the reigning Mercer County Grange Fair King.

Courtney will receive a grant of $500, with no repayment required, and is eligible to receive an additional scholarship next year.

All fourth degree (subordinate Grange) members in good standing for at least one year, who are entering at least their junior year of college and can demonstrate financial need, are eligible to apply for a foundation scholarship.

Two other Grange members received financial aid in 1999.

Brandon Treichler, a member of Virginville Grange 1832, Berks County, received a Leonard Rhone grant. Karen Sicignano, a member of Friendship Grange 1232, Mercer County, was awarded a Santee student Treichler, the son of Keith and Suzanne Treichler of Kutztown, is a 1999 graduate of Oley Valley High School. He entered Penn State this fall as a dairy science major.

Treichler is a member of the Community Service Committee at Virginville and filled nearly every station as a prior member of its junior Grange. Treichler was also active in 4-H, FFA, and various dairy judging clubs.

Recipients of Rhone scholarships must be a Grange member in good standing and be endorsed by his subordinate or Pomona (county) Grange Master.

A $300 grant is available each year. To be eligible, a student must pursue a four-year study in agriculture or human development and family services at Penn State University.

Sicignano, the daughter of Ron and Eva Sicignano of Hartstown, is a sophomore at Clarion University who plans to obtain a business degree.

She was inducted into Phi-Eta-Sigma, a National Honor Society for freshman, after obtaining a 4.0 grade average her first year.

A 1998 graduate of Jamestown High School, she was active in various musical clubs in high school and numerous sports.

The Santee loan is $500 per year and is interest free. Santee loans are repayable starting six months following graduation, upon leaving school or ceasing to be a full-time student.

Pennsylvania Details Its Plan To Deal With West Nile Virus

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — On behalf of Gov. Tom Ridge, Pennsylvania state officials today announced that on April 3, the Commonwealth will launch its program to detect and control mosquitoes that carry the West Nile virus which struck New York last year.

"Although the West Nile virus has not been found in Pennsylvania, starting April 3 we will be ready in case the virus spreads into the Commonwealth," Department of Health Secretary Robert S. Zimmerman, Jr. said.

The departments of Health, Environmental Protection (DEP), Agriculture, Aging, and Conservation and Natural Resources, and the Fish and Boat and Game commissions will work together and with local governments to implement the comprehensive, statewide plan.

"Pennsylvania's plan has three parts public and professional education, surveillance and, if the surveillance program determines there is a risk, the control of mosquitoes that carry the virus," DEP Secretary James M. Seif said. "Through early detection and control, we believe we stand the best opportunity to prevent the virus from spreading."

DEP has been charged with the mosquito surveillance and control portion of the multi-agency effort to control disease outbreaks in Pennsylvania. Current plans call for DEP to establish more than 500 mosquito-monitoring sites across the Commonwealth to trap mosquitoes and sample mosquito larvae so they can be identified and analyzed.

The Department of Agriculture will be involved in monitoring birds, chickens, and horses for West Nile virus. The Department of Health will be working with physicians and other health care professionals to monitor public health through local outreach efforts with county and municipal health departments. If the virus is detected in mosquitoes or animals, a mosquito control program will be implemented to kill the infected mosquitoes.

"DEP will work with counties and local governments to provide 100 percent funding for local control programs," Seif said. "Once control programs have started, they will have to continue until the virus has been controlled."

DEP also will work with the counties adjacent to New Jersey that are considered to be at higher risk to develop an early mosquito control program.

To help educate citizens, Pennsylvania's Physician General, Dr. Robert Muscalus, has prepared a message to residents and local governments about the potential for the appearance of West Nile virus in the state and the protective actions anyone can take to help prevent it.

"We must be aware of where water can collect and stagnate on our property, and do our best to keep these places free from standing water," said Physician General Robert S. Muscalus. "Mosquitoes can breed in four days in standing water in such places like flower pots, cans, birdbaths, small ponds, tires and other containers which do not provide drainage or movement of water. By preventing mosquitoes from breeding, residents can go a long way to protect their health."

A website containing basic information about West Nile virus — www.WestNile.state.pa.us — also has been established to provide citizens with background information and regular updates. Visitors can log on and sign up to receive news releases and other updates on West Nile automatically by e-mail.

The West Nile virus is spread to people by the Northern house mosquito infected with the virus. It was previously only found in Africa, Eastern Europe and West Asia.

Mosquitoes acquire the virus from infected birds and horses. Those mosquitoes then transmit the virus to people and other animals. West Nile virus, when transmitted to humans can cause West Nile Encephalitis. West Nile Encephalitis is an infection that can cause an inflammation of the brain.

People older than 50 years of age have the highest risk of developing severe illness because, as people age, their bodies have a harder time fighting off disease. People with compromised immune systems also are at risk. However, anyone can get the virus.

Gov. Ridge's 2000-01 budget proposes $9.8 million in new funding to prevent and mitigate the potential public-health effects of West Nile virus on citizens of the Commonwealth. The funds will provide necessary staffing and an improved epidemiological infrastructure to detect the virus should it find its way into Pennsylvania.

In New York City last summer, seven of the 61 people infected with the virus died. All of the people who died from the virus were 75 or older. Birds that tested positive for West Nile virus were found last summer in New Jersey, New York and Maryland.

New York City, New Jersey, and Connecticut successfully sprayed pesticides to kill infected mosquitoes and stopped further spread of the 1999 disease outbreak.

The U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention are working with a group of 14 states including Pennsylvania believed to have some risk of seeing the virus this summer to develop a cooperative program of surveillance.

For more information on the West Nile virus, visit the Pennsylvania website at www.state.pa.us or www.WestNile.state.pa.us.

2000 Machinery Custom Rates

Machinery Custom Rates

By Eric D. Stout & Liana C. Cuffman
'Agricultural Statisticians

The custom rates shown are averages from voluntary reports by custom operators and farmers throughout Pennsylvania. Most of the rates are stated per acre, cwt., ton, bale, or bushel rather than per hour to reduce the variation due to machinery size. Individual rates vary due to differences in working conditions, services performed, or even the operator's eagerness to do custom work. Therefore, the average rates shown should not be considered absolute indications of fair charges.

Acreage rates are shown separately for two regions of the state, labeled "Mountain" and "Valley". The differences in rates between regions reflect differences in terrain, soils and alternative opportunities for the labor and equipment used Figures labeled "State" represent the straight average of all reports used regardless of geographic location.

Of the 72 rates reported with year-to-year comparisons, 53 increased, 10 decreased, and 9 are the same as last year The overall average is up 3 percent from the previous year This percentage increase was computed by adding the rates for all jobs, regardless of basis of charge, and dividing by last year's comparable total

Farmers to Visit Harrisburg In Support of Legislative Goals

CAMP HILL (Cumberland Co.)–About 300 farmers from across the state traveled to Harrisburg Tuesday, March 21 to meet with their state legislators on issues affecting agriculture.

The face-to-face meetings with lawmakers took place during the annual Harrisburg Legislative Tour conducted by the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau.

The day's visits were followed by a banquet for state legislators at the Harrisburg Hilton and Towers hosted by Pennsylvania Farm Bureau. Guy Donaldson, president of the farm group, addressed the banquet at the conclusion of the Harrisburg tour.

"With prices for some farm commodities at their lowest level in over two decades, farmers are looking for assistance from many areas to help them survive economically," Donaldson said. "Coming off last year's devastating drought and having concerns about the growing season this year has added to the uncertainty farmers have about their future.

"Farm Bureau members will be meeting with their state senators and representatives to recommend solutions to the problems facing agriculture," Donaldson said. "The recommendations are based on grassroots policy developed by Farm Bureau members."

Here are the issues Pennsylvania Farm Bureau members will be discussing with legislators during the Harrisburg Tour:

•State inheritance tax. State inheritance taxes harshly impact the financial ability of farm families to pass the business on to the next generation. Unlike federal estate taxes, which exempt a portion of a person's estate from taxation, state inheritance taxes are imposed on the first dollar of the estate's taxable value. Payment of the tax, which is assessed at a rate of 6 percent for close relatives and 15 percent for others, is required to be made in cash. If the farm business does not have available cash, the farm family must sell off farm assets to pay the tax. If land must be sold to pay estate taxes, succeeding generations will inherit farms that are less productive and less able to survive in the future. Farm Bureau policy calls for the elimination of the state inheritance tax. Farm Bureau members will be asking their legislators to support legislation which eliminates or reduces the inheritance tax burden.

•Regional planning and zoning. Implementation of land use planning and zoning on a countywide or regional basis can significantly impact agriculture. On one hand, regional planning can effectively control residential development and prevent conflicts which may arise when developments intrude into areas that were traditionally agriculture. On the other hand, unreasonably restrictive land use regulations can prevent farmers from adopting farming practices which may be unpopular with local residents but are needed to stay in business. Unrestricted regional land use planning can also prevent a farmer from developing a portion of the farm if he or she decides to do so. Regional planning legislation, S.B. 300, has been amended in the Senate to address several concerns voiced by Farm Bureau. The amended bill is now in the House. Farm Bureau is asking representatives to oppose any effort to remove the amendments which protect agriculture's ability to make future changes needed to remain competitive.

•Local income taxes. Recent interpretations of state income tax laws would require farms to report as "business income" all income that is generated from interest on business assets, sales of farm livestock, and sales of farm machinery. Income from many of these assets is not required to be reported as business income under federal law. Since many municipalities and school districts base "earned income" tax liability on state, rather than federal, "business income," farmers will pay more local income taxes. If municipalities and school districts increase local income tax rates, which is allowed under the "homestead" tax reform, farmers will be paying even more in local income taxes. Farm Bureau is supporting S.B. 390 which would require local tax authorities to follow federal guidelines in computing income subject to local "earned income" taxes. The bill has passed the Senate, however its support has been diluted by amendments relating to amusement taxes added in the House. Farm Bureau wants the Senate to pass a version of S.B. 390 that accomplishes its goals for changing local income tax laws.

•Tort reform. The U.S. civil justice system has created the attitude that anyone who sues can make large sums of money. As a result, more and more people are bringing marginal, frivolous and even fraudulent lawsuits in an effort to get rich. Lawsuit abuse has clogged our courts, has skyrocketed insurance costs to farmers and businesses, has prevented farmers and others from obtaining insurance coverage, has caused taxpayers to pay more taxes to protect government from lawsuits, has discouraged manufacturers from marketing useful products, and has discouraged government and civic organizations from providing helpful public services and programs. Farm Bureau is a member of the Civil Justice Coalition, which is proposing changes in law and court rules. The coalition has introduced S.B. 5, the Lawsuit Abuse Reform package, which would accomplish the following: give courts more authority to penalize those responsible for frivolous lawsuits, put limits on punitive damage amounts, eliminate the practice of searching for a rich defendant in a lawsuit, let juries hear evidence of substance or alcohol abuse leading to a plaintiff's injury, reduce awards for "future losses" to a reasonable present value, and let juries hear about compensation being received from other sources due to an injury suffered by a plaintiff. In addition, the coalition is urging senators to write the chief justice of the state supreme court in support of proposed changes in court rules to bring about tort reform.

•Drought relief assistance. The 1999 drought was one of the worst ever suffered by Pennsylvania farmers. Crop losses were estimated at between $500 million and $700 million. In response to inadequate federal assistance, Farm Bureau sought $200 million in drought relief from the General Assembly last year. While only $65 million was committed for drought aid, during floor debate on the issue legislators said additional funding could be included in the new state budget if necessary. Outdated crop yield calculations have limited the amounts of crop loss that are eligible for federal relief, which in turn reduces state assistance, since Pennsylvania's aid is restricted to 75 percent of the federal aid a farmer receives. Hay crop losses, in particular, are not being adequately addressed. Farm Bureau is asking its members to talk to their legislators about the situation and the need for additional state drought relief.

Northwest Regional Ag, Dairy Day Announced

ERIE (Erie Co.)–The 2000 Northwest Regional Ag and Dairy Day will be held on Thursday, March 23, 2000, at Allegheny College's Shafer Auditorium in Meadville, PA.

Computer Workshops

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.)–Two different hands-on computer workshops are being offered by Penn State Cooperative Extension to help dairy producers and their record keepers learn how to utilize computers to help them manage their financial and herd data more effectively. These workshops are designed for the people who are actually responsible for keeping the farm records.

The first workshop is three days and is on "Using Quick Books Pro" as a way to help people learn the basics of farm financial records. Dates of the course are March 30, April 4, and April 6. Cost is $40 per farm, and preregistration is required. Call (717) 394-6851 before March 27. The workshop will be at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center, and lunch is on your own.

The second workshop is on "Using Spreadsheets" such as Excel to help a variety of records and to perform a variety of records and to perform a variety of calculations, such as ration adjustments, economic analyses, generating a variety of summaries, and other reports that help producers make more informed management decisions. Dates of this course are April 5 and April 7, cost is $25 per person and registration is required. Call (717) 394-6851 before March 31. The workshop will be at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center and lunch is on your own.

$59 Million Farmer-Funded Cheese Campaign Aims To Increase Sales

ROSEMONT, Il.–A $59 million integrated marketing campaign funded by America's dairy farmers is working in 2000 to help increase cheese sales beyond the record levels seen in 1999, when cheese commercial disappearance increased about 6 percent.

The integrated program will include TV and print advertising, product publicity, retail promotion, foodservice marketing, and product research and technology. All of these elements will be working together to increase cheese sales on behalf of America's dairy farmers.

New components include:

• New television and print advertising, featuring the revised tagline "Ahh . . . the power of Cheese™"

• A more flexible retail campaign that allows grocery store chains to participate throughout the calendar year

• A more aggressive foodservice program to develop more cheese-friendly menu items with national restaurant chains.

"With these fresh elements leading the way, the program is on track to meet its three-year business goal of increasing U.S. per capita cheese consumption to 30.5 pounds by the end of 2000, compared to 28.9 pounds in 1998. There are good opportunities to meet that goal, as consumers continue to increase their cheese purchases and consumption," said Dick Cooper, vice president of cheese marketing for Dairy Management Inc.™ (DMI).

Highlights of DMI's 2000 cheese marketing program include:

Advertising: The "Ahh . . . the power of Cheese" campaign kicked off in January with new, highly entertaining TV spots and print ads designed to help unite cheese lovers everywhere and "trigger the crave" for cheese. One of the spots features a fictitious presidential candidate who loses his following after revealing that he does not like cheese. Other new spots will air this spring.

Retail Promotion: This award-winning program helped increase retail cheese sales 3.7 percent in 1999. Participation in 2000 includes about 130 retain chains representing 60 percent of the U.S. grocery food sales. More flexible scheduling allows supermarket retailers to participate throughout the calendar year via retailer-customized TV, radio, direct mail and in-store cheese sampling events in return for expanded retailer cheese advertising and merchandising support.

National Restaurant Promotions: DMI helped Pizza Hut conduct market testing for the "Ultimate Cheese Pizza" promotion, which officially launched February 21. This pizza features a blend of six types of cheeses and uses 50 percent more cheese than the average pizza. A large "Ultimate Cheese Pizza" contains a full pound of cheese.

In addition, Wendy's Cheddar Lovers' Bacon Cheeseburger is back in Wendy's outlets this winter after a successful promotion last May, when an extra 2.25 million pounds of cheese were sold during a four-week promotion period.

Product Publicity: In April dairy promotion will team up with TV personality Mr. Food® in a nationwide search for America's most cheese-friendly breakfast recipe using at least two kinds of cheese. The contest encourages consumers to add cheese at breakfast, the meal that currently has the lowest cheese consumption. The March issue of Better Homes and Gardens magazine featured a call for entries among its nearly 27 million readers.

These new elements for the 2000 cheese marketing program are integrated with existing efforts, such as the "Cool School" program, whereby school food service operators that increase their purchases of 100 percent REAL cheese pizzas are awarded bonus points that can be redeemed for much-needed school equipment and other merchandise.

What is more, product research will continue working to identify industry critical needs and conduct research to best control the taste, melt, stretch and aging process of cheese to help increase usage among food manufacturers.

"Dairy farmers strongly support efforts by farmer-funded promotion groups to increase cheese sales," said Lyle Tjosaas, a Minnesota dairy producer and chairman of the DMI cheese committee. "We believe these efforts will be successful in increasing cheese consumption among our target audiences."

Barn Meeting Scheduled

HONESDALE (Wayne Co.)–A Barn Meeting has been scheduled for Monday March 20th from 1:30 p.m. to 3:00 p.m., at the Kevin and Gerarda Burleigh and Family Farm, (Bur-Le-Acres Holsteins), located along Route 371, near Pleasant Mount.

The purpose of this Barn Meeting is to offer and introduce two new dairy cattle-related topics to area dairy farmers. The first topic, will offer useful and current information on: "The New Johne's Control Program In Pennsylvania." The second topic is: "Would Your Dairy Farm Be Able To Pass A Dairy Farm Biosecurity Audit?" Dr. Dave R. Wolfgang, Field Studies Director, Department of Veterinary Science, the Pennsylvania State University will address both of these topics.

For more information, please contact the Wayne County Cooperative Extension at 253-5970, extension 239. The Wayne County Cooperative Extension and the Department of Veterinary Science at Penn State University are sponsoring this meeting.

Farm Management

Record-Keeping: Essential

JOHN BERRY
Ag Marketing Agent
Lehigh Co. Extension

Information is power! Think of the power and money one could command with perfect information. Think of all the regulatory statutes used to prevent the misuse of "insider" information. Unfortunately, we live in a world of imperfect information. Still, think of all the available information not being properly used that potentially could be transferred into power and money. A major management challenge is to collect, sort out, and use accurate pertinent information for decision-making, while ignoring volumes of useless, time-consuming and erroneous information, and at the same time not overlook essential helpful information.

Record keeping is not particularly exciting work. In fact, it is usually quite boring. It is time consuming, often tedious, and has few immediate tangible benefits. The benefits come from being able to make correct decisions based on credible, documented information; and remember, information is power. Power to make the right decision with confidence; or at least as much confidence as is humanly possible in an imperfect world.

Effective management depends on accurate measurement. In fact, if it can't be measured, it can't be effectively managed. With risk management, the rub comes because measurement of many important variables is often subjective, and extremely difficult if not impossible. For this reason it is important to accurately measure those variables that can be objectively measured. Thus, the answer to the question for why detailed farm records are necessary and important.

The popular expression made famous in the computer world, GIGO (garbage in-garbage out) applies to farm record-keeping. Any analysis is only as accurate and strong as the information used to support it. Farmers typically concentrate on activities exhibiting tangible results. Record-keeping for the sake of record-keeping is a waste of time. However, recording important information that can aid in the decision process and the effective management of risk is viewed as a worthwhile activity.

Many record-keeping and accounting software packages are commercially available. Typical features include double entry accounting, preparing enterprise budgets, generating complete coordinated financial statements, and calculating the "sweet sixteen" financial performance measures. These packages are relatively inexpensive. Moreover, professional assistance is available from a multitude of private companies and institutions that specialize in helping farmers with their record-keeping and accounting activities

In conclusion, remember it takes time to document farm performance. Time is a precious resource. So is accurate information about farm productivity. As profit margins narrow, survival depends on all resources available to the farm manager being put to their most productive use.

CLAAS® harvesting equipment delivers high-quality hay for your herd demands

Variable chamber and fixed chamber round balers produce dense, weather-tight bales that resist spoiling. Choose ROLLATEX® net wrap or twine. Heavy-duty disc mowers and disc mower conditioners cut efficiently and evenly. Field-proven tedders gently spread hay up to 33′ to accelerate dry down. Single and multi-rotor rakes with tandem axles and high-capacity adjust to uneven ground conditions to produce uniform, fluffy windrows.

Frequency Makes A Beneficial Difference

George F.W. Haenlein
Extension Dairy Specialist
Emeritus
University of Delaware

Frequency can be a philosophical principle with many consequences. I always told my students that if they wanted to succeed on their tests, they must adopt the principle of frequency in their studies. They could not hope to be successful on a test by studying only the night before.

The term "frequency" may also mean, in many cases, repetition. To study a language, for example, one must memorize vocabulary, which requires a certain frequency of repetition to succeed.

Many situations in dairy farming call for repetition, and a certain frequency of repetition has interesting results. As we study the fermentation in the rumen of animals fed a certain ration, we observe peaks of fermentation soon after each meal.

If we feed twice a day, we get two big fermentation peaks in the rumen. However, if we divide the feed into several meals in a 24-hour period, we observe smaller peaks after each meal, which is nutritionally better to handle and more efficient for our animals–dairy cows, dairy goats and dairy sheep.

A higher frequency of feeding meals or more repeated meals during 24 hours benefits the dairy animals nutrition, therefore benefiting milk production and profits.

The question then is: how can repeat feedings be done–labor- and equipment-wise–and still be profitable? Free choice feeding of hay, silage, haylage, and total-mixed ration will provide a more frequent availability of feed.

Will animals actually eat more frequent meals? Not to the extent that is nutritionally optimal. However, grain supplement feeding can be provided by computer feeding equipment without additional labor.

We have programmed the University of Delaware dairy farm computer feeding system for a minimum of 6 meals in a 24-hour period for each cow. No cow can eat more than 1/6th of her daily grain ration at one time. This optimizes frequency of feeding for nutritional benefits.

In addition to the frequency of grain feeding, we can also regulate the frequency of milk nursing by our calves. Feeding milk more frequently than twice a day reduces overfeeding scours and provides the same nutritional benefit as frequent grain feeding.

Our computer system is also programmed for a minimum of 6 milk meals for our calves. With ordinary labor, this would be impossible or unprofitable. So more frequent but smaller meals are beneficial for animals, and with today's computers, it is feasible and profitable.

Among other benefits of "frequency" on the dairy farm is interesting new research about milking. We know that twice-a-day milking of our cows yields more milk per cow per day than once a day and three times milking yields more milk than twice a day, especially in fresh and high milking cows. We also know that more frequent milking improves the recovery from mastitic infections.

On the other hand, it is not uncommon to find in other countries (for example, in the mountains of Italy, Greece or Spain) that the many goat flocks are milked only once a day. The explanation is in the different udder anatomy. Goat udders usually have much larger volumes of gland cistern than cows, which means they can produce milk much longer in their secretory alveoli before the back pressure from the filled-up cistern reduces alveolar secretion. Thus, once a day milking is less detrimental to high milk production in goats than in cows.

Comparing this situation with dairy sheep or even with milking horses (as in some countries in northeast Asia) explains why frequency of milking is critical for good yields or, under natural situations of suckling by lambs or foals, is typical. These species usually have an udder anatomy that shows very little gland cistern, thus very little storage volume before back pressure reduces alveolar secretion.

The practical dairy sheep or horse farmers know this without going to college. When I was in the mountains of Romania last year, where there are many thousands of dairy sheep providing the only source of livelihood for mountain farmers, I observed that shepherds living with their flocks milked them three times a day, thus yielding milk and income for 9 months a year instead of the usual 5 months in other parts of the world. I observed the same situation on a horse-milking farm in Germany, where the mares are milked three times a day, even though in both cases this means tremendous labor costs.

Research on these topics is done mostly in other countries. In the United States, we don't worry much about problems in milk production of goats or sheep or even horses, although a trend toward more goat and sheep dairying is increasing here.

A Virginia State University study 10 years ago (Journal of Dairy Science 73 (1989):1603-1611) showed that a three-times milking frequency increased milk yield of Holstein cows over twice-a-day milking if cows also ate more feed with a higher nutrient density.

A later study at the Volcani Research Center in Israel (Journal of Dairy Science 78 (1995):2726-2736) comparing three times with six times milking of cows per day found that "increased frequency of udder emptying increased milk production." They also found that the higher milk production was associated with increased but insufficient feed intake and elevated blood levels of growth hormone, prolactin, and oxytocin.

It has been known for a long time that oxytocin is necessary for milk let-down and complete milk-out because of its action of contracting the muscle fibers surrounding the udder secretory alveoli. What has not been known is that oxytocin may have another role besides the milk-let-down effect when frequency of milking is changed.

A new study at the University of Shiraz in Iran found that different frequencies of oxytocin injections over entire lactations of milking sheep resulted in significantly higher yields and longer lactations with more frequent days of injections. Also, milk fat contents increased and somatic cell counts decreased significantly, indicating that oxytocin may also be involved in mammary cell maintenance and metabolism.

This then relates very well to another new study from France, in which dairy sheep were milked one, two, three, four, five and seven times per day. Instead of injecting oxytocin, it was tested in the blood during these different frequencies of milking. The study found that milking frequency increased the total release of oxytocin, as well as milk yield and fat contents, indicating that natural oxytocin is in plentiful supply and is not limiting milk yield gains and composition during more frequent milking management.

While this valuable information must be confirmed for dairy cows, it probably applies to them as well. It is important to verify, however, because we are at the threshold of computer robotic milking. This will mean more frequent milking, since the cows can go to the robot milking machine when the pressure in the udder makes them go more frequently than twice a day.

Robot milking is already in operation on a number of dairy farms in the Netherlands, England, Scandinavia, and Germany. As soon as it is operable under U.S. public health codes, it will enter the American dairy industry and reduce labor requirements tremendously. To know that the greater frequency of milking is also beneficial to milk yield and composition, in addition to labor reduction, is valuable for farm profits, just as it is with the computer grain feeding and computer milk nursing.

were insufficient when commodity prices fell sharply in 1998.

The new subsidy program will be included in President Clinton's 2001 budget along with $1.3 billion in farm conservation spending that Vice President Al Gore announced earlier this month and an additional $640 million earmarked for cutting premiums on federally subsidized crop insurance. The government has offered similar insurance discounts in 1999 and again this year in order to encourage more farmers to buy the coverage to protect against weather-related losses.

Because commodity prices are only expected to rise slowly during the next several years, support has been building in Congress and among farm organizations to come up with a new way to subsidize growers when prices are low.

The administration's new program was originally proposed by economists at the Agriculture Department and Ohio State University in the early 1990s. Critics have said the payments could worsen the worldwide grain glut by encouraging farmers to plant crops in areas where they do not do well, something the 1996 farm law was intended to discourage.

Newpher, the Farm Bureau lobbyist, praised the administration for proposing the program. Clinton had proposed improving the farm "safety net" in his State of the Union message a year ago and again Thursday night, but the administration never spelled out a proposal of its own until Friday.

"We need to get started on this discussion right away," Newpher said.

ers closed .50 higher after selling as much as 1.00 higher in very active trading on Tuesday. Even though buyers were not as aggressive late in the week; prices do not seem to be in a reversal, as market indicators have not weakened. Boxed beef values remain very strong as well as the April futures market. Western feeders had yet to trade the bulk of their showlists by Friday morning, with a few sales quoted through the week from 71.00-72.00 live and 113.00-116.00 dressed. Local Holstein steers were active and traded 1.00-1.50 higher. Slaughter cows closed 1.00-1.50 higher with excellent demand for the leaner types on a strong boneless beef market. Slaughter bulls ended the week 1.00-3.00 higher with good demand from ethnic holiday buyers. Supply included 45 percent slaughter steers, 7 percent slaughter heifers, 37 percent slaughter cows, 5 percent bulls, with the balance feeders.

SLAUGHTER STEERS: High Choice and Prime 2-4 1190-1510 lbs 71.75-74.35, fancy singles up to 77.25. Choice 2-3 1100-1485 lbs 69.75-72.75, high dressing 1-2 up to 75.00. Select and low Choice 2-3 1070-1510 lbs 65.00-70.50; 1515-1735 lbs 63.00-67.00. Select 1-3 1000-1415 lbs 60.75-68.25.

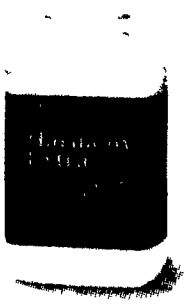
It scares wild garlic as much as garlic scares vampires.



Wild garlic bites. The smallest amount can dramatically decrease the quality and value of your harvested wheat crop. DuPont Harmony® Extra herbicide is your best defense against wild garlic.* It'll also stand its ground against chickweed, henbit, buttercup, mayweed and other scary weeds—some 60 in all. And its complete rotation flexibility allows you to double crop to soybeans. Don't let wild garlic take a bite out of your profits. Fight back with Harmony® Extra.

DUPONT Harmony® Extra herbicide

* Heavy infestations and no till fields may require two applications of Harmony® Extra

With Roundup TVP™ Rewards

In growing your crop, you give it your best. From warehousing your seed, planting it, controlling the weeds...it gets your hard efforts all the way through harvest. But you can't predict the unexpected. You can, however, protect yourself with the Roundup TVP™ Rewards program. Your Roundup Ready® and YieldGard® technology is backed by it. And you won't find a more comprehensive package of benefits through any competitor. It's valuable protection and savings in time of unforeseen circumstances.

Catastrophic Seed Loss Refund – If your warehoused qualifying Monsanto seed* is lost before planting due to theft, fire, flood or other natural disaster, you can qualify for a full refund of the cost of the Technology/Seed Premium paid for the seed.

Replant/Crop Loss Refund – If your qualifying Monsanto technology crop is destroyed for any reason before August 31, 2000, you can qualify for a waiver of the cost of the Technology/Seed Premium charged on your replanted crop or a full refund of the Technology/Seed Premium paid for the seed.

Replant Burndown Refund – If a qualifying Monsanto herbicide burndown treatment was applied to the field in which an approved Replant/Crop Loss Refund claim occurred, you may also qualify for a Replant Burndown Refund of up to 24 oz./A of Roundup Ultra® herbicide to apply as a burndown treatment for the replanted crop.

Premium Performance Plan – If you follow the Roundup TVP Rewards recommendations and experience an unexpected flush of annual weeds prior to canopy closure (in Roundup Ready® soybeans) or prior to reaching the V8 stage or 30 in. (in Roundup Ready® corn), you'll receive up to 24 oz./A of Roundup Ultra herbicide at no charge.

We stand behind our technology, and we'll stand behind you. With Roundup TVP Rewards. Because, for your investment and your valuable business, you deserve to be rewarded.

Always read and follow label directions. Roundup brand herbicides will kill plants that do not contain the Roundup Ready® gene. See Monsanto Technology Use Guide for recommended agronomic practices and specific Roundup TVP Rewards™ program requirements and eligibility. "Roundup Ready®" corn seed sold by Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc. qualifies for the Premium Performance Plan and Replant Burndown Refund portions of Roundup TVP™ Rewards™ program; application for Roundup TVP Rewards™ benefits. YieldGard® corn seed sold by Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc. and NK® brand seed sold by Novartis Seeds, Inc. do not qualify for Roundup TVP Rewards™. Regulatory approvals of grain/commodities harvested from Roundup Ready® corn and Roundup Ready® & YieldGard® corn stacked are pending in certain export markets, and may not be received before the end of 2000. As a result, the Grower is restricted from introducing such grain/commodities into channels of trade where the potential for export to such markets exists. The Grower must channel such grain/commodities for feeding on-farm use in domestic feedlots or other uses in domestic markets only. Growers should refer to the Roundup Technology Use Guide for information on crop stewardship to avoid the potential movement of pollen to neighboring crops. Risk, Opportunity Are Linked

Ag Marketing Agent
Lehigh County

Risk can not be separated from farming without removing the opportunities for profit. Risk can be managed. Agricultural prices will be more volatile over the next five years than in the past five years. Volatility means sudden and dramatic shifts in prices.

These shifts can be a source of gain or loss, depending on your marketing strategy. The 1996 "freedom to farm" bill encourages fully planted acreage which has resulted in record harvests in the U.S. The exit of the federal government from the grain storage function as a market price stabilizer is at hand.

The recent melt down in Asian markets impacts our largest agriculture buyers of grain and pork.

Additionally, the U.S. is no longer the sole world supplier of farm products. Australia, Argentina, and Europe significantly affect the wheat supply.

Brazil, China, and India are major soybean competitors. China and South Africa are exporting more and more corn. Australia and Argentina continue to build their beef exporting capacity.

Avoiding The Crush

As we talk with our accountants about year-end bookkeeping, it is a good time to consider the sources of risk in our enterprises.

Maintaining liquidity or cash flow should be the primary objective. Consider your ability to meet cash flow needs in an orderly fashion as you review your operation and your debt position.

Another consideration is, does your operation have "depth"? Are others being groomed by sharing in management decisions?

Remember your operation has been designed to fit your management style. The lack of next generation management experience can force farm liquidation at distress sale prices.

The winter months are an ideal time to update your marketing plan. Gathering market information is the base of a successful effort. Several sources are available. Subscription services, the Internet, magazines, trade papers and attending marketing meetings all offer detailed information. The use of enterprise accounting and financial analysis can point to areas in an enterprise that are not adding to the bottom line.

What do you want to protect in your business? Variable cost of production, total cost of production, normal profits, or unusual profits are all possible goals. One of the most important considerations of a marketing plan is your own comfort level. Based on your production history, decide what percentage of expected production you feel comfortable in pricing at various stages of growth. Be sure to include your personality in the calculations.

There are no strict formulas for when a particular percent of production should be priced. If pricing 50 percent of expected production in April causes ulcers, but you can sleep having 20 percent priced in April, it is obvious which strategy should be considered.

Cumberland Honors Several At Meeting

HUNTSDALE (Cumberland Co.)–The Cumberland County Cooperative Extension Association conducted its annual meeting recently here at the Penn Township Firehall. Richard Ocker, president, expressed the appreciation of the board to the retiring directors including Beverly Agar and Neal McCulloch, Newville, Clarence Toigo, Shippensburg, and Samuel Simmons III, Mechanicsburg.

Ocker welcomed the newly elected directors including Suzanne Simmons, Mechanicsburg, Gary Shuey, Carlisle, Jerry Ogline, Carlisle, and Peggy Wynn, Newville.

Extension program highlight included extension reports by Mandy Lehman on the Master Gardener programs and Sallie Gregory reporting on 4-H programs.

The 1999 Cumberland County outstanding 4-H'ers, Amy Kulick and Abby Zarichansky, shared many of their 4-H experiences with the group.

Fred Dillner, co-chair of the 250th Anniversary Agriculture Committee, shared the many projects the committee is planning for the coming year, including participation in the May 13th parade, traveling exhibits, and Farm City tours in September on the farms of Brymesser, Thrush, and Stover.

Mandy Lehman and Millard Ilgenfritz, Master Gardener, also recognized the Master Gardeners who have completed the course work and have provided 50 hours of volunteer service. The following were present and recognized–Amy Holland, Mt. Holly Springs; Gail Stoner and Wendy Plowman, Mechanicsburg; Margaret Bowling and George Green, Carlisle; Lorna Gardner, Newville; Carol Caplinger, Boiling Springs; and J. Michael Larkin, Harrisburg.

Gayle Fry, Carlisle and Dr. Robert B. Weber were presented with the 1999 AA Raudabaugh Memorial Award by the association for their outstanding leadership and service to the county. Gayle Fry served on the extension board of directors for more than 14 years. She represented the poultry industry of the county on its agriculture and national resource advisory committee. She has assisted with the Farm-City Breakfast for county leadership for over 25 years. She is recently serving as second vice president of Cumberland County Society of Farm Women.

Dr. Robert Weber has devoted his life to assisting farmers in the county with their livestock. Weber, a native of the Mechanicsburg area, has served the livestock industry since 1947, when he took over Dr. Moyer's practice. 4-H members and farmers alike appreciate the willingness and dedication that Dr. Weber has extended to the people of the county.

Gene Heyman, co-chair for the 250th Anniversary committee, outlined the many activities that are being planned. Ann Kulick, 1999 dairy ambassador, reported on her busy schedule she has had throughout the fall, providing educational programs to various audiences including elementary students in Cumberland Valley School District.

During the business meeting Richard Ocker, Carlisle was re-elected president. Millard Ilgenfritz, Carlisle, was elected vice president. Cheryl Barrick was re-elected secretary.

Revenue Crop Protection Available In Six Pennsylvania Counties

ALLENTOWN (Lehigh Co.)–Diversified farmers in six Pennsylvania counties are eligible for an innovative whole farm insurance revenue insurance pilot program called the Adjusted Gross Revenue (AGR) crop insurance program.

This new crop insurance is available in Berks, Carbon, Lackawanna, Lehigh, Monroe, and Northampton counties for the 2000 and 2001 insurance years, according to John Berry, agricultural marketing agent.

"The pilot whole farm insurance should work well for Pennsylvania's family farms that grow multiple crops. Many of these diversified producers have few options under traditional crop insurance programs," said Berry.

The adjusted gross revenue insurance plan provides insurance based on the lesser of the individual producer's previous five-year average Schedule F tax information or the expected revenue for the insurance year. This single insurance product covers all agricultural commodities produced by the policyholder. Expanding the whole farm pilot program will provide more experience in insuring whole farm income throughout the United States.

The AGR program was available for 1999 in 82 counties in Connecticut, Florida, Idaho, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, New Hampshire, Oregon, Rhode Island, and Vermont.

The 2000 sales closing date for AGR in Pennsylvania is March 15, 2000.

A listing of crop insurance agents is available at local Farm Service Agency offices and USDA Service Centers.

Adjusted Gross Revenue (AGR)

The Adjusted Gross Revenue (AGR) insurance plan is a non-traditional whole farm risk management tool. The AGR concept uses a producer's historic Schedule F tax form information as a base to provide a level of guaranteed revenue.

AGR:

•Provides an insurance safety net for multiple agricultural commodities in one insurance product.

•Establishes a common denominator for commodity production cash receipts.

•Makes simple and straightforward use of income tax forms.

•Reinforces program creditability by using Internal Revenue Service tax forms and regulations.

The AGR product provides the producer protection against low farm revenue because of unavoidable causes. Covered farm revenue is income from agricultural commodities reported on the Schedule F tax form, including incidental amounts of income from animals and animal products and aquaculture reared in a controlled environment. Incidental livestock income represents the crop production value fed to livestock.

Coverage is available at three levels. 1) 65 percent coverage and 75 percent payment; 2) 75 percent coverage and 75 percent payment; 3) 80 percent coverage and 75 percent payment

The basic coverage is 65/75 and is available to all producers. To qualify for 75/75 coverage three different agricultural commodities must be grown. To qualify for 80/75 coverage eight different agricultural commodities must be grown. Each commodity must meet minimum revenue requirements.

AGR protection is calculated by multiplying the approved gross revenue times the percent coverage level and payment rate selected by the producer. The approved gross revenue is the smaller of:

•The average of the producer's prior five years of Schedule F tax information. The average gross revenue can be adjusted for expanded operations; or •Expected revenue for the insurance year.

For example, a producer with a $100,000 approved gross revenue who chose 80/75 coverage would have $60,000 protection ($100,000 X 80 percent coverage X 75 percent payment)

Loss payments are triggered when the adjusted gross income for the insured year is less than the loss inception point. The loss inception point is calculated by multiplying the approved gross revenue by the chosen percent coverage (65, 75, or 80). Once a loss is triggered, the payment rate is 75 percent of the revenue shortfall. Loss payment for this example would trigger when the income for the insurance year is below $80,000 ($100,000 X 80 percent coverage).

Producer eligibility requirements include:

•Filed five consecutive years of Schedule F tax forms. For 2000, the 1994–1998 tax years.

•Produces eligible commodities.

•U.S. citizen or resident.

•Files calendar year farm tax return.

•No more than 50 percent of allowable income is earned from purchase and resale of agricultural commodities.

•No more than 35 percent of allowable income is from animals and animal products.

•Must have Multi Peril Crop Insurance (MPCI) when more than 50 percent of allowable income is from insurable crops.

This summary is for general illustration only. Contact a private insurance agent to learn more details about AGR and other crop insurance products.

Changing Marketing Landscape, Biote

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

GRANTVILLE (Dauphin Co.) — Traditional USDA grading and pricing systems may have to fall by the wayside in light of a value- and brand-applied, consumer-driven marketplace already taking shape, according to a leading economist and swine industry consultant.

Dennis DiPietre, director of the meats and livestock group, E-Markets, said the failure of trade market structures are the result of "hiding the ball" when it comes to providing information about the process of food from farm to table. That market protectionism is one way in which traditional markets have collapsed in the latter years of the '90s.

DiPietre spoke to about 180 producers, educators, lawmakers, industry analysts, and related agri-industry representatives last week during the second annual Pennsylvania Agriculture In the 21st Century Conference at the Grantville Holiday Inn.

In the recent past, processors and marketers have been focusing on individual costs rather than adding value. But gradually a shift is taking place from cutting production costs and watching overproduction to, instead, closing in on ways to more successfully create and manage product demand in a competitive marketplace.

During the pork industry crisis of 1998-1999, the large producers — with fixed assets in expensive buildings, mechanisms, and feed — struggled to make ends meet. Yet the smaller operators who kept the investment in animals as assets could almost weather the bottoming of prices.

In an ideal, working marketplace, there exists many buyers and sellers with equal and high quality information and homogeneous products with easy entry and exit for processors. All four are "rapidly failing" in today's market realities. Instead, industries are becoming rapidly vertically integrated with more vertical contracting.

According to DiPietre, price discovery and thin markets create an atmosphere where formula pricing and discounts rule. As vertical integration increases and markets fall into the hands of fewer processors, innovation lags. Expenses are passed to the consumers, and joint products — those that have to somehow be marketed from the main product — are overproduced.

Increasingly, however, consumers will pay tremendous amounts of money for attributes from items marketed. They are impressed with the perceived value of the product, noted DiPietre. Even more, creating a specific brand name will dictate that more producers and processors work even closer together to produce a product at less cost, with an in-line genetic and feed system to get those attributes to have brand quality.

Along with those innovations used to create brand quality, many producers are making use of biotechnology, according to DiPietre. Yet the public's perception of biotechnology in the food supply is questionable. According to a survey conducted by the Wirthlin Group in 1997 and 1999, about half of the public have "very little knowledge" about it, DiPietre noted.

Over time, people are increasingly willing to consume biotech foods if the benefit occurred to them. If there was a benefit to the environment, those totally likely to adopt the food stands at 77 percent. The consensus that if the technology will provide benefits to the consumer in five years — would biotech be accepted — is yes.

As an "observer from a certain distance," said Dan Ferber, free-lance journalist from Urbana, Ill., who spoke at the conference, the public's acceptance of biotechnology in agriculture will determine how much can be learned from it.

Ferber said, "It is an understatement to say the issue is controversial. In this debate, no one has a monopoly on the truth."

Ferber displayed headlines from British tabloid newspapers at the conference. He said there are "real consequences" to the use of biotechnology in food crops. "They are serious over there," said Ferber. "People are really frightened."

Some headlines proclaim biotech to be "Frankenstein" foods. One story talks about the "mad forces" of genetic crops.

The U.S., has reacted largely with ignorance and fear. "It's a failure to communicate," Ferber said.

Ferber noted that an idea adopted in Europe could be used here: the "precautionary principle," he said. A product should be proven safe, he said, and thought of as "guilty until proven innocent."

Ferber pointed to a story from August 1998 about a British scientist who noted, in some unreliable research, that a potato variety could stunt rats' growth and cause other problems. "Brit-

Breeding Complete Cow Is Select Sires' Philosophy

PLAIN CITY, Ohio–"Breeding the complete cow has always been the philosophy of Select Sires," said Ron Long, vice president of sire procurement. "Complete cows are what dairy producers really want and need. But the complete cow may mean different things to different producers–high milk production, good feet and legs, high components, sound udders. They're all important but in varying degrees to each individual producer.

"Select's diversified lineup can be used with the utmost confidence to breed the complete cow, no matter what her definition," said Long. "We offer reliable, breed leading genetics that can meet the criteria of any producer's breeding program. No other AI organization can offer Holstein breeders as many bulls over +3.00 for type. Nor does any other stud offer more elite bulls at +3,000 for milk. Plus, our nine new Holsteins increase the variety of our balanced lineup."

As Long stated, Select Sires is home to four bulls at or above +3.00 for type. 7HO5157 Durham leads this elite pack at +3.55. He is followed by 7HO8419 Approval at +3.41 and 7HO5767 Bonanza at +3.05. Anchoring this type team is 7HO6250 Emerson at +3.00. Emerson is also a breed leading TPI sire, ranking among Holstein's Top 10 TPI sires at +1736, a 49 point increase from the November summary.

7HO5253 Caleb and 7HO4637 Winchester have "got milk"! Both are over +3,000 milk and rank among the breed's very best for this trait. Their impressive TPIs of +1553 and +1614, respectively, rank them among Holstein's Top 50 TPI sires.

7HO4351 Barlo added 263 daughters in this summary. At 96% Rel, he's now +2,850M (up 163 pounds), +79P, and +1448TPI.

7HO3707 Mathie continues to be a favorite for Select's customers worldwide. This superior settler added more than 1,600 new daughters this summary and his milk and type proofs climbed even higher. This was also the case with his two sons, 7HO5386 Chil and 7HO5300 Magnum. Both added daughters and are seeing substantial increases across the board. Chil and Magnum are both over +2,000M, +1493TPI and Superior Settlers. Furthermore, Chil is Select's best for Productive Life (+3.3), a measure of the length of time the average daughter of a bull stays in the herd. Magnum is also among Select's best for this trait while his father, ain went ballistic," he said. The British Royal Society trashed the results and the British tabloids "had a field day," Ferber said.

There has been no evidence that using biotechnology in crops has caused any plant, animal, or human any harm. But no evidence on potential dangers, Ferber cautioned, is not the same as clear evidence that a genetically modified crop is safe.

Tests are taken up mostly by the companies that produce the products themselves and data is simply "OK'd" by federal agencies. But the work companies do to test products uses the most reliable scientific methods. "No one has any idea on how to do it any better," Ferber said.

The risk is there. And, Ferber said, who bears the burden of proof?

It's important to put that risk in perspective.

But some important potential environmental and other risks over biotechnology in crops include the following:

- Crop kills on nonpest insects. What effect in the long term will biotech crops have on possible insect "bystanders"?
- Superweeds. Because of using biotech, the technology could result in outbreaks of highly aggressive, hard-to-control giant weeds that could literally take over fields, noted Ferber.
- Bt and other technological resistance. It is important to manage that resistance.

The jury is still out on most of these risks, he noted.

But one positive development is the use of Bt to fight corn rootworm — it would significantly reduce traditional chemical insecticide use, at least for a short time.

Another bright development is the genetically modified papaya tree, the second biggest crop in Hawaii after sugar cane. In the early '90s, the crop was literally wiped out by a virus. But a new genetically modified type has literally turned the tables on the disease.

An important genetically modified crop development is the new golden rice. About 400 million people in the world lack enough Vitamin A. Ferber noted that half a million children in the world go blind each year because of the lack of Vitamin A. The genetically engineered rice has enough Vitamin A to stop the deficiency.

But the "antibiotech" people remain active. Ferber pointed out that the 4th annual "Biodevastation 2000" Conference is scheduled for Boston, Ma., March 24-30. The promoters are looking at the issues of what they consider dangerous developments in technology.

For those who want to adopt genetically modified crops, it's important to remember that "no technology is a panacea," Ferber said. "And no technology is a 'mad force of genetic darkness.' I hope we will use this wisely."

At the conference, Helen Bishop MacDonald, director of nutrition at Dairy Farmers of Canada, noted that an ideal diet would consist of meat/fish/poultry combined with regular dairy products and fruits and vegetables. She urged those who want to eat healthily to avoid fried foods and "foods with hydrogenated vegetable oil," foods containing potentially cancer-causing substances. The hydrogenated oils are "insidious killers in the American diet," she said.

MacDonald refuted the findings of years past to dispel dairy diet "misinformation." Milk is an essential, crucial supplier of lots of other essential nutrients, besides calcium. Milk itself prevents osteoporosis, reduces hypertension, works to help prevent colon cancer, cuts kidney stones, and butterfat contains a fatty acid shown to reduce the possibilities of developing many types of cancer.

Today's children get barely half of the required calcium in their diets, she noted.

Julie Funk, extension food safety specialist with North Carolina Extension Service, noted the challenges and difficulties in coming up with accurate methods to test for salmonella in hogs.

According to several university studies, all-in, all-out, single-source, dedicated-flow systems alone are insufficient to place a check on salmonella in a swine herd. With some types of operations, it has become hard to design a competent, reliable risk factor study, though work proceeds.

David Pyburn, director of veterinary science for the National Pork Producers Council (NPPC), commented on the pork checkoff referendum to take place.

He said that he "hoped it doesn't take time away from real issues" facing the industry.

Pyburn reviewed the NPPC Pork Quality Assurance Level III initiatives and how programs have been implemented to assure pork food safety from the farm to the packer. He reviewed the good production practices in place to ensure quality pork, which is "by far the most consumed meat worldwide."

An NPPC Pork Quality and Safety Summit is scheduled July 11-12 in Des Moines, Iowa.

Mathie, ranks third at +3.0. Keeping it all in the family, 7HO4457 Saber, whose grandam is also Mathie's dam, ranks second for Productive Life at +3.2. Saber added nearly 300 to his proof and climbed +136 pounds of milk and +41 TPI points. Needless to say, this family's results speak for themselves.

One of Select's nine new Holstein sires is 7HO5375 Marshall, a Program for Genetic Advancement (PGA) graduate that is nearly +3,000 for milk at +2,733M. This Bellwood from an Elton is over +1.50 for all HA composite scores and is +2.20 for type. "Marshall sires tremendous frames, outstanding feet and legs and well attached udders," said Long. "He ranks third at Select for TPI at +1604 and will be used as a sire for sons for the PGA." An added bonus is his 8% calving ease.

"7HO5315 Sam sires what every dairy producer wants, high volumes of milk from great udders," said Long. "Sam sires similar type to his father, Elton, and many records throughout Sam's maternal pedigree are over 33,000M up to 43,130M. Sam is outstanding for udder cleft (+3.08) and teat placement (+3.38) which puts him in the top 10 at Select for both traits."

Tenacity Defined

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.)–When Frank Perdue introduced his chickens into the New York metropolitan market in the early 1970s, he spent about six months there in an intensive market survey study interviewing butchers.

He jotted notes from interviews on yellow legal pads and filled over twenty of them. This equaled at least 800 pages of marketing data. It wasnt until he got home that he discovered that he left one note pad in a telephone booth at La Guardia Airport.

Unwilling to accept the fact that he would never again see the missing pad and informed that it was probably in the trash, Frank located the landfill where it had been taken and retrieved it.

Located in Cortland Co., New York - From Rt. 81, take Tully Exit (14), Go South 2 miles on Rt. 281, Watch for Auction Signs on Sale Day.

After 48 Great Years in the Registered Holstein Business, Bill and Jeanne Underwood have decided to hang up the milkers, and do a little traveling and visit the many friends which they have made in the business.

Bill has been fortunate to breed and develop many outstanding animals over the years, including:

A "MOOSEHEART PIONEER" DAUGHTER - Grand at the New York State Fair and The Famous "LOCUST PEAK R MAPLE LULA" - "EX-96", Grand, New York State Fair, & Grand at the Western National.

Many of the Animals Selling are Descendants of These Great Cows!

The Dairy is milked in tie stalls and are housed in free stalls - Approximately 40% are milking in their first Lactation, and 30% are Second and Third Timers. (7) are now milking over 100 Lbs., (10) good, young dry Cows, and (10) Close Springing heifers, plus (25) sell recently fresh.

A FEW TO WATCH INCLUDE:

A Super good "Charles", Now Ex-90" as a 3 Yr. Old, to be scored again before Sale - has a 3 Yr. record of 307 Days 20.957M 738F 681P, Dam is "EX" Astro Jet, who also sells with other 25,000M.

A fancy bred heifer by "Elevation", due after Sale to a Sexation son.

A September "99 Rudolph" heifer that will show, from a "V.G. Starbuck", 2nd Dam a "VG Warden"

SOMETHING FOR EVERYONE IN THIS AUCTION!!

If you want a mature "EX" cow to milk and raise heifers from - she's here!

If you need 100 Lb. from a young cow, she's here! If you are looking for a winning show age calf - she's here, too! If you need a 2 Yr. Old to milk, show, and raise a family from, we have her!

Truly there is something for everyone's taste, needs, and pocketbook selling in this auction.

Linjet, Rudolph, Skybuck, Rorae, Juror, Silver, SWD, Astro Jet, Horace, Delaware, and Melvin.

Service Sires include the above mentioned plus: Comstar Lee, Leader, Counselor, Storm, Lindy, Sunbuck and Others.

Bread-Breaking Recipes Biscuits, Scones, Muffins

Americans love bread and the proof is in the pan, with more than 1,000 varieties on the market today.

Contrary to some people's beliefs, bread is low in fat — about one gram per slice — but rich in complex carbohydrates.

Those numbers change when applied to scones, biscuits, and muffins, but remember — bread is a food staple. Throughout history, bread has been a prime energy source because of its complex carbohydrates, your body's best source of energy.

Research indicates that carbohydrates in the diet help satisfy appetite, and that starchy foods such as bread have a greater influence on a feeling of "fullness" than simple sugars such as candy.

The comforting aroma of baking bread, muffins, scones, and biscuits helps reduce stress. That's right. According to studies not only does the aroma cause people to relax but it's a comfort food that you can indulge in without feeling guilty.

Stress stimulates the breakdown of serotonin, a chemical your body uses to soothe its response to stress. Increased intake of complex carbohydrate-rich foods such as bread and grains may help replenish serotonin levels, and therefore, increase your body's comforting response.

Today's recipes offer a choice for even the pickiest palates. Enjoy!

HONEYED SWEET POTATO BISCUITS

2 cups unbleached flour
1 tablespoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
¼ cup shortening
1 tablespoon grated orange peel
1 tablespoon grated lemon peel
¾ cup sweet potatoes, baked until tender
¼ cup honey
½ cup milk

In a large bowl, mix flour, baking powder, and salt. Add orange and lemon peels, sweet potatoes, and honey; mix well. Add enough milk to make soft but not sticky dough. Turn out onto floured board and knead three to four times. Pat to 1-inch thickness and cut out 2¼-inch rounds. Place on ungreased cookie sheet and bake at 400 degrees for 15-18 minutes or until lightly browned.

PERFECT BUTTERMILK BISCUITS

2 cups all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon baking soda
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup butter, chilled
¾ cup buttermilk
1 tablespoon butter, melted

Heat oven to 450 degrees. In large bowl, combine flour, baking powder, baking soda, and salt; mix well. With pastry blender or two knives, cut in butter until crumbly. Stir in buttermilk just until moistened.

Turn dough onto lightly floured surface; knead 12 to 15 times or until smooth.

Roll dough to ¾-inch thickness. With 2½-inch biscuit cutter, cut into 8 biscuits; place one-inch apart on baking sheet. Brush biscuits with melted butter. Bake for 10-14 minutes or until lightly browned.

Savory Herb Biscuits: Substitue ¼ to ½ teaspoon garlic salt for salt and stir in 1 tablespoon fresh or 1 teaspoon dried herbs such as dill weed, chives or crushed rosemary.

Cinnamon Raisin Biscuits: Omit salt. Stir in ⅓ cup raisins with buttermilk. Brush with melted butter and sprinkle biscuits with sugar before baking.

Land O Lakes

CHEDDAR CHEESE WAFFLES

2 cups sifted flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
3 large egg yolks
½ cup melted butter, cooled
1½ cups whole, low-fat or skim milk
1 cup shredded sharp cheddar cheese

Preheat a Belgian or standard waffle iron. Preheat oven to 200 degrees to keep waffles warm before serving. Sift flour, baking powder, baking soda, and salt into mixing bowl. In another bowl, combine egg yolk, melted cooled butter and milk. Stir liquid and dry ingredients together and add cheese. In a separate bowl, beat egg whites until stiff and fold into batter until barely blended. Spoon batter into waffle iron, covering about two-thirds of the grid surface. Cook until golden. Place waffles into heated oven, uncovered, until ready to serve. Serves four. Tastes great served with butter or salsa.

Tea Time Scones resemble biscuits and are served warm with butter and jam.

BUTTERMILK MELT SCONES

3¼ cups all-pupose flour
2 tablespoons baking powder
½ teaspoon baking soda
2 tablespoons sugar
1 cup plus 2 tablespoons ice cold butter
1½ cups buttermilk

Devonshire Cream:
1 cup heavy cream
½ cup sour cream

Cut butter into one-inch cubes and combine with dry ingredients in a food processor. Process thoroughly. Put mixture in a bowl and chill for at least 10 minutes. Mix flour mixture with enough buttermilk to moisten well. On lightly floured surface, gather into a ball and knead about 13 times. Pat gently into a 1¼-inch thickness and cut into circles with biscuit cutter or into wedges with sharp knife. Place on ungreased baking sheet and bake 20 minutes or until golden. Serve with jam and Devonshire Cream.

Devonshire Cream: Whip heavy cream until it stands in peaks then add sour cream. Mix together.

Hints for perfect scones everytime: Be sure butter is icy cold. Oven must be preheated to prescribed temperature before placing scones in oven. If you don't have buttermilk, put 2 tablespoons regular white vinegar into two cups milk and let set for about 15-20 minutes. Use in place of buttermilk.

To make ahead: Mix dry ingredients and butter as directed. Store in heavy plastic bag in freezer. When ready to bake scones, measure ½ cup flour mixture per scone. Dampen with buttermilk, cut and bake. For best flavor, bake scones to be ready just a few minutes before serving. Serve scones warm with jam and Devonshire Cream. Raspberry jam is traditional. Enjoy with tea and friends.

Mansion Inn
New Hope

ANGEL BISCUITS

2½ cups flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
¼ cup sugar
½ cup butter
¼ cup warm water
1 package dry yeast
1 cup buttermilk

Dissolve yeast in warm water and set aside. Mix dry ingredients as listed: flour, baking powder, salt, and sugar, cutting in butter as for pie dough. Stir in buttermilk and yeast mixture. Blend thoroughly. Knead lightly and roll out. Cut and place on greased sheet. Let the biscuits rise. Bake at 400 degrees until lightly browned. Heavenly!

CHEDDAR CHEESE PUFFS

1 cup shredded cheddar cheese
½ cup all-purpose flour
¼ cup butter, softened
½ teaspoon ground mustard

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. In bowl, combine all ingredients; mix well. Roll into one-inch balls. Place at least one-inch apart on an ungreased baking sheet. Bake 12-15 minutes or until lightly browned. Serve warm. Yield 2 dozen.

These puffs make a great snack.

A scone was originally a Scottish griddlecake made usually of oats, sometimes of barley or wheat. Nowadays, it refers to a small cake, resembling a baking powder biscuit, cut in various shapes, baked in a hot oven or on a griddle, and usually served with butter and jam.

The secret for perfect scones are several: Be sure butter is icy cold. Oven must be preheated to required temperature. For best flavor, bake scones to be ready just a few minutes before serving. Serve warm with butter and jam.

Here's a recipe from the American Egg Board.

TEA TIME SCONES

Cooking spray
3½ cups flour
½ cup sugar
¼ cup mini-chocolate chips
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
¾ cup butter
4 eggs
½ cup non-fat milk

Preheat oven to 425 degrees. Lightly coat baking sheet with cooking spray.

In a large bowl, stir together flour, sugar, chocolate chips, baking powder, and salt. With pastry blender, cut in butter to reseemble coarse crumbs. In medium bowl, beat together eggs and milk. Add egg mixture to the dry ingredients. Stir only until dry ingredients cling together.

On floured surface, with lightly floured hands, pat dough to ¾-inch thickness. With 3-inch round cookie sheet. Bake for 10 minutes or until golden brown. Remove to wire rack to cool.

On Being a Farm Wife (and other hazards)

Joyce Bupp

"What are these?"

That was the puzzled question asked by the friendly, young checkout clerk tallying my bill at a local supermarket a few days ago.

The plastic bag she held up in inquiry contained an undeniable sign of spring.

"Those are onion sets," I explained.

To her blank, questioning look I offered farther explanation: "You plant them in the garden to grow onions."

"I've never heard of them," she admitted, searching the most current list of produce prices to ring up my couple of handfuls of 99-cents-per-pound baby yellow onions.

"Onion bulbs?" she puzzled, flipping through the price listings.

"Well, they might be called that," I hesitated, quoting the price I had seen posted on the cardboard bins of white and yellow onion sets which had flagged me down as I passed them in the produce section. Inevitably, it took an investigative trip by another checkout employee to search out the computer number assigned to identify and price my puzzling little bulbs cradled in the plastic bag.

"Onion sets," announced the returning produce detective, after about a two-minute search through the extensive produce section, confirming my 61-cent purchase of spring promise.

"Don't think I'll bother planting onions this year," I had told The Farmer just a day or so before. Several summer-like afternoons had sent me forth with rake and shovel to clean up last year's garden residue and begin preparations for the upcoming planting season.

But there they were in the supermarket, these onion sets, begging me to take them home. And, there was a section of dark, moist ground I had just finished sprinkling with lime and covering with a stretch of discarded silo-cover black plastic to warm the soil for early plantings. How could I ignore this opportunity?

Snagged again by spring fever.

Besides, we use lots of onions.

Those alluring onion sets popping up for sale at all sorts of retailers are just one of the clues that spring is officially about to happen. No doubt, though, we'll continue to have to alternate shorts and tee-shirts with jeans and heavy sweaters as the fickle season inches forward and the sun creeps a little higher each day.

A vase of slender twigs covered with fat, furry catkins sits on the dining area hutch, courtesy of the nearly 40-year-old pussywillow tree which now towers over a backyard flowerbed. The pussywillow has grown so tall that its fuzz-bearing stems can only be snipped by climbing into the heart of the tree and leaning precariously at angles to reach the young, bloom-bearing growth.

Meanwhile, their cousins, the weeping willows, have transformed from their yellowish, late-winter tint to the green of early Spring. They offer great camouflage to the goldfinches, which are growing their summer plumage and happen to be just about the same shade as the willows.

Three perky daffodil blooms occupy a small vase on the kitchen sink, their white and yellow blossoms like smiles warming a chilly morning. A couple of potted primroses add bright shades of fuschia, orange and blue-violet tucked in among the Christmas cyclamens still bearing pink and red blooms.

And, even if none of nature's plant signs were so obvious of the impending season, another dead-giveaway clue is creating a racket in the meadow. The Canada geese have returned to the pond, with the usual honking, flapping and splashing as the dominant breeding pair stakes out territorial boundaries, relegating the others to less choice spots.

Spring has definitely arrived.

'Scuse me, please.

I gotta' go plant onions.

Sap Is Running In Pennsylvania Reading Terminal Market Celebrates the Pennsylvania Maple Harvest

Ed Emerick of Emerick Maple Products pours fresh maple sap into a jug before preparing to make maple syrup.

PHILADELPHIA (Philadelphia Co.)–Did you know it takes 40-50 gallons of maple sap to make one gallon of maple syrup? Or that Pennsylvania is the fourth largest producer of maple syrup in the U.S.

This March, grab your sweet tooth and head to Reading Terminal Market for a sugary, sticky celebration.

Maple syrup is the nectar of choice this March at Reading Terminal Market, 12th and Arch Streets, Philadelphia. On March 24 and 25, from 10-4 p.m. the Market celebrates the traditional rite of maple sugaring with MAPLE DAZE, a celebration of the Pennsylvania Maple Harvest.

The free event features special guest, Ed Emerick, Blue Ribbon Winner and owner of Emerick Maple Products, demonstrating turning maple sap into maple syrup. In addition to gallons and gallons of fresh syrup, maple candy, maple cream, maple fudge, maple baked goods, and maple toffee corn, the 2000 celebration kicks off with The Battle of the Short Order Cooks: Melrose Diner versus Down Home Diner.

The popular Maple Cafe is back, this year run by Project Home. The celebration includes loads of cooking demonstrations using fresh maple syrup, Pennsylvania crafts people, and children's activities. Maple Daze is hosted by the Pennsylvania general Store.

For more information on Maple Daze or other events, go to readingterminalmarket.org or call (215) 922-2317.

8th Annual Antique Apple Grafting Seminar

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.)–Participants in the eighth Annual Antique Apple Grafting seminar is scheduled on Saturday, March 25 from 1:00 p.m. to 3:00 p.m. in the Visitor Center of Landis Valley Museum will be given hands-on instruction for grafting apple trees. The seminar fee is $20.

The seminar is hosted by the Heirloom Seed Project of Landis Valley Museum and the Backyard Fruit Growers who work together to preserve historic varieties of fruit trees found in Pennsylvania German orchards.

The afternoon seminar will include personal grafting training, written instructions on planting, two rootstocks and dozens of fruitwood scions. If you have a favorite apple or pear tree, you may bring your own. This is a great way to begin a new back yard orchard or add to an existing orchard. Call Landis Valley Museum at (717) 569-0401 ext. 204 today to register.

Landis Valley Museum is a Pennsylvania German living history village and is owned and operated by the Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission with support from the Landis Valley Associates.

Museum hours are 9-5 Monday through Saturday, 12-5 Sunday. Landis Valley is located 2.5 miles north of Lancaster of Route 272/Oregon Pike, a marked exit off both Route 30 and Route 222. Individuals with disabilities who need special assistance or accommodations should call in advance to discuss their needs. PA TDD relay service is available at (800) 564-5984. Call (717) 569-0401 for more information.

Cook It Safely

Cook food to the "T"-temperature that is.

You can improve the quality of food, as well as safety, by using a thermometer. Judging "doneness" by how a food looks works fairly well with scrambled eggs and some fish, but it doesn't work well for hamburgers, roasts, turkey, chicken, meat loaves, and egg casseroles.

It is important to cook food to an internal temperature that destroys harmful bacteria. If you don't, you could get sick.

Hamburgers are a good example. In a study by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, 25 percent of the hamburgers tested turned brown before they reached a safe internal temperature.

On the flip side, some patties remained pink on the inside even when cooked well above a safe temperature. This is particularly true of frozen, pre-formed patties. The conclusion: color is not a good indicator of doneness or safety. As a result, USDA recommends using a thermometer to test the doneness of hamburgers, as well as other meat and poultry products.

In a consumer food safety survey last year, fewer than half of those interviewed owned a food thermometer. Only three percent used one on a regular basis when cooking hamburgers.

Don't own a food thermometer? Have one but it doesn't work, or you can't find it?

It's time to think about getting one. Besides making sure that food gets cooked to a safe temperature, thermometers take the guesswork out of cooking and can prevent over-cooking.

The most common and versatile food thermometer is the bimetallic stemmed thermometer. These are available at most kitchen or grocery stores for less than $5. Check the range of the thermometer on it. Meat and all-purpose thermometers generally read from 0° to 220° F. Candy thermometers measure above the temperature of boiling water.

If you are into gourmet kitchenware, you might want to invest in a digital thermometer. These measure temperatures through a metal probe or sensing area, and display the results on a digital readout. They come in many sizes and are priced from $10 to $35. Because the sensor is located in the tip of the probe, they are ideal for measuring the temperature of thin foods such as hamburgers and chicken breasts.

How do you know if your thermometer is accurate? The best way is to use the ice water test. Fill a large glass with finely crushed ice. Add clean water to the top of the ice and stir well. Immerse the thermometer stem at least two inches into the mixture. The thermometer should read 32° F after 30 seconds. If it doesn't, adjust the calibration nut to the correct temperature.

What temperatures are recommended for safety's sake?

Roasts and Steaks - 145° F

Poultry (chicken breasts) - 170° F

Whole poultry (turkey, chicken) - 180° F

Leftovers, at least 165° F

When food is not cooked hot enough to stop bacteria growth or kill the bacteria that are present, you put your self at risk of becoming ill. Why take the chance? Learn more about food safety by contacting your county extension office.

If A Tree Falls In Your Neighbor's Yard, Does It Make A Lawsuit?

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.)–Poetry readers know there is nothing so lovely as a tree. Unfortunately, poetry goes out the window and accusations can get pretty ugly when trees are involved in legal disputes, said a community forestry expert in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"Most homeowners expect everyone to love their trees because they do," said Bill Elmendorf, urban and community forestry program coordinator and instructor in the School of Forest Resources. "In reality, a neighbor downwind may hate raking the tree's leaves, the tree may have invasive roots or it may block views. If the tree is falling, it may fall on houses, cars or people."

Elmendorf explains that few homeowners understand the laws and legal rights that apply to trees. In addition, most people have no idea that ornamental trees can have a monetary value that can be recovered in court should anything happen to it.

"Some trees can be replaced easily for about $500 to $2,500," Elmendorf says. "An older or landmark tree, believe it or not, can have an assigned value of $25,000 to $60,000, based on size, species, condition and location."

Homeowners should know several key points about trees and the law:

•Who owns the tree? If a tree's trunk is entirely on a homeowner's property, the tree belongs to that homeowner. If the tree straddles the boundary between two properties, the tree is owned jointly by both landowners. "You can't remove it or prune it without the other owner's permission, and you can't prune it to the extent that it will damage the community property of the tree," Elmendorf says.

•Can you trim your neighbor's tree? Property owners have the absolute right to trim back a tree's branches and roots that reach over into their yard. "The property owner only can prune up to the boundary line. Hopefully the pruning will be done correctly," Elmendorf says.

•When am I responsible for damage or injuries caused by my trees? Homeowners are responsible for maintaining their property's trees. "Ignorance is no excuse," Elmendorf warns. "The landowner has two duties: reasonable inspection and care to make sure the tree is safe."

•If my tree falls down, is it an act of God? Elmendorf cites the book "Arboriculture and the Law": 'An act of God represents some inevitable event that could not be prevented by human care, skill or foresight, but which results exclusively from nature's cause, lightning, tempest and floods." Does that mean a homeowner is liable? "All these laws are open to interpretation," Elmendorf says. That's why we have lawyers and courts. The key is to act as a reasonable person should act."

•Can someone remove a tree from my property? No, unless the tree is an imminent hazard to people or property. If a neighbor or a person working for the neighbor removes a tree from the homeowners property, the neighbor may be found liable for replacing the value of the tree.

"A qualified arborist can estimate the value of a tree according to a formula created by the International Society of Arborists," Elmendorf says.

•If my neighbor's apple tree extends into my yard, can I eat the fruit? The fruit of a tree belongs to the owner. Although laws are unclear about fallen fruit, a landowner cannot pick fruit from a neighbor's tree. "Neighbors also cannot prune branches in order to get the fruit," Elmendorf says.

"The best course of action in any dispute involving trees is direct communication," Elmendorf says. "Go and talk with your neighbor first and try to work out a solution. If you have to go to court, because of the high value an ornamental tree can have, make sure you have a good lawyer and a good arborist."

Lancaster Society 20

Lancaster Society 20 of Farm Women met at the home of Vera Herr, March 2. Each member brought a goodie for refreshments.

Devotions were read by President Valarie Ferguson, followed by the Lord's Prayer and Allegiance to the Flag.

In answer to roll call, each member brought a gift to exchange.

Helen Trout reported three cards mailed during the month.

Plans were made to entertain Societies 5 and 15 for the April meeting.

For entertainment, Miriam Leaman gave an interesting book review on "Hidden Latitudes" by Allison Anderson. Prior to the review, she gave a short resume on the life of Amelia Earhart.

The meeting closed by singing the theme song. Members will meet in April at the Memorial United Methodist Church, Quarryville.

Berks Executive Board

The Executive Board of the Berks County Society of Farm Women met March 6, at the Berks County Agriculture Center with 20 members attending.

County president Betsy Sattazahn asked for comments and concerns regarding the State Convention. The County Board agreed that the format, parking, and meal were very good.

Berks County received certificates for 100 percent participation in the Safety Program, The Habitat for Humanity Program, and for new memberships.

The State Farm Women had a booth this year at the Farm Show, Harrisburg. Becky Swallow, first vice president of Farm Women and from Somerset County, was in charge of the booth. New memberships and Farm Women cookbooks were promoted at the booth.

Sattazahn was appointed chairperson of the Farm Show Committee.

Members plan to attend Berks Heim Bingo, April 13 at 6:30 p.m. Members will provide prizes and angel food cakes for residents. Members will also donate centerpieces for the Berks heim Volunteer Service Board dinner.

Lebanon County Farm Women will host the Spring Rally at the Lebanon County Expo, May 17.

Berks Society 11

Berks County Farm Women Group 11 met at the home of Shirley Lentz with seven members attending.

Members answered roll call by stating what they would do if they had a day to do whatever they wanted. Answers included sewing, quilting, skiing, reading, putting together puzzles, talking to plants, and taking a quiet walk.

Members reviewed by-laws and had a quiz on it.

Spring Rally is May 17 at the Lebanon Valley Expo Center.

Berks Society 1

Berks Society 1 of Farm Women held its January meeting at the home of Pearl Levengood. She read Psalm 8, followed by the Lord's prayer and flag salute.

President Gerry Marsteller conducted the meeting. Roll question: Did yo have an enjoyable holiday season? was answered by members present.

Members reviewed the by-laws of the society. Members read their favorite poems.

Ruth Walters was the only member of Society 1 to attend the State Convention.

The February meeting was held at the Pleasant Diner. A tasty luncheon was enjoyed by 18 members. Agnes Noll read Psalm 67.

The Group will celebrates its 60th anniversary on May 11, 7 p.m. at St. Paul's U.C.C., Amityville.

Members exchanged valentines and were told to bring a red item in a brown bag. Everyone brought something different, which made an interesting meeting.

Plant Sale Preview Set

NEWARK, Del.–If you are eager for the sight of blooming flowers, join the Friends of the University of Delaware Botanic Gardens (UDBG) for their slide-show preview of the plants being offered in this year's UDBG plant sale.

The free preview will be held Wednesday, March 30, from 7 to 9 p.m. in Newark at the Girl Scout building at 501 South College Avenue (adjacent to the bridge over the railroad tracks). The actual sale will take place during Ag Day on Saturday, April 29, on South Campus.

Oakleaf hydrangea is the featured plant for the UDBG sale 2000. "A garden gem" is how UD horticulture professor John Frett describes the oak-leaf hydrangea, which has gained in popularity, he adds, because it is easy to grow and offers multiple seasons of display.

"The cone-shaped inflorescences of oakleaf hydrangeas are large, reaching as much as 12 inches in length," says Frett. "The plants almost glow in the autumn landscape as the oak-like leaves turn spectacular colors from orange to red to burgundy."

The UDBG's extensive plant sale list also offers hard-to-find perennials and native plants, including a variety of ferns, hollies, hostas and trees. Horticulture experts will be on hand to answer questions, and refreshments will be served.

For more information and the 2000 catalog when it is released, call Dot Milsom at (302) 831-2531. Or visit the Web site at http://bluehen.ags.udel.edu/ugarden.html.

Miniature Cows Attract Attention

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

GORDONVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — The cute little cattle grazing in the meadows of Aaron J. Fisher, Intercourse, and at his brother-in-law Amos Esch's Rocky Ridge Miniature Farm in Gap catch the attention of passers-by.

But the Amish relatives aren't raising miniature Kentshires and Covingtonshires for people merely to admire their "cuteness." Instead, they believe that the miniature breeds will become more and more in demand as the answer for more efficient natural resource usage.

"People want them for pets, show, breeding, beef, and milking," Fisher said. "They're easy to handle, don't require much space and feed, and are something new and cute."

About two years ago, Fisher, his dad, and Esch saw an advertisement about miniature Kentshires being raised in Washington state. After checking it out, they became so excited about the miniature breeds potential that they each purchased two. The prospect of being the first in the area is also exciting to Fisher.

He said that Washington state is where "things get started." He believes that when two separate and distinct purebreeds are crossed, the results are an animal with hybrid vigor outstanding to either of the parent breeds.

From the Kentshire stock, Rocky Ridge got the idea to genetically engineer a composite breed.

"Now we have four little Covingtonshires," Esch said of the breed that ranges from total black color to black with a white face.

The idea for the Covingtonshire breed materialized when Esch was talking with a member of the International Miniature Cattle Breeders Society. The name Covingtonshire was already in the registry, but they needed someone to blaze the trail and to use a triple cross combination in breeding. Esch was advised that since he had some of the nicest Kentshires, all he needed to do was have them bred to a miniature lowline Angus bull.

According to Fisher, full grown miniature cattle weight 800-900-pounds and are between 42 and 45 inches in height. If they grow to be 48-inches or more, they are no longer considered miniatures. They must exhibit desirable breed characteristics and not dwarf defects.

A primary reason for developing the breed is in response to beef industry changes. Few consumers want 8-12 ounce steaks. A 4-6 ounce steak, low in cholesterol, lean, yet tender is wanted. Certified Covingtonshire beef will be available from the small carcass animals.

The secret is in the small muscle cell structure. Fisher explained that larger animals have striated muscle cell structure, which needs lots of fat or marbelizing to tenderize the steak.

Minature breeds mature at 13-16 months of age compared to standard-size breeds that require 18-24 months. The early maturing combined with the shorter cellular structure contribute to a more naturally tender product.

According to Fisher, there are 17 miniature breeds out of the more than 250 breeds of cattle in the world. He's convinced the interest in miniature cattle will continue to increase.

Miniature cattle appear a bit fatter and wider than that of a partially grown breed of comparative height.

Although the sales hype is to promote a beefy breed, the Amish brothers admit they haven't tasted the meat.

"We are raising them to sell as breeding stock," Fisher said. "I think the breed will appeal to people who don't have much land. All you need is one acre for two."

In the winter, the miniature breeds are fed only hay.

Fisher's miniatures graze in the meadow with his horse and pygmy goats, which are used to keep the grass down in the meadow.

Fisher foresees that people who could not otherwise raise livestock because of limited acreage will want to buy a miniature breed as a pet or for a family milk cow and good-tasting beef calves. At this point, the animals sell between $3,000 and $5,000 each, which is cheaper than Angus miniatures, which sell between $8,000 and $10,000 each.

Fisher said that he is not aware of any susceptible health problems with the miniature breeds.

Small cattle breeds are easier on the land, equipment, and facilities.

Large cattle requires almost constant attention to fencing and barn repairs. Miniature cattle weigh less and their hooves are smaller, so they can't do much damage even if they tried to escape.

"We're just feeling our way through," Fisher said. Some embryo work is tentatively planned. Semen is imported from the Angus Association in Washington state because only a few select bulls are acceptable for breed registration.

For literature and more information, write to Rocky Ridge Miniature Farm, 109 Cambridge Rd., Gap, PA 17527.

Convingtonshire is a breed engineered from a triple cross combination, which were developed from breeding miniature Angus to miniature Kentshires. The Kentshires are miniature Herefords bred with Miniature Irish Dexter. Full-grown miniature cattle measure between 42 and 45 inches and weigh between 800-900 pounds.

Five-year-old Keith Beiler finds these miniature breeds just the right size for a pet. Keith is a neighbor of the Fishers.

Fisher said the primary reason for developing the miniature breeds is in response to beef industry needs for a smaller, more tender steak. But he and his brother-in-law are raising Kentshire and Covingtonshire for breeding stock. Fisher said the miniature animals appeal to people who have only an acre or two of land and want to raise them for pets, for family milk supply, or for beef. Smaller breeds are easier on land, equipment, and facilities.

Consumers Warm Up To Unique Milk Drinks

PHILADELPHIA (Philadelphia Co.)–Crowds were invited to "get steamed" by sampling flavored milk steamers during The Book and The Cook Fair weekend (February 25-27) at the Philadelphia Convention Center. Sponsored by the American Dairy Association/Dairy Council Middle Atlantic, the "got milk? Get steamed!" campaign was a huge hit with the Fair attendees.

Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Alternate, Amanda Gilkinson, helps prepare flavored milk steamers at The Book and The Cook Fair in Philadelphia."

After sampling these scrumptious drinks and watching demonstrations on how to make steamers, consumers were able to purchase inexpensive frothers and flavored syrups to create these beverages at home. Nutrition information and recipe ideas were also offered at ADA/DC's "got milk? Get steamed!" exhibit booth. Several Pennsylvania dairy princesses were on hand to help with the promotion during the weekend.

Crowd reaction was extremely favorable according to Deanna Rose, registered dietitian with ADA/DC. "People who usually do not drink milk could not believe how delicious the steamers tasted. They were even more surprised when they discovered these drinks were healthy, too," she said.

As an associate sponsor of The Book and The Cook Fair and Festival, the nation's largest food expo, ADA/DC Middle Atlantic promoted flavored milk steamers at many other events during celebration week following the Fair (February 28-March 4).

Fifty of Philadelphia's finest restaurants offered milk steamers and latte drinks on their menu during the Festival week. Also, some of Philadelphia's most prominent chefs created specialty steamer drinks and demonstrated these recipes downtown to lunchtime crowds at The Shops at Liberty Place throughout the week.

Mulch Ado In the Garden Means Better Growth and Quality

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.)–Applying mulch may be one of the simplest elements of working in a garden, but a Penn State horticulture specialist says there's a lot more to it than just dumping a bag of mulch around plantings.

"More and more gardeners are using mulch materials as an ornamental part of their landscape design, choosing mulches for texture and color," says Robert Nuss, professor of ornamental horticulture in the College of Agricultural Sciences. "If you're mulching in a large area with no plants, then there really are no guidelines needed for application. If you are mulching around plants, it's best to follow a few simple rules that will increase growth and improve the health of a plant."

Nuss says most mulches are comprised of hardwood bark, cypress bark, bark nuggets, wood chips or other materials. Choose a mulch with the following features:

- Consistent color and texture.
- Compaction resistance.
- Wind and water erosion resistance.
- Slow rate of decomposition.
- Ability to reduce weed growth.

All mulches must allow an exchange of gases–oxygen into the soil and carbon dioxide out of the soil–as well as water penetration into the soil," Nuss says. "A coarse-textured mulch will enhance both gas exchange and water penetration. If your choice of mulch slows or stops these processes, plants will decline and die."

Most mulches should be just two to four inches deep, Nuss explains. Gardeners should use the low end of that scale on heavy clay soils, and the upper end of the scale for loose, sandy soils. "Too much mulch smothers the roots by reducing gas exchange," he says. "Deep layers of mulch also will absorb all the water from light rains, holding it well above the root system."

Nuss also points out other benefits from mulch:

- Moisture conservation. If mulch is applied correctly, soil water evaporates slowly, giving plants a consistent moisture source." As the mulch breaks down, the soil's ability to hold water may improve," Nuss adds. "Mulched plants always will survive a drought better than unmulched plants."
- Water Infiltration. Mulch cushions the impact of raindrops against the soil surface, allowing water to gently flow into the soil. "When rain falls on bare soil, it disrupts the soil structure at the surface and causes a certain amount of compaction," Nuss says. "By slowing down the inward movement of water, mulch reduces soil erosion."

Nuss warns that gardeners should not pile mulch on plants indiscriminately, particularly around the trunks of trees or shrubs. "Piling mulch against a trunk causes bark decay and other health problems," Nuss says.

He also points out that gardeners who create large mulched areas with no plants within a garden may want to lay a covering of landscape fabric or plastic on the soil to control weed growth.

ANSWER — A reader wanted a recipe to make bread filling in a casserole dish. Thanks to Belinda Myers, Dallastown, for sending the recipe her family loves.

Bread Filling

1 large square loaf bread, cubed
½ cup diced celery
¼ cup diced onion
½ cup butter
2 eggs
1¼ cups milk
Salt and pepper to taste
Fresh parsley, if desired

Saute onion and celery in small saucepan over medium heat until softened with butter.

Place cubed bread into large bowl. Sprinkle with salt and pepper, tossing gradually.

Beat eggs and milk into small bowl until mixed well.

Place saute mixture over bread. Toss with a fork. Add milk mixture. Moisten well, but do not make too wet. Place into a greased casserole dish. (I usually drizzle chicken stock over top). Bake in a 350-degree oven for 35-45 minutes or until lightly browned.

ANSWER — Doris Vanderlily from Ottsville wanted a recipe for salt bread that is made in a bread machine. Here's one from Teresa Wright, for regular bread making. Perhaps you can adjust it for machine usuage or if anyone has a salt-rising bread recipe for bread machines, please send it in.

Minnesota Centennial Salt-Rising Bread

1 cup milk
2 tablespoons sugar
1 cup lukewarm water
1 teaspoon melted butter
2 tablespoons corn meal
2 teaspoons salt
5 cups presifted flour, more or less

Scald milk. Cool to lukewarm. Turn into large mixing bowl. Stir in cornmeal, 1 tablespoon sugar, and 1 teaspoon salt. Cover; place mixing bowl in large pan of hot water. Let stand 6-7 hours until signs of fermentation, or bubbles, appear. Add remaining sugar and salt, water, and 2 cups flour. Beat thoroughly. Cover. Let rise for 2-3 hours, or until doubles in blulk and is very light. Then, gradually add remaining flour to batter, mixing we..

Add more flour, if necessary, so dough is stiff enough to knead. Turn onto lightly floured board. Knead 10-15 minutes. Shape into two loaves. Place in two greased 9½-inch loaf pans.

Brush tops with butter. Cover. Let rise until very light and more than doubled in size. Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Bake in preheated oven for 10 minutes. Reduce temperature to 350 degrees. Bake 25-30 minutes longer.

ANSWER — Eileen from Pitman wanted a recipe to make Montgomery pie. Thanks to Ruth Aument, Peach Bottom, for sending a recipe.

Montgomery Pie

Four unbaked 9-inch pie crusts

Wet bottom:

1 cup sugar
1 cup King syrup molasses
2 tablespoons flour
2 cups water

Boil together ingredients until clear. Add grated rinds of two lemons; set aside.

Batter:

½ cup vegetable shortening
2 eggs
3 cups cake flour
1 tablespoon baking soda
1 cup whole milk
2 cups sugar

Mix together ingredients like a cake batter.

Spread one tablespoon batter over bottom of each pie shell to prevent pastry from getting soggy. Evenly divide we bottom liquid among the four pie plates and drop batter onto liquid. Bake at 425 degrees for 15 minutes. Reduce temperature to 350 degrees and bake an additional 20 minutes.

ANSWER — Thanks to Ruth Aument, Peach Bottom, for sending this recipe for K. Moyer, Summerville.

Cracked Wheat Bread

4¾-5¾ cups unsifted all-purpose flour
3 tablespoons sugar
4 teaspoons salt
2 packages active dry yeast
1½ cups water
½ cup milk
3 tablespoons butter
1 cup cracked wheat

Mix two cups flour, sugar, salt, and yeast in large mixing bowl, set aside. Combine water, milk, and butter in a saucepan; heat over low heat until liquids are warm. Gradually add liquids to dry ingredients; beat two minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally. Add cracked wheat, beat at high speed two more minutes. Stir in enough additional flour to make a soft dough.

Knead dough on a lightly floured board until smooth and elastic.

Place dough in a greased bowl, turning to grease top; cover and let rise in warm place until doubled (about one hour).

Punch down, turn out onto lightly floured board. Cover and let rest on board for 15 minutes, shape into two loaves. Place in greased loaf pans; cover and let rise in a warm place another hour. Bake in preheated 400-degree oven for 30 minutes or until done. Remove from pans and cool on wire racks.

Berks Seeks Dairy Princess Candidates

LEESPORT (Berks Co.)–The Berks County Dairy Princess Committee is looking for girls interested in promoting the dairy industry, to serve on our 2000 promotion team.

This past year, Berks had a team of 16 promoters, that included princess Michelle McMichael, Alternate Lucinda Bray, Li'l Miss Ashley Mohn, and 13 ambassadors. They have spent the past year working hard spreading the news about dairy products and the dairy industry in Berks County.

As the pageant approaches, the committee is looking for new dairy princess candidates who enjoy dairy products and would like to promote the dairy industry in Berks County. The qualifications for dairy princess include single girls between the ages of 16 to 24. She must be a daughter of a dairy farmer, a dairy farm manager, herdsman, or someone employed in the dairy industry. Or she must be employed in one of the above categories or own two or more dairy cattle in a 4-H or FFA project. The deadline for all interested candidates is April 1.

The committee is also looking for candidates for Little Miss Dairy Princess. These contestants must be between the ages of 4 to 6. The deadline for all Li'l Miss contestants is April 7.

This year the Berks County Promotion team had 13 active dairy ambassadors. The Committee is again looking for any boys or girls ages 13 and up to become a dairy ambassador.

The annual Berks County Dairy Princess Pageant will be held Saturday, May 3, at the Berks County Agricultural Center. Any girls interested in joining the dairy promotion team, call Frances or Jennifer Davis at (610) 926-3548 by the deadlines listed above. Also anyone interested in attending the pageant, you may also contact Frances or Jennifer.

Softened Water Can Cause Hard Times For Indoor Plants

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.)–If your indoor plants or plants brought in for the winter seem to be faring poorly, a Penn State horticulture expert suggests taking a hard look at softened water as the culprit.

"There isn't any research that tells us which plants can be injured, but plants do vary widely in their tolerance for softened water," said J. Robert Nuss, professor of ornamental horticulture in the College of Agricultural Sciences. "In many cases, water from a mechanical softener will harm plant growth."

Nuss explains that hard water contains large amounts of calcium and magnesium, which are plant nutrients. However, these minerals reduce how well soap lathers when washing clothing or other items. "The minerals in hard water often combine with soap to form the ring you see in bathtubs or wash bowls," he says.

Many homeowners soften their water by using a filtration system to exchange the calcium and magnesium in the water for sodium, creating a softer water that allows soap to function better.

"Sodium is used by plants only in very small amounts," Nuss says. "Over long periods of time, too much sodium becomes toxic."

Nuss says excess sodium will damage the soil quality around the plant's root system by breaking down the soil structure, thus reducing drainage. Nuss says savvy plant lovers can save their plants in several ways.

•Leaching. Using rainwater or unsoftened water to water your plants will leach high levels of sodium out of the soil.

•Elevation. By placing your plant on gravel or a similar material, a reservoir is formed to collect water passing through the soil. "Never allow plants to stand in softened water," Nuss warns.

•Repotting. Fresh potting soil will provide a new environment for the roots, free of excess salts.

Other water additives used by municipal water systems, chlorine and fluorine, also can harm some plants. Trace elements are needed in very small amounts to keep plants healthy. "In excess, like sodium, they can be toxic," he says.

Chlorine generally presents less of a headache for houseplants, Nuss explains. "Chlorine can be eliminated from water by heating or aeration, or by letting the water stand in a container overnight before watering the plants."

Fluorine can adversely affect plants at concentrations as low as .1 part per million. In some municipal water supplies, 10 times that amount is added to prevent tooth decay. "A good indicator of fluorine content is the spider plant, or Chlorophytum, which will show spotted leaves or burned tips when fluorine is present," Nuss says.

Houseplant gardeners can deter the effects of fluorine by adding two teaspoons of limestone per six-inch pot of soil. Lime raises the pH of the soil and combines with fluoride in a chemically insoluble form that plants cannot take up through the roots, according to Nuss.

Dairy Of Distinction Seeks Nice Looking Farms

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Do you take pride in maintaining your dairy farm? Does your farm project an attractive, wholesome image to consumers? If so, the Dairy of Distinction Program of Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, and Vermont is looking for you.

The Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Program that oversees the Distinction program was first started in 1983 in Pennsylvania. The Dairy of Distinction recognize the hard work and dedication of the farmers who maintain attractive farms.

The purpose of the program is to instill a greater sense of confidence in the wholesomeness of dairy products, thus increasing sales.

Farms that apply are judged on the roadside appearance of building, grounds, and surroundings, since this is what our dairy product consumers observe as they drive by the farm.

The cleanliness of the barnyard, feed areas, and manure management are all areas taken into consideration when a team of judges takes a look at your farm from the road. Your milk cooperative or handler will be contacted to approve your milk quality.

Judging is conducted during the month of May. Award winners are announced during local June Dairy Month activities. To qualify for consideration, you must be actively dairy farming and shipping milk.

Del-Jame Farm near Hamburg in Berks County is a 1999 Dairy of Distinction winner. Since the program began in 1987 in Pennsylvania, more than 700 farms have been given this farm beautification award. Entries are now being received for the year 2000 program. Take time to enter your farm now.

Applications are available for Pennsylvania dairy farms from Michael O'Conner, 324 Henning Building, Dept. of Dairy and Animal Science, Penn State University, University Park, PA 16802. Phone: (814) 863-3913.

New York State applications are available from Carol Keene-Ainsille, 3993 Jordonville Road, Jordonville, NY 13361. Phone: (315) 858-2770.

For New Jersey applications, contact Joy Ricker, 91 Beemer Road, Sussex, NJ 07461. Phone: (973) 875-4803.

For Vermont applications, send to Elisa Clancy, Vermont Department of Agriculture, 16 State Street, Drawer 20, Montpelier, VT 05620-2901. Phone: (802) 828-3835.

All applications must be completed and returned to your respective state secretary by April 15, 2000.

The Dairy of Distinction program is financed in Pennsylvania by dairy farmers through the American Dairy Association & Dairy Council Mid East and the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program in cooperation with many local agribusiness organizations. The program is conducted with advice and help from the Penn State Cooperative Extension.

HOW IS YOUR FARM SCORED?

Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Program Inc.

Awards will be based upon neatness, good maintenance, and other factors that can be controlled by the farmer. Attractive background scenery should not be weighted heavily in judging. All judging observations should be made from a vehicle at one or more points on an adjacent public highway. If the farm is off the road, the judging will take place from the nearest lane. Judging should give equal consideration to old wood construction and new construction of metal or concrete block.

The award program may be used for subsequent advertising or promotion activities for dairy products or dairy farming. Farmers who apply for the award agree that if selected they will cooperate with these promotion activities and make all reasonable efforts to maintain both the exterior and interior of heir properties in an acceptable manner.

HOW THE APPLICATION WORKS

The owner or operator of the dairy farm should sign the application and send it to the Dairy of Distinction state secretary by April 15.

HOW THE JUDGING WORKS

Judging teams will visit farms during the month of May. Farms will be judged each year as the award is presented on an annual basis Any dairy failing to maintain appearance standards will be asked to remove their signs The Dairy of Distinction signs remain the property of the committee, not the property of the dairy farmer All farms must achieve a compliance score of 90 percent on their Dairy of Distinction score card. Your cooperative or milk handler will be contacted to approve your milk quality

RULES FOR THE DAIRY OF DISTINCTION AWARD

1) The Dairy of Distinction sign remains property of the Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Committee.
2) The post and bracket shall be supplied by and maintained by the dairy farmer. It is suggested that a wood post 4' x 4' x 12' or iron pipe 2' x 12' can be used Posts or pipe should be installed and maintained in true vertical position with 8' above ground. Top of the bracket should be lower than six inches from the top of the post.
3) Signs shall be displayed in front of the dairy at roadside. An attractive post or bracket, or other frame, shall be used to display the sign. No more than three signs should be displayed from the sign frame or post, and all shall be of a style, general size, and quality comparable to the Dairy of Distinction sign. Sign should be secured on all sides to avoid wind damages
4) Signs shall not be moved to other premises New owners of a Dairy of Distinction farm must apply to retain the sign
5) Replacement of damaged signs is at the committee's discretion
6) No producer shall be charged with scoring or sign expenses.
7) Judges' decisions will be final.
8) Judging will take place between May 1st and May 31st
9) Farms awarded a Dairy of Distinction sign in previous years will be judged between April 1st and April 30th. If they do not qualify, they will be rejudged between May 1st and May 31st so they have the opportunity to keep the sign.
10) Farms that do not requalify will return the sign to their regional Dairy of Distinction committee.

Dairy of Distinction
2000 Pennsylvania Application

PURPOSE OF PROGRAM

Attractive dairy farms give the consumer greater confidence in the wholesomeness of milk and stimulate milk sales which encourages public support for the dairy industry The award gives recognition to the dairy farmer for maintaining a well-kept farmstead

ELIGIBILITY

All Northeast dairy farms producing milk for sale are invited to submit an application for the award Dairies receiving the 10 highest scores in each of the 21 districts will receive an 18" x 24" Dairy of Distinction sign to be displayed in front of their farm

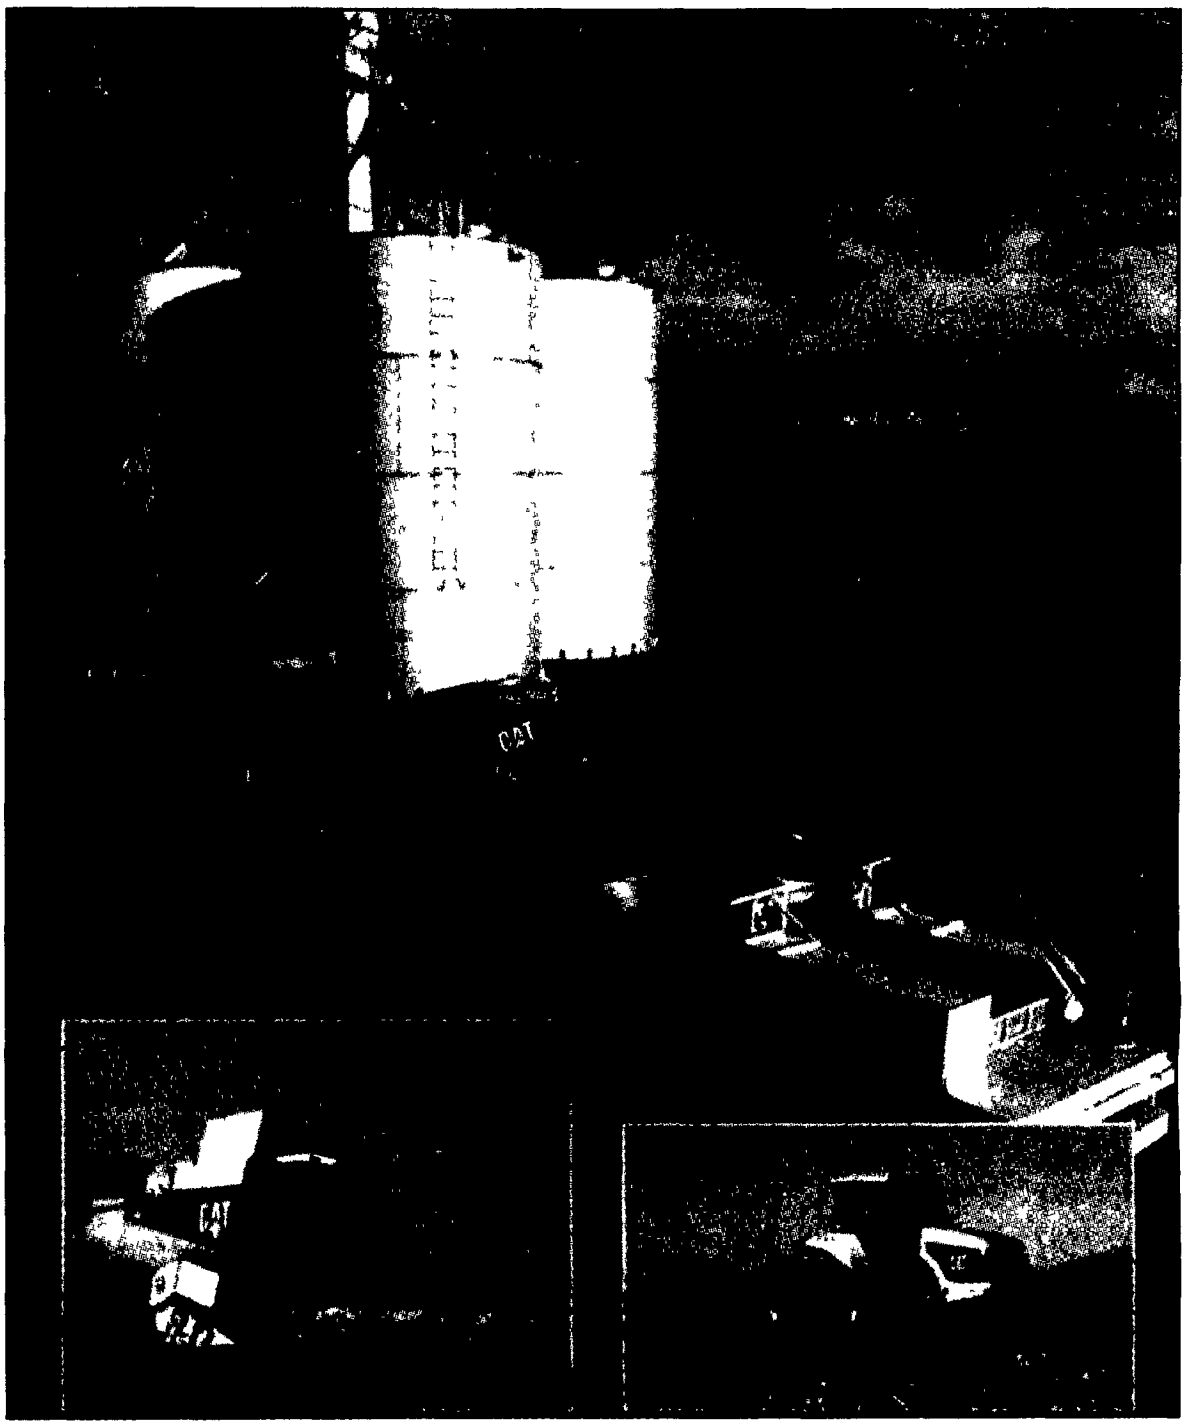
Celebrating Agriculture With National Ag Day

Agriculture Step by Step

In the early decades of the United States farm, families were self-sufficient. They provided for themselves by raising crops and livestock, making their own clothes, gathering fuel for heating and cooking, and constructing their homes and shelter. Food was primarily grown or raised to feed the family. Since the 1800s, science and technology have helped make agriculture more productive. Around 1850, each U.S. farmer produced enough food to feed five people. By 1940, one farmer grew or raised enough to feed 19 people.



Today, the United States is the most productive agricultural country in the world, with a diversity ranging from orange groves and cotton farms to cranberry bogs and fish farms. Each U.S. farmer produces food and fiber for 129 people - 101 in the United States and 28 in other countries. The United States has 6 percent of the world's land area and its farmers produce 16 percent of the world's food supply. In the mid-1990s about 975 million acres of land were committed to farming, either as cropland, grazing land, timberland or fish farms.

The United States had about 2 million farms in the mid 1990s, including more than 145,000 farms operated by women. The average farm size was 478 acres. A farm is defined as any establishment that sells, or would normally sell, $1,000 or more of agricultural products during the year. The farm population of 4.6 million people represents about 1.9 percent of the total population.

Today, most Americans do not grow or raise their own food. There are now several steps and numerous people and careers involved in the production process of getting the food from the field to the consumer. In general, the production process involves three primary groupings: raw-goods producer, middleman and consumer. Numerous people are involved with the work in each of these primary groupings. The final group, the consumer, is you, family friends, anyone who purchases and/or uses the final product.

Every step of the production process requires numerous resources and involves many careers. Agriculture and its related industries provide jobs for almost 23 million people in the United States. In addition:

* Nearly two million people operate or are employed directly in farming
* About four million people produce the machinery and resources used on the farm or process and market what farmers produce.
* More than 17 million people are employed in wholesale and retail operations to get farm products to the consumer.

Agriculture offers many challenging and fulfilling careers, both in farmin gand ranching and in related industries. The wide variety includes farm managers; farm economists; food scientists: seed producers; fertilizer manufacturers; crop consultants; plant and animal scientists; food inspectors: agricultural teachers: agricultural pilots; cooperative extension agents; soil scientists; pesticide product developers; distributors; shipping personnel; storage personnel; marketing specialists; sales people; designers and manufacturers of various bottles, cans, bags and boxes; agricultural journalists and photographers; nutritionists; truck drivers; utility personnel; supermarket managers; and many others.

Ag Equipment Service Builds on Past Success, Emerging Trends

As ag equipment companies look for ways to thrive in a down economy, farmers are seeing big changes in how these companies do business, including providing service and maintenance for their machines. In many cases, farmers are seeing a rise in on-site service as some dealerships consolidate or close.

Some companies, such as Caterpillar, are looking to the past as well as the future for information on what makes a strong service program. According to Caterpillar management, years of experience in other industries can provide a looking glass for the industry on how to support farmers who need it.

Capitalize on Equipment Investment

"We want our customers to get all the value they pay for when they buy a Challenger(r) tractor," says Rae Kurth, Agriculture Business Unit manager, Ziegler Inc., Minneapolis, Minn., a long-time Caterpillar dealership. "Caterpillar has designed a lot of rebuildability into its tractors, but in order to take advantage of that, owners need to think about their machine's long-term care and maintenance."

Preventing problems is what Caterpillar has been doing in all its businesses for years. "We've always emphasized that components have life limits on the industrial side," says Kent Lynch, Caterpillar service engineer. "It's no different with our ag equipment. Components signal their wear through reduced tractor-performance, noise or abnormal oil samplings. These indicators can help farmers replace worn parts before complete failure causes costly down time."

To help farmers manage their equipment, Caterpillar recommends regular preventive maintenance, including oil sampling in all component reservoirs. "Oil sampling is a very accurate predictor of problem areas and can help prevent catastrophic failures," Kurth notes. "A bearing that seizes and goes to complete failure may damage a lot of other parts, such as gears and shafts, that would not have needed replacement if the initial problem had been caught before failure."

Most Caterpillar dealerships are equipped with labs for oil-sample analysis to detect materials that indicate component wear. As owners compile a sampling history, technicians can tell when something out of the ordinary is occurring and make recommendations to deal with the problem.

Service in the Field

How to service equipment quickly is another lesson Caterpillar has learned from its construction business. Caterpillar has found the best way to service machines can be to bring the repair shop to the field when that makes the most sense.

"Just like the construction industry, service response time in agriculture is critical," Kurth notes. "We don't necessarily try to pick up machines and bring them into our shops-we do as much work as possible in the field. We can be far more responsive that way."

Caterpillar mobile service units go from one job to the next, unencumbered by service bay scheduling challenges that can delay repairs at dealership shops. "Building space and scheduling limitations can be obstacles to prompt service," Kurth explains. "When our serviceman arrives, he's ready to go to work. He has a laptop computer on board for communicating with the dealership, and to resource technical data, obtain machine history and order parts."

Service of the Future

Just as technology advancements have brought computers and cell phones to today's mobile service units, further developments will bring more service-related enhancements in the next few years, Lynch predicts.

"One of our dealers has already installed enhanced GPS units on its rental Challengers, which communicate data about the machines' location and operation to the dealership," Lynch notes. "Hours of use and engine parameters are relayed to dealer managers who monitor maintenance needs. Similar technology will likely be available for customers' tractors within the next few years."

As ag equipment dealerships continue to consolidate and cover larger geographical areas, Kurth foresees other companies moving towards Caterpillar's service philosophy. "If you look at the likely paradigm for the ag dealership of the future, I think it's going to look pretty similar to what Cat dealers are doing today."

You ask You answer

This column is for readers who have questions but don't know who to ask for answers.

"You Ask—You Answer" is for non-cooking questions. When a reader sends in a question, it will be printed in the paper. Readers who know the answer are asked to respond by mailing the answer, which will then be printed in the paper.

Questions and Answers to this column should be addressed to You Ask—You Answer, Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. Attention: Lou Ann Good.

Or, you may e-mail questions and answers to lgood.eph@lnpnews.com

Please clarify what question you are answering when responding.

Do not send a self-addressed, stamped envelope for a reply. If we receive the answer, we will publish it as soon as possible. Please include your phone number because we sometimes need to contact the person to clarify details. We will not publish your phone number unless you request it.

Horse Teams to Horsepower: Caterpillar Tractors Lead the Way for 75 Years

DEKALB, Ill. (February 9, 2000) - A crystal ball may have been the only way to foresee all that would result when C.L. Best Tractor Co. and Holt Caterpillar Co. joined forces back in 1925, and few would have guessed that track technology would grow to serve so many industries. As Caterpillar marks its 75th anniversary this year, the company is celebrating its development of track technology throughout the years and is particularly proud of its agricultural heritage.

"From the early days of steel tracks to current rubber-belted track technology, we have continued to improve and refine our equipment throughout the years," says Bob Strube, president, Caterpillar Agricultural Products Inc. "As Caterpillar Inc. celebrates its 75th anniversary, we're especially proud of our roots in agriculture and our leadership in bringing new technology to the farm today. We know our experience is recognized by farmers when it comes to track machines in agriculture."

Tracks Debut in Early 1900s

As early as 1906, when the first Holt "Caterpillar" tractor with steel tracks was introduced, company engineers recognized the flotation benefits of the new technology.

By the time the two companies merged, they had collectively pioneered track tractors and the gasoline-powered tractor engine.

"Non-adjacent fields and increasing miles of asphalt-paved roads caused a decline in the use of steel-track tractors over the course of time," Strube notes. "Mobility between fields became a huge issue - farmers couldn't drive steel tracks down paved roads."

Caterpillar solved that problem with the introduction of the rubber-belted Challenger(r) 65 tractor in 1986. Farmers then had the benefits of tracks-flotation, traction and reduced soil compaction plus the mobility needed to travel between fields over any type of road. Since then, the Challenger tractor line has expanded to range from the versatile 175-PTO-horsepower Challenger 35 to the powerful 410-gross-engine-horsepower Challenger 95E.

Machines Evolve, Ideas Endure

"From the beginning, Caterpillar has changed the way people think about farming. Our Challenger tractor line is the result of blending new technology with some of Holt and Best's original ideas that still make a lot of sense today," Strube says. "Their original agricultural tractors were based on a systems approach to solving problems and improving operational efficiency."

Strube lists diesel engines, front-end suspension and combined harvesting technology as examples of those enduring ideas. "Holt and Best also were well aware of the fundamentals of tracks-flotation and traction and their importance in agricultural production," Strube says. "We continue to leverage those proven ideas with what Caterpillar has learned as a leader in other industries like construction, mining, forestry and power generation."

Caterpillar continues to invest in research as it sets the pace for others competing in the track technology field, Strube adds. "We are constantly looking for ways to help farmers lower their per-acre costs and increase profits. Our customers keep us in business, and we intend to help keep them in business."

Cat Ag Product Group Created

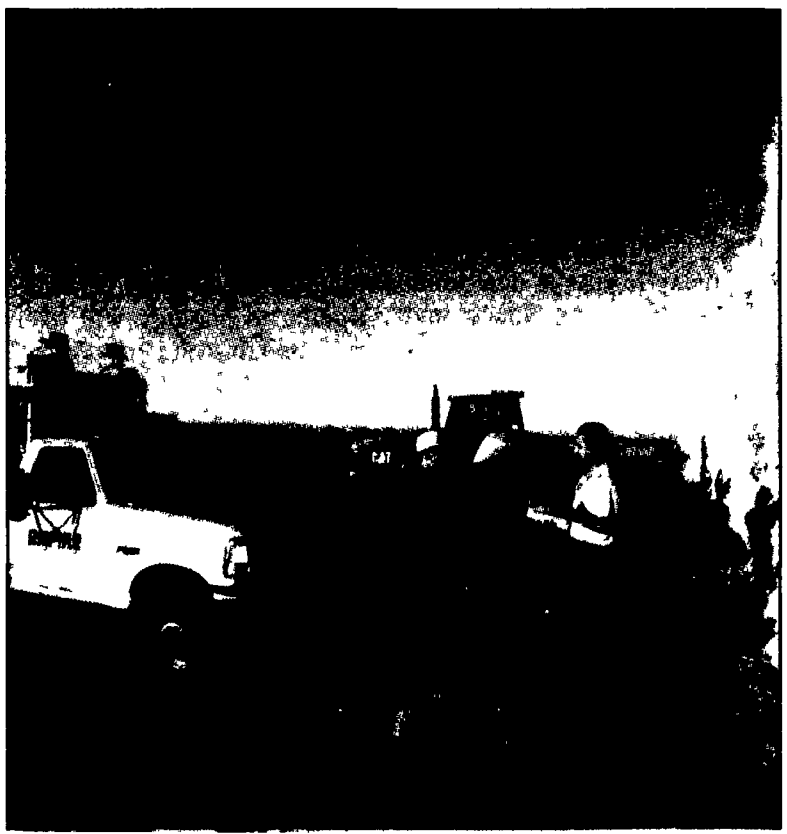
Caterpillar Inc. established an agricultural product group in 1990, with design and marketing responsibilities for the company's agricultural products. During the next five years, the Challenger tractor line was expanded to include both tillage and row-crop model track tractors. Caterpillar also developed the Versatile Flotation System (VFS) trailer, a rubber-track platform for grain carts, spray rigs and manure spreaders.

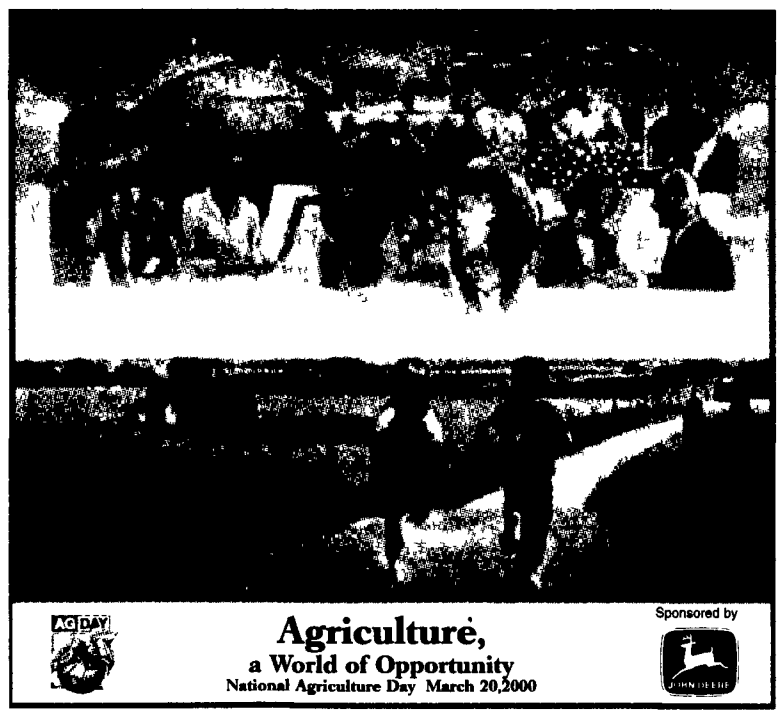
With the agricultural product group's continued growth, the company formed Caterpillar Agricultural Products Inc. as a wholly owned subsidiary in 1996. And in July 1997, Caterpillar entered into a joint venture with Germany-based Claas KGaA to manufacture and market Lexion(r) combines, which offer the highest production capacity of any combine in the world.

Today's product lineup includes seven Challenger tractor models and two models of the VFS trailer, all manufactured at the Caterpillar facility in DeKalb, Ill. Final assembly of the six Lexion combine models takes place in Omaha, Neb., where construction is underway on a new Caterpillar combine manufacturing facility. A variety of specialized material-handling products, including skid steer loaders, backhoe loaders and telescopic handlers, also serve the needs of the agricultural marketplace.

About Caterpillar Inc.

Along with its growing presence in the agricultural industry, Caterpillar is the world's largest manufacturer of construction and mining equipment, diesel and natural gas engines, and industrial turbines. Headquartered in Peoria, Ill., the company posted record sales and revenues in 1999 of US $19.7 billion. Learn more from your local dealer or visit the Caterpillar Web site at http://www.CAT.com.





Tracks Keep Harvests Timely, Without Getting Into a Rut

(Omaha, Neb., February 8, 2000) - Track tractors have been "floating" across farmland throughout the country for the past decade, and by now their benefits are evident to all who use these machines. Recently track technology has found its way into the harvest operation as well, and farmers are finding many of the same benefits in using tracks at harvest as they did during spring planting.

In its second year on the market, the Lexion(r) combine from Caterpillar, which comes in track and wheel versions, is helping farmers keep harvests on schedule, even in wet field conditions. And, as with a track tractor, tracks on a combine help minimize compaction.

"With the combine being the heaviest machine in the field, we know it's a big candidate for compacting the soil," says Jack Bartlett, a corn and soybean grower from Dallas City, Ill. "It stands to reason that tracks, which widen the footprint of the machine and spread the weight out, would help on a combine."

Compaction Hinders Yields

A Lexion 465 combine is the most recent weapon Bartlett is using in his battle with compaction. "We quit moldboard plowing years ago and went to chisel plowing and then ripping with the V-rippers, trying to break up compacted soil," he notes. "We weren't able to do much to prevent compaction caused by our machinery until tracks came along, though. We bought a Challenger(tm) tractor with rubber-belted tracks about four years ago and now have a Lexion combine on tracks."

Bartlett had a good opportunity to see the positive effects of tracks on his yields when he did a test on one of his soybean fields. "We ran the Challenger over half the field and a four-wheel-drive tractor on the other half," he recalls. "We got two bushels per acre better yield on the half where we'd run the Challenger."

Yield statistics like this come as no surprise to Dr. Jim Ladlie, a farmer and president of Agri-Growth(r), an agricultural research and education company based in Hollandale, Minn. "When it comes to harvesting, the top compaction problems out there are the combine and grain cart. You can see a definite pattern of running those heavy machines through the field, especially after a wet fall," he says.

Ladlie has run track machines on his farm for the past five years, including a Case Quad-Track for two years and now Challenger tractors for the past three years. "We're seeing a continuous improvement in the porosity and permeability of the soil," he said. "Track vehicles have been essential in helping us manage compaction. We're also trying to reduce trips over the field and use wider equipment so that we don't have as many wheel passes through fields. As a result, we're seeing steady improvement in the soil structure and productivity."
Flotation Assures Timely Harvest

While compaction prevention played a role in why Kent Ott and his father, Charles, from Mulvane, Kan., purchased their Lexion 465 combine, flotation is the number one benefit they see from tracks on a combine.
"We had a record amount of rainfall in Kansas this year, and we weren't able to harvest our wheat with conventional combines," says Kent Ott. "Our Caterpillar dealer let us try a Lexion combine with tracks, and we were able to go. That's why we decided to buy the machine. We also did some custom harvesting for neighbors who weren't able to finish theirs."
Along with the track combine, the Otts now have a track system on their grain cart and use four Challenger tractors on their wheat, corn and sorghum operation.

The Otts really saw the value of a tracked combine in their operation when they ran their combine side-by-side with a wheeled combine on one field. "Pass by pass, the wheel machine sank down and made deep ruts, while the track machine stayed on top and barely made a footprint," Kent noted. "Without the tracks, our wheat harvest would have dragged out another three weeks or more. We just weren't able to go with our wheel machines, even though we've got rear-wheel assist on them."

Problems With Retrofit Tracks

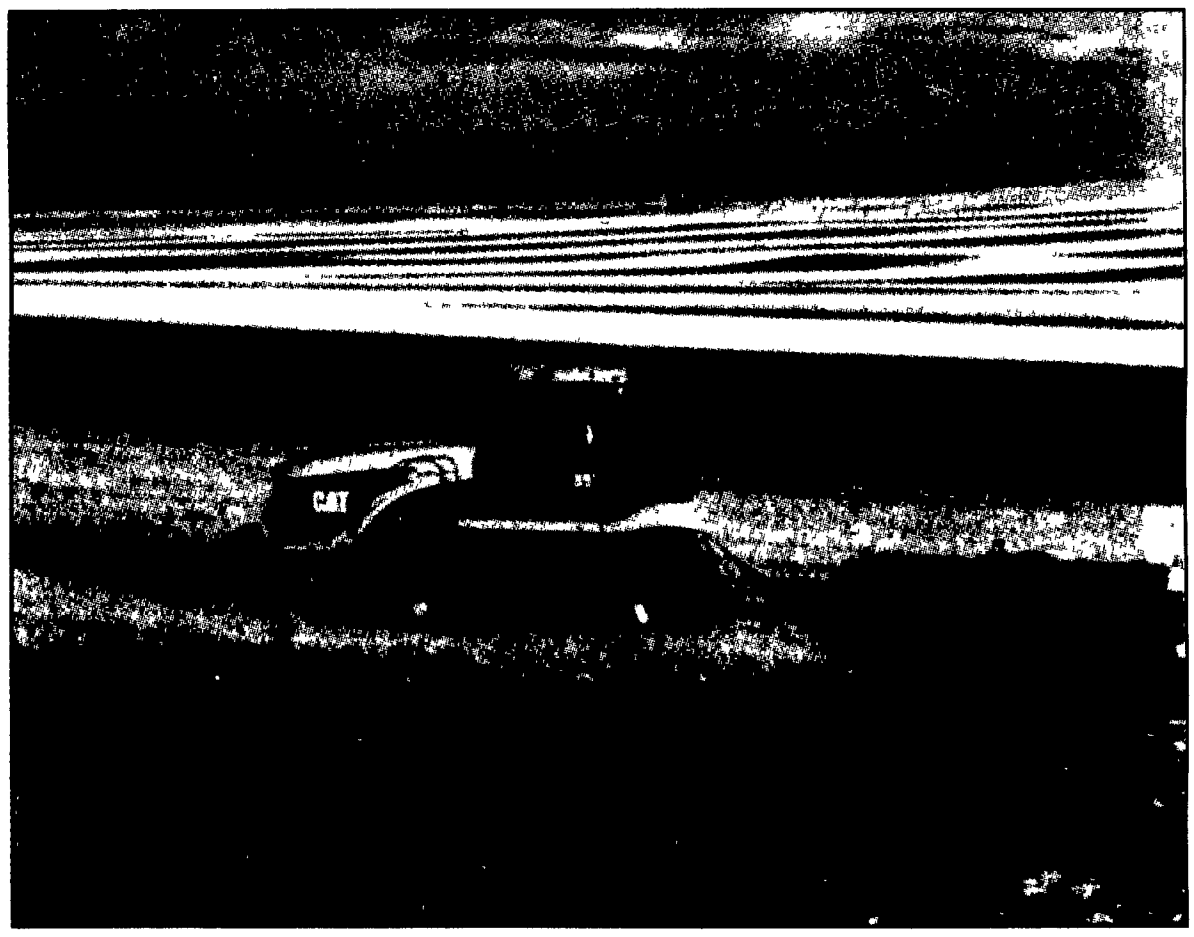
Seeking to provide customers with the advantages of tracks on combines originally built with wheels, some manufacturers offer the option of retrofitting. However, based on decades of experience in track technology, Caterpillar track experts caution against adding an under-carriage to a combine that wasn't designed to have it.

"Everything about a combine should be built keeping the operations the machine goes through in mind," explains W. Stan Born, manager of the Mobil-trac (systems for Caterpillar. "It's not just the roller frame that's different; there's also a difference in the gear box and the mounting structure. Several things go upstream into the chassis of the combine that are different, and you can't get it right by taking a wheel off and bolting on a track as a replacement."

Born also points out the challenges of retrofitting when it comes to ride and vibration characteristics. "Here again, the under-carriage needs to be tuned to the combine for a smoother ride and fewer vibration problems," he notes. "Steering, balance and load distribution must work together to provide good handling, because unbalanced loads can cause steering problems. There also can be problems with wear and tear on brakes," Born said.
Spreading Out the Weight

"As long as farmers keep running heavy equipment across their fields, the need to combat compaction will always be around," said Ladlie. "I see nothing but growth for track technology," he said. "If you're familiar with compaction, tracks just make good business sense."

Kent Ott agrees that tracks are the way to go. "They give you the ability to take these large machines and spread the weight out over a large area to reduce compaction, while increasing flotation," he says. "We're convinced there are tremendous benefits of tracks in agriculture, no matter what the application."



"With the combine being the heaviest machine in the field, we know it's a big candidate for compaction," said Jack Bartlett. He and his son Todd, Dallas City, IL, have witnessed positive effects on yields resulting from track technology. "It stands to reason that widening the footprint of the machine spreads the weight out and minimizes compaction."

'Brown Cow' Store Has Cream-Line Milk

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

BROGUE (York Co.) — Motorists traveling a few miles south of here on Rt. 74 can look at a new building on the right a certain way and picture a big brown cow.

That "cow" overlooks some of the nicest farm scenery in the whole county.

Importantly, the newly constructed big brown building, three miles south of Brogue, is home to the Brown Cow Country Market, owned and operated by the H.E. Heindel and Sons family.

Inside are 4,000 square feet of retail space that stocks a wide array of homemade dairy products (including aged cheddars), a variety of exotic meats (including emu and bison), their own meats (from their 3,000-head finishing operation), in addition to jams, preserves, pepper sauces . . . not to mention a bakery literally in the works, according to farm store manager Jeffrey Heindel.

The farm market, which cost more than $1 million, is a special project for Heindel. Himself a graduate of Lancaster Bible College with worldwide experience in Christian outreach missions, the goals of the country market are twofold: first, provide a way to help farmers direct-market their own product to make the family farm profitable. Second, take the profits from the store and funnel them back to additional Christian outreach work.

"That's my motivation," he told several members of the Solanco Young Farmers Association at a tour at the farm and market Tuesday.

Construction of the new market began in September last year. The store employs five full time and 7-8 people part time.

Although the official grand opening isn't until mid-May, the farm store itself was up and running Monday this week.

A grand purpose of the farm market is to sell milk and milk products processed on the farm directly to customers. A new Pladot mini-dairy (first of its kind in the U.S.) was recently installed, and the painstaking process of obtaining federal regulatory approval is well under way to sell additional products.

After some legal hurdles were recently overcome, Heindel noted they could begin to market their own milk from the Brown Swiss herd (with 30-32 cows on test) in the Hope Acres label.

Milk is moved in a small truck with a refrigerated tank. The milk is then moved to a 1,600-

Heindel was careful to ensure backups are present. The market uses this 125-kilowatt, diesel-generated backup generator that costs about $18,000.

The facility includes the mini-dairy that can process yogurt items, ice cream, cheese, and eventually specialty butters. Their milk, sold in half gallons, quarts, and pints, is labeled on the refrigerator door in the retail store as "cream line milk." That type of milk is unhomogenized. The customer must shake it to blend the cream in — the "natural" way to drink milk and supposedly, according to Heindel, more nutritional.

He said, "Sometimes, to a consumer, the milk doesn't always look pretty. But what's the issue — is it going to be pretty or more wholesome?"

A batch ice cream maker can make five gallons in 20 minutes. Heindel believes that the product will prove to be "one of our better sellers" and they are already thinking about purchasing a larger model.

All equipment in the mini-dairy meets OSHA regulations, he noted. In use is a French pasteurization system, different in some ways from the American system. The French is a high-temperature, short-duration system that meets federal guidelines. About 250 gallons per hour can be pasteurized.

Heindel was careful to ensure backups are present. The market uses a 125-kilowatt, diesel-generated backup generator that costs about $18,000.

A room used at the farm market for storage will become a small bakery in the future, noted Heindel.

Many "bugs" in obtaining federal approval to market the dairy products have been worked out. Heindel noted that, in the bureaucracy, "there are good people and some can be nasty."

For the Heindel family, it is critical that the farm market is perceived correctly. Plans are to place an observation window into the processing plant for tour groups after all the "bugs" have been ironed out.

They used the main road frontage of Rt. 74 to provide visibility. Fortunately, because the market is located next to the Clearview Elementary School of the Red Lion School District, zoning approval was easier to obtain.

The farm itself includes Dan Hushon, dairy manager; Dan Wagner, field crops manager; and Andy Peterson, beef manager. Adam Rishel is farm market dairy plant manager.

The dairy operation is comprised of about 200 cows. H.E. Heindel and Sons raises about 2,000 acres of crops, including corn and alfalfa.

"If we do this right," said Jeffrey Heindel, store manager, "it will help us and the dairy farmer, as an example of how a mini-dairy can be successful. It will also create a good image for the dairy farmer as well."

The central issue: to market the product, 50 percent of it must come from the farm. A farmer, noted Heindel, should be able to "sell his products and build a store to sell them in," he said. But what does the 50 percent refer to? The value of the product? The amount in the retail space? That is not specified in the zoning.

Regardless, the farm market will expand its retail offerings in the days ahead.

According to Jeffrey's wife, Roxy, a grand opening is scheduled May 11-13. Farm store hours are 7 a.m.-7 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and closed Sunday.

The Bobcat System Advantage

Many contractors choose a 14' (dig depth) TLB because the reach and loading height of this size TLB minimizes the amount of repositioning required on many jobs – increasing efficiency The 331/334 are very competitive in these area

If digging power and lifting capacity are needed, the 337/341 match up well in these area and exceed a TLB in reach and loading height

Lebanon Livestock Club Recognizes Members and Buyers

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.)–The annual Lebanon County 4-H Livestock Club Recognition Banquet was held recently in West Hall of the Lebanon Expo Center. The club honored its buyers from livestock sales held at the Lebanon Area Fair, Winter Roundup, and PA Farm Show and recognized some of its members.

Special awards presented were the Outstanding Member Awards. These award winners were chosen through an application process detailing their 4-H livestock activities of the past year. The Outstanding Rookie Member went to Kurt Fleener. Kurt is a member of Beef, Sheep and Swine clubs, and did well in showing all. Kurt is a 9-year old from the Newmanstown area.

The Outstanding Senior Member was Kurt's older brother, Kyle Fleener. Kyle is a 10th grader at ELCO, where he plays basketball, and is involved in FFA. Kyle shows all three species, and also participates in livestock judging. He took first place in the 4-H State Days Junior Livestock Judging Contest in August. Kyle also showed the Champion Shorthorn Heifer at the PA Farm Show, as well as showing pigs and sheep competitively.

Other recognition was given to several adults who are important to the program. Relda and Bill Brown of Brown's Greenhouse were honored for their continual help with our outdoor decorations at the fair. Their son Blaine has completed his 4-H career, and is currently a student at Black Hawk East. Harry Bachman, longtime auctioneer at the Lebanon Area Fair and the PA Farm Show, was honored also. Both received gift certificates to Hoss's.

Finally, another couple with longtime service was honored. Dick and Carol Kreider. As well as serving as treasurer for the club, they help with almost every aspect of the fair. Dick is also president of the Expo Board, which operates the fairgrounds. They were presented with a basket of PA meat products.

First year members were also recognized and given a brush for their projects. Senior members received a gift and a plant.

Bad Pruning Can Lead To Ugly Plants

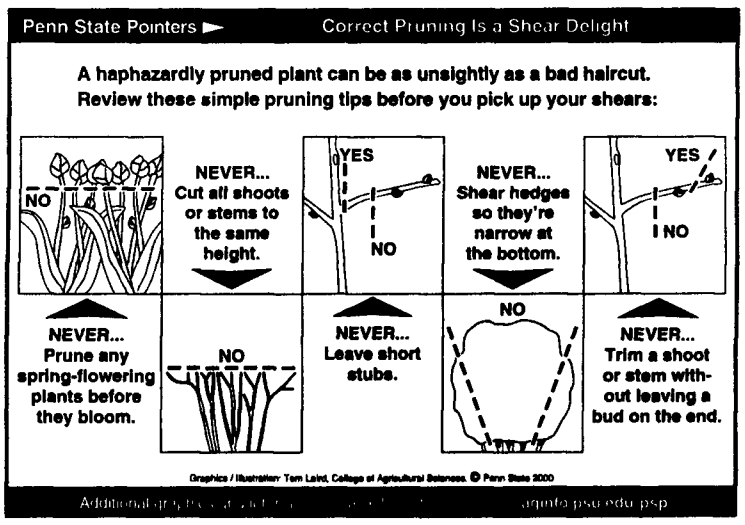
UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.)–A haphazard pruning job can be as unsightly as a bad haircut, except the plant can't wear a hat to hide the damage.

Robert Nuss, professor of ornamental horticulture in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, offers some tips on what not to do when you pick up your pruning shears.

•Never leave short stubs. Twigs should be cut close to the main stem. Stubs do not heal quickly and make an ideal opening for disease and insects.

•Never prune spring-flowering plants before they blossom. The flower buds are formed the season before, and pruning will remove them before they can open.

•Never cut all shoots or stems to the same height. It gives the plant a 'crew cut' look and stimulates dense growth on the top of the plant.



Penn State Pointers
Correct Pruning Is a Shear Delight
A haphazardly pruned plant can be as unsightly as a bad haircut.
Review these simple pruning tips before you pick up your shears:
NO
NEVER... Cut all shoots or stems to the same height.
YES
NO
NEVER... Shear hedges so they're narrow at the bottom.
NO
NEVER... Prune any spring-flowering plants before they bloom.
NO
NEVER... Leave short stubs.
NO
NEVER... Trim a shoot or stem without leaving a bud on the end.

•Never shear hedges so they are narrow at the bottom. The bottom should be several inches wider than the top to allow for fuller growth. The wider bottom exposes more of the plant to light, and eliminates the twiggy look many hedges have.

•Never leave a stump without a bud at the end to continue growth. Slant the cut slightly so a tiny portion of the twig remains above the bud.

Retirement Planning-It's Never Too Early or Too Late

HONESDALE (Wayne Co.)–Whether you are in your 20s or your 50s, financial planning is a key to a comfortable retirement.

A workshop especially designed for farm families, "Retiring On The Farm" will help you plan for your retirement. You'll learn specific steps to help make your retirement plan a reality.

The workshop is scheduled for Wednesday, March 22 from 1-3 p.m. at the Extension Meeting Room, Courthouse, Honesdale.

No charge, but registration is requested to ensure enough handouts for everyone. For more information or to register, call Debra Bryant at (570) 253-5970 x 239.

Meat Processors And Hunters Join Forces Community Food Banks Benefit

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.)–You might not expect to find meat processors and hunters working together in a social service project, but they did to make this year's Hunters Sharing the Harvest (HSH) program a success.

The Hunters Sharing the Harvest program is a coordinated state-wide effort to channel deer meat to local food banks and soup kitchens. Successful hunters bag the game and elect to donate some venison to the HSH project. The meat processors butcher the carcasses and store the donated portions of meat in their coolers till they are collected by food banks.

Cumberland County butcher Rick Potteiger of Potteiger Meats, New Kingston, wanted to "put a little energy" into the HSH project. "Last year our shop alone donated 1,300 pounds of venison to the program" he said. "This year our goal is 2,000 pounds. We could collect millions of pounds with a little effort." Potteiger challenged other meat processors to get hunters to donate more venison to food banks than his shop does. "Whatever shop beats ours will get $200 in prize money." The results of Potteiger's Cumberland County challenge aren't in yet.

In Indiana County, seven meat processors announced that they would be participating in the Hunters Sharing the Harvest project. Four meat firms in Jefferson County made themselves available to collect and store venison donations. Across Pennsylvania, scores of other meat processors have helped hunters donate venison to feed their hungry neighbors.

Food Banks Include Venison On The Menu

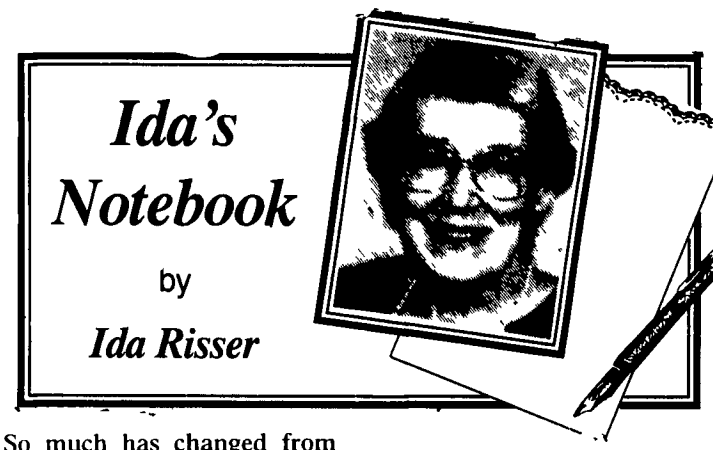
In Indiana County, calls from hunters expressing interest in donating venison have the Community Action Program looking forward to a bountiful winter feed for the 1,500 households served each month by 19 food pantries in the county.

Executive director Sandi Dill says that 5,229 pounds of venison have been donated by hunters since the program began in 1991. She expects heavy donation this year and gives venison donors a pat on the back. "Providing the deer meat for needy families is a considerable donation when you consider all the money that hunters spend on hunting licenses and gear to be able to hunt, and then pay the cost of processing the meat before giving it away."

Jennifer Canada, project manager of the Fayette County Community Action Food bank, has high praise for the generosity of hunters also. "Every year it just amazes us how many generous hunters there are in Fayette County," she said.

Debbie West, Greater Pittsburgh Community Food Bank, was in the warehouse when venison donations were offered to an area shelter for men. "You could see they were so happy to have it," she said.

In Lancaster, some students and faculty at Lancaster Mennonite High School initiated their first charitable venison drive. They collected 68 pounds of venison for the Water Street Rescue Mission. The Mission's food service director Tom Livsey said, "It's always nice to get meat, because that's something we can use a lot of."



So much has changed from the time that my mother started housekeeping to the present day.

In the spring of 1919 they moved from the village of Oregon to a farm nearby. The wagon was filled with furniture, a straw filled mattress, bed linens and a few chickens. They had a big black cast iron stove delivered to the ten-room house. My father got a cow and a calf from his parents.

When my mother came downstairs in the morning, she used wood chips and kindling to start a fire. Sometimes corn cobs soaked in kerosene were used too. My parents ate a lot of mush and pork pudding. We roasted field corn in the oven and when it was thoroughly dried it was shelled into a big metal tub with everyone helping with the job. I remember going to a mill with my father on a big two-horse Columbia wagon to have the corn ground into cornmeal.

My mother did her ironing by putting a metal iron on the top of the stove. She had two irons and one was heating while she used the other one. She starched most everything and so our clothes were quite stiff.

I still have the drysink in which our dishes were washed. We got hot water out of a reservoir on the side of the wood stove and then carried the water outside to empty it. Our soft water was in a cistern under the summerhouse and our drinking water was pumped from a 65-foot hand-dug well.

Many of the small utensils that were used long ago are still being used such as graters, cups, and spoons but electrical gadgets make our kitchen duties much easier. Seldom do we use crocks for applebutter or for storing meat after butchering as they did 80 years ago. Now many storage items are made of plastic. And, we do not spend most of our lives in the kitchen anymore.

Dairy Management Inc.™ Touts Chocolate Milk at Local Stores

ROSEMONT, Il.–Local dairy farmers, fluid milk processors and retailers are partnering this month to increase consumer demand for chocolate milk through the "Chocolate: The Wilder Side of Milk" campaign, according to Craig Plymesser, director of communications for Dairy Management Inc.™

"The chocolate milk retail category offers enormous growth," says Plymesser. "Market research indicates the more consumers buy chocolate milk, the faster they are back in the store to buy even more." He adds that chocolate milk sales increased nearly 12 percent nationally in 1999, compared to the year before.

Why the growth? Chocolate milk offers moms a way to get kids to drink milk and provides for their daily nutritional needs in a way kids enjoy.

"Our research shows nearly two-thirds of moms prefer chocolate milk over carbonated beverages for their kids. And, more important, 55 percent of kids ages 6 to 11 say they would drink more milk if it were chocolate," says Plymesser.

According to Dairy Management Inc.™, shoppers who purchase chocolate milk at participating retail locations now through March 31 are eligible to enter sweepstakes to receive fun prizes such as special edition "got milk?®" chocolate milk remote control monster trucks and Huffy® special edition "got milk?®" chocolate milk mountain bikes.

Plymesser says that programs where dairy farmers work with processors, retailers and other industry partners are key to increasing overall fluid milk demand. "Our local dairy farmer board members support partnerships between farmers, retailers and processors that help move more milk," he adds.

These retail programs are part of an overall national $180 million integrated fluid milk marketing plan developed and implemented by dairy farmers and processors in an effort to increase fluid milk sales 1 percent in 2000. The plan also includes "got milk?®" and "milk mustache" advertising, public relations, nutrition marketing, and research and technology efforts.

CASE IH YIELD-TILL® SYSTEM

DMI Soil Management For Higher Yields

Get More Bushels Out of Every Field By Using Deep Till Tiger Points.

DMI Tiger Points have wings that are swept downward, rearward and outward. This revolutionary design creates a lifting and twisting action that shatters compaction.

New Heavy Duty 300 Bushel Knight Box Spreaders IN STOCK at BINKLEY & HURST BROS. INC.

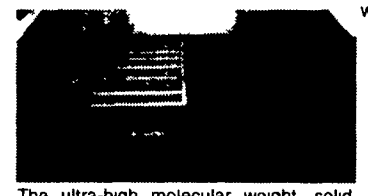
BUILT NEW FROM THE GROUND UP WITH NEARLY 50 YEARS OF TESTING!

An all-new spreader designed and built in the Knight tradition of heavy-duty, rugged, long-lasting products with features to carry you into the 21st century.

Single Axle and Tandem Axle Models

Heavy Duty Variable Speed Drive System
A variable speed, hydraulic apron drive with tractor-mounted speed control valve allows easy adjustment of the apron speed for different materials and for load clean-out

This cut-away view shows the lower side and frame overlap ① which is specially engineered to provide added strength and double protection against rust through The inverted U-channel cross members ② provide double the floor support area for superior strength The inverted design reduces corrosion by eliminating trapped material



The ultra-high molecular weight, solid poly floor reduces friction and winter freeze down and provides more strength and durability than individual tongue and groove boards or plywood coated with plastic This 3/4' thick, two piece UHMW poly floor is a first of its kind and is designed to allow for expansion and con traction

10 year warranty on side rust through and on poly floors.

The apron gearbox is a hollow bore "split" design, making service and removal of the apron shaft an easy task An overload relief valve is mounted directly to the hydraulic drive motor to help protect the apron drive

The greaseable, 2-jaw, over running clutch allows for easy PTO hook up and prevents beater backlash force when the PTO is disengaged The transfer shaft is piloted into the rear clutch jaw to maintain continuous alignment

Low Profile For Easy Loading
The paddle placement on the specially designed, 26" diameter rooster-comb beater provides a more consistent, wide spread pattern with better break-up of material The 5/16" thick, one-piece paddles are pre-punched for bolt-on replacement teeth

In the Degelman tradition of quality rock removal equipment, here is the RR1500 rock rake, another example of Degelman's continuing commitment to excellence.

The RR1500 rock rake includes a unique auto-fold system which provides safe, easy transport no wider than most tractors (8 feet in transport position) with full use of the 14 foot width in the working position. And with hydraulic angling, it can take full advantage of the 10 to 30 degree angling range.

Degelman Rock Rakes are excellent machines for grooming fairways and conditioning soil for the construction of golf courses. It leaves a beautiful final finish preparing the course for seeding. They are also used for reclaiming gravel on gravel roads. And the heavy duty construction and quality workmanship means that it is built to last

The SIGNATURE 6000 may be the only rock picker you'll ever need. This is the most rugged rock picker on the market. Some of the SIGNATURE 6000 features include:

Solid Shaft Grill Tines with Replaceable Grill Tips - This modern grill is easier to maintain, has longer life giving you less down time. The unique grill provides five feet of clean sifting and virtually jamless performance.

Grated Hopper Bottom - We use spring steel straps in the hopper, engineered to bounce back in shape.

Hydraulic Drive - The most popular drive on rock pickers is hydraulic which is standard on the 6000. We have incorporated a relief valve to take away the shock when disengaging the drive.

Reel Assembly - The three paddle reel has a large diameter, hard sufaced teeth and heavy duty paddles.

Flotation Tires - The 16.5L x 16.1 flotation tires are standard equipment and are a must to reduce soil compaction

Swing Pole - Easy to maneuver in both working or transport position.

CASE IH MX Series Magnum

Case IH is delighted to present the most technologically advanced agricultural tractor on the market today Combining customer input with cutting-edge technology, Case engineers designed and built a tractor with unsurpassed productivity and versatility.

The all new MX Series Magnum tractors set new standards in performance, reliability, durability, operator comfort, ease of operation and productivity with fourteen industry leading features.

The New MX220 Is At Our Door Come In And See!

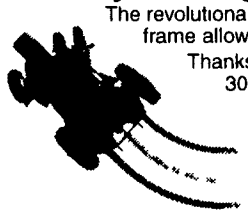
Purchase The Latest In Tractor Power From Binkley & Hurst Bros. Today. Rated 165 PTO HP.

Beautiful Interiors with Automated Comfort Control.

Note Extra Rider Seat for Convenience

The Shortest Turning Large Tractor You Can Own Today! Simple, User-Friendly Operation.

Industry Leading Turning Radius



The revolutionary chassis of the MX Series Magnum improves your overall performance and productivity. In fact, the innovative Surround frame allows for the tightest turning radius in the industry, even with front duals!

Thanks to axle improvements, engine placement and a sleek hood design, the MX Series Magnum can easily turn into 12 30-inch rows with all row crop tire configurations on true 60-inch tread settings

The new, single-piece, sculpted, cast iron Surround frame is the key to the enhanced capabilities and performance of these tractors It enables the MX Series Magnum to offer the first factory front duals, dramatically improving both traction and flotation By balancing the chassis, we've significantly reduced the amount of front ballast required And the frame easily accomodates mounted chemical tanks or loaders, allowing you to perform multiple applications

Built for the long haul

Here's why

- Corrosion-resistant steel sides
- Indestructible plastic floor boards (HDPE)
- 12-year guarantee for FREE floor and sides if they fail

The Model 195 carries a 287-bushel load with ease. We'd like to show you why this is the best-selling spreader in its class.

BECAUSE YOUR DAY DOESN'T START AT 9:00 AM...

OURS DOESN'T EITHER

When you work the land, you don't have the luxury of working 9 to 5. You need to be available all day, every day...and if your equipment breaks down, you need it fixed now, not tommorrow at 3:00.

Deer Creek understands the way you work. That's why we're here when you need us with parts and service 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. Where you buy a product is often as important as what you buy!

Put us to the test! Service when you need it.

GEHL®

PROVEN PERFORMER

Scavenger® Spreader

Gehl's Scavenger® Spreader delivers the performance you need year after year, with increased durability and outstanding application control. All thanks to the following features.

- Heavy-duty round core auger with segmented paddles to blend manure. Powered both up and down to ram through heavy loads and break up bridging.
- Special "V" tank design to handle solid, heavy bedded, semi-solid, self-leveling and liquid manure.
- Adjustable auger and expeller speeds spread more types of manure
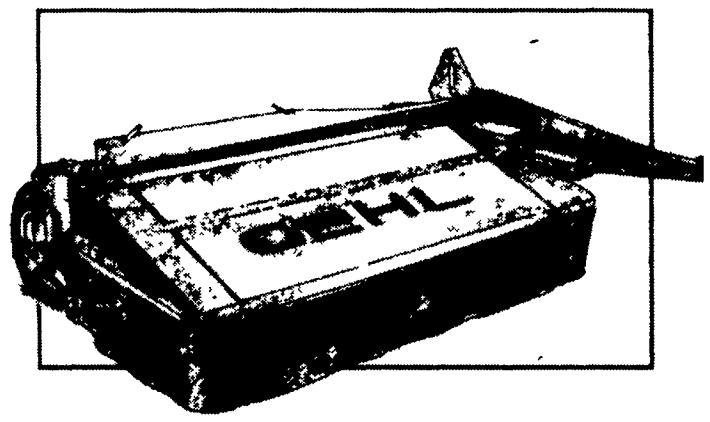
- Variflow™ discharge featuring square-tooth expeller paddles for smooth,e ven spreading at the rate you choose.
- Improved drive system with heavier final drive chains and enhanced idler system

2345/2365 DISC CONDITIONERS



Gehl has two all-new disc mower conditioners to cut your crop down to size, fast and easy, the DC2345 has 7 discs and a 9'2" cutting width; the DC2365 has 8 discs and a 10'3" cutting width. A Gehl disc mower conditioner delivers exceptional cutting and conditioning, even in your most difficult crops and conditions.

- Designed with the operator in mind
- Easy access all around
- An equal angle PTO
- Three-point flotation support

BUSINESS ❖ NEWS

April Is Auctioneers' Month

OVERLAND PARK, Kan.–The cry of "sold!" will echo through the month of April as auctioneers across the land celebrate National Auctioneers Month.

Sponsored by the 6,000 members of the National Auctioneers Association (NAA), the 2000 celebration honors both NAA members' dedication to the youngsters of St. Jude Children's Research Hospital and the value of the auction method of marketing to the free enterprise system.

This year's theme, "Auction–Voice of the Market,"™ pays tribute to the efficiency of the auction method in dispersing all types of property. Because auctions eliminate lengthy turn-around times for sellers and buyers are able to pay the price they want in a spirit of competition with others, more and more people are realizing auctions are a selling method of first resort.

"It's a great time to be involved in the auction industry," said John Roebuck, CAI, AARE, NAA president. "The knowledge that auctions are the best way to sell anything continues to grow and April is a great time for us to convince others to jump on the bandwagon."

The celebration also honors the willingness of NAA members to share their success with others. Since 1995, NAA members have raised more than $1.3 million for St. Jude Children's Research Hospital in Memphis, Tenn. Many auctioneers conduct fundraising activities during the month of April to assist the hospital in its mission of treating sick children and researching a cure for cancer and other catastrophic childhood illnesses. Auctioneers have pledged to raise $2 million for the hospital, which treats children regardless of their parents' ability to pay.

Efforts on behalf of the hospital earned the NAA election to the Association Advance America Honor Roll, sponsored by the American Society of Association Executives. The award recognizes those programs that make a quiet, but powerful impact, on American Society.

Stine Varieties Prominent In Soybean Yield Contest

NEW COLUMBIA (Union Co.) — Stine Keystone Group seeds resulted in six of the top 14 places in the recent Pennsylvania Soybean Yield Contest.

Joe Anchor, representing Stine, placed third in the Over-70 Bushel Club. Anchor farms 800 acres in Union County as a member of the Keystone Group, White Deer. Another Keystone Group member and Stine grower, Carl Schmidt, farms 250 acres of soybeans in Lycoming County.

Using a Stine bean, Anchor realized yields of 71.3 bushels per acre last year. The seed was a conventional 3398-8. Anchor attributed the yields to good seed selection and good overall agronomic practices, including pH, soil testing, and timeliness, the "fundamentals of a good crop," he said.

Keystone Group is a marketing arm of the Stine Seed Company, Adel, Iowa. Keystone Group markets seeds to central and eastern Pennsylvania.

Soil Preparation Device Is Versatile

JOHNSTOWN (Cambria Co.)–Rockaway removes rocks and debris as it tills and fluffs soil to prepare for seeding or sodding. Dirt and rocks are processed together by a durable rotor equipped with carbide-tipped mining teeth. The teeth are spiral-mounted to pull material toward the center.

The Rockaway removes rocks and debris as it tills and fluffs soil to prepare for seeding or sodding.

Dirt clumps are broken up, leaving only rocks and debris in the loader bucket. Fine dirt for seeding passes through the rotor and out through the Rockaway screen.

Designed and built by a landscaper frustrated by the cost of replacing chains and slats, Rockaway is a very low maintenance–just two greaseable bearings and one roller chain. The sturdy rotor does all the work and provides years of productive service. Rockaway is a quality soil preparation device that is reasonably priced, productive, low maintenance and durable, and adaptable.

Rockaway is not a self-contained attachment. It pins onto customers' existing utility, high-capacity, or low-profile skid-steer buckets. It is easy to install and easy to remove–just two pins and two hoses. The same Rockaway can be used on several different buckets.

There are three models for three bucket-width ranges. The 67-inch Rockaway fits 60 to 66.5-inch buckets. The 69-inch version is for 62 to 68.5-inch buckets. The largest version is 74 inches wide and fits 68 to 73.5-inch buckets.

Silage Baler Produces Bales In Variety of Crops

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.)–New Holland's Model 658 All-Purpose Silage Special round baler produces dense, uniform, well-shaped bales in a wide variety of crops, from dry hay and corn stalks to silage.

This baler is designed for high-capacity baling, and makes bales that are 4-feet wide and up to 6-feet in diameter (5-feet in diameter in silage), weighing up to 2,000 pounds. With this baler, the operator can produce high-volume hay and straw bales for shipping as well as dense, square-shouldered silage bales perfect for wrapping.

Endless belts and a dual-cam pickup make this a durable baler that's well-suited for high-capacity baling. A heavy-duty pickup frame provides longer life in heavy crops.

The Model 658 All-Purpose Silage Special round baler features 20,000 pounds tensile-strength endless belts. Endless belts, which are stronger and last longer than laced belts, are covered by New Holland's Bonded Protection program for three years or 15,000 bales.

The Model 658 All-Purpose Silage Special round baler is equipped with a new tube-type bale kicker with compression springs to move the bale away from the tailgate and hold the bale so the tailgate can close. The tailgate can be closed without pulling forward, saving the operator time with every bale.

The All-Purpose Silage Special version of the popular Model 658 is electronically-controlled by the Bale Command Plus™ system which allows the operator to switch from net to twine at the touch of a button. The Bale Command Plus system allows the operator to bale 6-foot tall dry hay or straw bales then move directly into baling silage bales without leaving the tractor seat. Bale Command Plus features a surface-mounted audible alarm that can be removed for easy servicing, plus heavy-duty sealing gaskets to keep dust and moisture out of the controls.

For more information, contact your local New Holland dealer or visit the New Holland Web site at www.newholland-.com/na.

AgChoice Hosts Ag Forum

LEWISBURG (Union Co.)–AgChoice Farm Credit brought two nationally known agricultural experts to a 10th Annual Ag Outlook Forum here at the Best Western Country Cupboard.

The theme of this year's forum was "Agriculture 2000: Planning for Success in the New Millennium."

Lou Moore, professor of agricultural economics at Pennsylvania State University, led the forum with predictions on the commodity trends and prices for this year. Dr. David M. Kohl, professor of agricultural economics at Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University, discussed farming practices and management issues in the 21st century.

Explaining the current state of agriculture, Kohl said America generates half the world's agricultural product. Kohl's presentation was highlighted by what he called his "big picture planning formula." The formula says that exports, weather, government policy, and interest rates all add up to determine a farmer's profits.

No-Risk No-Till Challenge

ST. LOUIS, Mo.–April 1 is the deadline for farmers to sign up for an innovative program that guarantees net income on no-till soybeans and strip-till corn.

The program is called the No-Risk No-Till Systems Challenge. It is sponsored by Monsanto and is targeted to farmers in select geographies who are not currently practicing no-till or strip-till.

Under the program, Monsanto guarantees equal or better net income to qualifying farmers on no-till Roundup Ready® soybeans and strip-tilled Roundup Ready corn, compared to crops from conventional programs. The program is limited to 80 acres per crop, with a minimum of 20 acres.

"University and Monsanto research shows that strip-till and no-till can reduce input costs, increase net income and provide other benefits compared to conventional tillage practices," said Jim Bowman, Monsanto market manager. "This program will make it possible for farmers to gain experience with these systems while limiting the financial risk."

To participate in the program, qualifying farmers must sign up by April 1, indicating the number of acres they will enroll and agreeing to use approved practices.

Participants must plant comparison plots of equal size using conventional tillage, conventional weed control, and conventional seed programs beside their no-till or strip-till plot. Monsanto-branded technologies must be used on no-till and strip-till plots.

The program is available across the Midwest, East and Plains.

Participants have until Dec. 1, 2000 to submit net income claims under the program. Claims will be paid within 30 days of submission.

For more details, complete eligibility requirements and program rules, contact your Monsanto representative or your agricultural retailer.

DUPONT®

If you were to ask local corn growers about Basis Gold® this is what they would say:

"With four years of Basis Gold® use on our farm, I have learned that the best corn herbicide program is 1 pt. of Dual at planting followed with Basis Gold® + 3 oz. of Banvel. This has eliminated Fall panicum problems and does what I like to see done to Canada thistle.

Basis Gold® saves me money and eliminates the crop damage from late post broadleaf herbicides too.*

This year Basis Gold® will be on all 600 acres of our conventional corn and no-till corn."

Eddie Taylor
Andelot Farm
Worton, MD

"I have been farming most of my 57 years; Basis Gold® is the best weed control I have ever experienced

*One-trip Basis Gold® cut in half my bill for hard-to-control weeds No Velvetleaf, Lambsquarters, Quackgrass or Fall panicum We did not need to re-spray any of the 1,400 acres of Basis Gold®

Unlike what I have experienced in the past, Basis Gold® did not hold my corn back, which resulted in higher yields, earlier maturity and lower drying costs Basis Gold® saved me a lot of money this way too"

"It was a difficult year for weed control in most corn fields in this area last year, several growers saw our corn fields and wanted to know what we used to keep them so clean.

We switched to Basis Gold® on almost all 2,300 acres of corn Our main programs was 33 oz. Basis + 1 lb Princep in March after we deep ripped, then followed with 14 oz Basis Gold® + 2 qt nitrogen + crop oil on 6 inch corn.

One of our irrigated corn hybrids with Basis Gold® - averaged 226 69 bushels on 165.4 acres We would like to stay with what works, and will be using the same weed control this year"

"We used total post weed control on 1800 acres of corn Our Basis Gold® program on 600 acres was one trip with 14 oz Basis Gold® + 3 oz Banvel for Fall panicum, Foxtails and Canada thistle

We have found we are only fooling ourselves thinking we can use a full rate of a pre-product then trying to spot spray to clean up escapes, we usually realize at harvest that we should have resprayed all the acres postemerge

Based on our Basis Gold® results, present thinking is to use at least as much Basis Gold® this year and will likely increase to 1,200 acres of Basis Gold® on this years corn crop The residual advantage in Basis Gold® is important to us"

"Our NCGA winning entry came from an old cow pasture field that has soil with excellent moisture holding capacity and is loaded with lots of weed seeds including giant ragweed plus several different kinds of grasses; I figured ahead of time it would take a two pass program to end up with clean corn.

Basis Gold® cleaned the field up and it did not effect the corn at all Basis Gold® is a great value too"*

Paul J. Hlubik
Backacres Farms
Jacobtown, NJ

"Our experience was with 14 oz. Basis Gold® + 4 oz Banvel on 1,200 acres where we expected the worst weed problems like Fall panicum & triazine resistant weeds We used one trip with Basis Gold® on conventional tillage and applied Princep early followed by Basis Gold® + Banvel postemergence on no-till Basis Gold® worked well and is a lower cost program than what we had been using

We like how Basis Gold® enables us to use fewer plastic jugs and get away from the liability of carrying bulk herbicides on our trucks We also like the way the corn jumps out of the ground with a Basis Gold® program

It was our best irrigated corn crop ever We keep learning more about how to do it right every year; our two best irrigated hybrids treated with Basis Gold® averaged about 2 30 bushels/acre I see more Basis Gold® planned this year"

"Last year our corn yields weren't the best because of the dry weather Our weed control program gave us clean corn despite the dry weather This is the second year we used Basis Gold® for problem weeds like Lambsquarters, Foxtail, Shattercane and Johnsongrass We will be using Basis Gold® again for the third straight year."

"What was frustrating me was the large number of acres we were spraying twice Our pre-emergence sprays were failing I was looking for a better way Then we tried Basis Gold®. Since using Basis Gold®, we've done very little re-spraying Weed control isn't always perfect, but it is very acceptable For three years Basis Gold® has been our main herbicide program We will use it again this year on our 700 acres of field corn

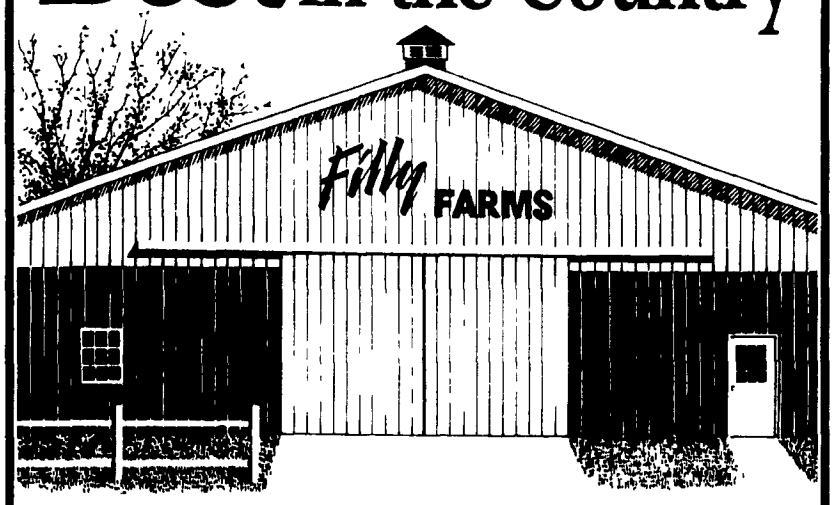
S66 DOUBLE HOWE SCISSORS

Best in the Country



For rough duty, rougher weather: Rugged, practical, cost-efficient Channeldrain® roofing and siding.

Channeldrain is the roofing and siding to use for a strong, tight structure that'll carry you through the years of heavy snows, driving rain, and ripping winds.

Wheeling Channeldrain is pure practicality: full-hard, high tensile steel; galvanized for toughness, durability, and rust resistance; with an exclusive drain channel for a snug, dry interior. Handsome appearance, too: bold shadow lines and a choice of rich, baked-on colors.

Wheeling roofing and siding is part of The System™, the most comprehensive, quality integrated manufacturing and paint finishing process in the industry. The best in the country is right here. Stop by.

* Benefits of Fiberglass Wheels *

- Very Low Maintenance Costs Under normal use the only maintenance costs will be tightening or replacing the tire or rubber. No expensive parts to replace.
- High Performance Regardless of the Elements Wheels stay tight even in hot, dry conditions – No more loose rattling spokes – ever!
- Rugged Heavy Duty Design It takes a major accident or impact to break or twist these wheels.
- Hard Durable Surface Resists scuffs and scratches, paint job stays shinier.
- Easier Cleaning Spokes have all rounded corners, no tight spots for dirt to get into.

* Benefits of Fiberglass Springs *

- Lightweight A fiberglass spring weighs approximately 44 lbs. less than a steel spring. 44 lbs. less weight on the carriage.
- Durable One Piece Design No bolts to give out or wear.
- Better Performance on Heavy Loads The more weight, the better the ride, will not go flat and bottom out.
- Better Paint Adhesion Easier cleaning – no rust stains running out between the plys. Paint will not blister or peel off.
- Stabilizer Kits – Now Available For a smoother ride and less bounce

What makes Mule Deer Bucks grow trophy racks in Western South Dakota? Why, South Dakota alfalfa of course, silly!

Would you like to purchase South Dakota State University tested & grower direct proven varieties at $1 20/lb to $1 70/lb ?

YOUR COWS DESERVE THE BEST!

Experience the difference that top quality CONVECTION ROASTED FULLY HEAT CONDITIONED SOYBEANS can make in your Dairy herd's health, milk production, and YOUR BOTTOM LINE

Windridge Roasted Soybeans

Our state of the art convection soybean roaster gently and precisely heats the soybean without burning, while our specially designed conditioner fully and properly steeps them to ensure full conversion to By-pass protein!

The Secret is in the Steeping

Here's what satisfied dairy producers and nutritionists are saying about Weaver's Toasted Beans:

"Beans are crisp and more flavorful all the way through, not just processed on the outside."

"Moisture levels are consistently low, and the oil stays in the bean so rumen dynamics aren't compromised."

"PDI's come back stable. We can depend on them to give us more by-pass protein and the by-pass is better."

"Palatability is key. They smell good. They taste good. And the cows really like them."

Be Consistent.

Variable Forages?

You can count on consistent protein, energy, digestibility and taste from Weaver's Toasted Grains.

NOW IS THE TIME TO APPLY NITROGEN TO YOUR GREEN SPIRIT RYEGRASS.

BARLIZA TIMOTHY

A late maturing (approximately 1 week later than Climax) timothy with high yields under intensive cutting. Unlike traditional varieties, Barliza will withstand the pressure of grazing. Low tendency to head out makes for high quality, leafy hay. Also available in a blend with BG 34 Ryegrass and clover for grazing.
